N. Y. Banks Put Weight Behind Roosevelt Plan

Vote Capital Increase of $200,000,000 Through R. F. C.

Way Paved for Smaller Houses; U. S. Pushes Credit Aid.

By Elliott Thurston.

New York banks threw the weight of their example behind President Roosevelt's banking program yesterday coincident with formulation of important decisions on policy at the White House.

Outstanding developments were:

1. The New York Clearing House adopted a resolution under which New York banks will expand their capital by $200,000,000 through sale of their capital notes or preferred stock to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, thus leading the way for other banks of the country to strengthen their capital by an estimated $1,000,000,000 in preparation for Federal guaranty of deposits on January 1.

2. In conference with C. B. Merriam, head of the R. F. C. liquidating agency to accelerate freeing of frozen deposits in closed banks, and with Gov. Black of the Federal Reserve Board, Henry Bruere and Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Deposit Insurance Corporation, the President decided upon a policy of insuring deposits in virtually all banks now open. Where necessary this will be done by R. F. C. subscription to preferred stock in institutions which need strengthening.

Far From Satisfied.

3. The President reaffirmed his "hard money" policy, but the White House reported that the administration, while pleased, is far from satisfied with conditions and means therefore to press ahead with credit-expansion and price-lifting methods, discarding stabilization recommendations advocated by Director of the Budget Douglas, by James P. Warburg, of New York, who will confer with the President again today, and by others of his close advisers.

4. The Treasury reported to the White House that the recent conversion offer of $500,000,000 had been over-subscribed four times, with applications still pouring in. The President announced that subscriptions so far amounted to approximately $2,000,000,000 for the 12-year conversion bonds, bearing interest of 4¼ per cent for the first year and 3¼ thereafter. This response relieved Treasury apprehension over the ability of the Government to obtain money in the orthodox way and further tended to steer greenback advocates away from the printing-press methods of money-raising.

Late in the day George L. Harrison, governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, reported to the President on the prospect for such conspicuous utilization of R. F. C. funds to strengthen the capital of New York banks that smaller institutions throughout the country will feel less hesitancy about doing likewise in making themselves eligible for deposit guarantee.

Resolution Adopted.

The New York Clearing House resolution, adopted yesterday, read:

"The President of the United States has publicly stated his belief that the banks of the Nation should strengthen their capital structure.

"We believe the President's ob-

Unlimited Bank Help Promised

Preferred Stock Purchases Are Not Inflation, R. F. C. Chairman Asserts.

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 18 (AP).—Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, said today, "the sky is the limit," when asked how much money the Government planned to put into banks through purchase of preferred stocks.

The financier emphasized the stock purchase plan was designed to provide additional credit for recovery, and expressed the opinion that the recovery program was "working out satisfactorily."

Jones said purchase of preferred bank stock in large amounts would not mean inflation.

Jones and J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of Currency, spoke at a luncheon sponsored by the Dallas Clearing House Association.

O'Connor explained the progress made in liquidating frozen assets of closed banks and congressional action on the plan to guarantee bank deposits.

Ulm's Record Hopes Fade, Continues Flight

Singapore, Sraits Settlements, Oct. 18 (AP).—Charles T. P. Ulm, giving up hope of beating the England-to-Australia flying record of Wing Comdr. Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, took off tonight for Soerabaya, Java.

Ulm arrived during the day from Alor Star, Malay States.

Virginia Golfer Seeks an Eagle, Bags a Bluejay

Staunton, Va., Oct. 18 (Spl.).—Oakie Dunn made an actual birdie on Gypsy Hill course here today when his tee shot killed a bluejay.

Dunn, an inveterate linksman, teed off number eight. The ball rose gradually. A hundred feet from the ground it hit the bird in flight. The bluejay dropped to the fairway.

Equality First, Then Geneva, Hitler Declares

Asks His Enemies at Home to Help Hold "Our Honor Above All."

Berlin, Oct. 18 (AP).—Chancellor Hitler proclaimed today that Germany will participate in no conference or agree to no convention "as long as she is not treated equally."

As if to still reports abroad that the Reich may return to the disarmament conference and the League of Nations, the chancellor in a speech to his followers, declared:

"Germany is determined in the future to attend no conference, enter no league, agree to no convention, and sign nothing as long as she is not treated equally."

Asks Truce at Home.

He bid for the cooperation of his enemies at home today and issued as a slogan for the Reichstag election campaign the sentence:

"We simply refuse to be treated as a second-class nation!"

He offered his opponents an all-round reconciliation in return for their support in the plebiscite November 12, announced last Saturday—along with Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and the arms conference—as a chance for Germans to affirm their loyalty to the Nazi regime.

This move was regarded as highly significant and as foreshadowing an even closer welding together of the whole "third Reich" of the Hitlerites. Hitler himself will direct the plebiscite campaign in his usual whirlwind fashion.

"Our Honor Above All."

As a primary plank he offered the tenet:

"Our honor above all."

He addressed his lieutenants last night (the speech was made public today) and lay before them as a doctrine to be followed by the administration that Germany was in deadly earnest about never abandoning a claim to equality in dealing with other nations.

There is a limit, he announced confidently, beyond which he could not go without making himself unworthy of leadership—"the battle will be for the nation's right to live, not for any imperialistic policy or aims of conquest."

Peace Wanted, He Says.

"Germany desires peace and nothing but peace. Honor is something without which one can not live," he said.

He criticized previous governments for "uselessly participating in international conferences" without first being conceded equality, and declared his predecessors were victims of "the Geneva illness."

The election campaign, he emphasized, would be based solely on the foreign policy question.

"With the same determination with which the Nazi movement the last 14 years fought for its rights," he maintained, "Germany will insist on her right to equality.

"I am optimistic about my people and pessimistic about Geneva and the League of Nations."

Duce Moves To Form New Arms Parley

Germany Invited to Join Three Other Powers in Conference.

Swiss Plan to Increase Defense Armament as Safeguard.

Geneva, Oct. 18 (AP).—Premier Mussolini, of Italy, was credited with indefatigible efforts today to unite four European powers, including Germany, in a discussion of disarmament at Stresa, Italy.

At the same time, information from Berne, the Swiss Capital, indicated a determination to safeguard Swiss neutrality.

It was learned that the War Department will ask extraordinary credit of 85,000,000 gold francs ($23,800,000) to increase armaments.

The report reached here that the Italian leader had asked other powers regarding the feasibility of further conversations on disarming.

Poland was said to have been asked whether she would approve such a project and to have replied that she wants all the problems considered at Geneva.

The impression prevailed that France would make disarmament concessions to Germany on the condition the Reich would remain in the league.

Swiss Move Long Awaited.

In this conection, the belief was entertained that the question of Germany's league designation was still open because the German government's appeal to the people last week insisted the Reich wants to solve the problem of equality of rights through negotiations and treaties.

Swiss military leaders have wanted an increased appropriation for a long time and seized upon recent events as justification for their demands.

A plan to be submitted to the Federal council provides for additional materials for infantry and artillery, and also for airplanes and projectors.

It was explained that this would not be a contradiction of the disarmament conference because it does not exceed maximum limitations. Last summer the Swiss Parliament appropraited 20,000,000 francs for military equipment.

Pamphlet Defends Germany.

Statesmen, meanwhile, commented on an anonymous pamphlet, printed in English and entitled "Germany's National Awakening," which defended Hitler's principles and outlined a foreign policy for Germany.

One passage said a paramount aim of the new Germany was to obtain "by way of treaty revision a more logical and less exasperating demarcation of Germany's eastern frontier."

It said there was no instance in history of a country being separated to create access to the sea for one of its neighbors and asserted that "nobody would contemplate the idea of creating a corridor on French or Italian territory * * * to provide Switzerland access to the sea."

U. S. Keeps Aloof.

Yet, it went on, "this is what was done by carving out from the Reich the whole province of East Prussia and by tearing from the crown of the Reich one of its most precious pearls, Danzig," now a free city.

Under the terms of a declaration by American Ambassador-at-Large Norman H. Davis that the United States would not enter strictly European discussions, it seemed unlikely that the American delegates would attend the reported Stresa conference.

Athens Court May Hear Insull Case Saturday

Athens, Greece, Oct. 18 (AP).—The hearing of the extradition proceedings against Samuel Insull, former Chicago utility operator, may be conducted Saturday, it was learned today.

Papers in the case will be sent officially to the president of the appeals court tomorrow. The court sat unofficially this afternoon to study the file.

Governor Grants Him Liquor, Doomed Man Will Die Happy

San Quentin Prison, Calif., Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Dallas Egan, 38, got drunk tonight and put aside thoughts of his impending execution. He will be hanged Friday for the holdup murder of William J. Kirkpatrick, wealthy Battle Creek (Mich.) man at Los Angeles.

But tonight he toasted Gov. James Rolph, jr., who granted his unique last request. Egan asked Acting Warden L. L. Stanley for whisky. Gov. Rolph told the warden over long distance telephone:

"Give Egan a good brand and all he can stand up under and let him go out happy. Give him some tonight, and say good by to him for me."

"That is the only request Egan has made," the governor explained. "It seems to me a man about to die should be entitled to a little thing like that. He might as well go to the gallows happy. It's the least we can do for him."

As Egan lowered the line tonight in a bottle of Bourbon he said he had no regrets that he would die at sunrise 30 hours hence.

Carson City, Nev., Oct. 18 (U.P.)—"The only request I ever refused a condemned man was a petition for a gas mask," said Warden Matt Penrose, of the Nevada State Prison, tonight.

Lethal gas is used for executions in Nevada.

Singer to Be Wed In California Today

Riverside, Calif., Oct. 18 (AP).—A marriage license was issued here today to Richard Bunns, 44, Metropolitan Opera tenor known on the stage as Richard Bonnelli, and Mona Chapman Wood, 30, daughter of Mrs. Modina Wood, patron of the opera in Los Angeles.

They will be married at noon tomorrow in the Riverside Inn, but neither would disclose details.

GOV. WILLIAM LANGER, who yesterday ordered use of militia to enforce wheat embargo.

Railroads Defy Ban on Wheat, Term It Illegal

North Dakota Governor Calls Out Guard to Enforce Order.

St. Paul, Min., Oct. 18 (AP).—Four Northwest railroads serving North Dakota's territory tonight challenged the legality of Gov. William Langer's wheat embargo by determining to "abide by the laws of Congress" and accept wheat for shipment.

"It has been the law of the land from the time of the founding of our Nation," said a statement issued by F. G. Dorety, vice president and general counsel of the Great Northern Railroad, on behalf of the four roads, "that a State has no power to place an embargo on the export of articles produced within the State."

The decision was concurred in by counsel for the Northern Pacific, Soo Line, and Milwaukee railroads after an all-day conference, held in the face of Langer's order to the North Dakota National Guard to be prepared to enforce his embargo, effective at midnight tonight.

Must Accept Shipments.

"Interstate railroad companies are compelled by the express terms of the Interstate Commerce act," the statement continued, "to provide and furnish transportation in interstate commerce.

"If, notwithstanding the governor's proclamation, wheat is tendered to the railroad with instructions for interstate shipments, the railroads will be faced with the necessity of deciding whether to obey the governor's proclamation or the laws of the United States."

Explaining they had been unable to evolve a plan meeting requirements of both the governor's order and Federal laws, the statement continued:

"The attorneys for the railroads operating in North Dakota have united in advising their companies that if wheat is tendered to them in North Dako' for shipments to points outside the State, the railroads will have no alternative but to abide by the laws of Congress."

Agents of the four roads in North Dakota have been instructed to accept wheat for shipment subject to any delays resulting from the chief executive's order.

High Court Rule Cited.

Whether the carriers would contest the governor's act by court action was not considered, conferees said, explaining the next step, if any, would be decided upon after enforcement of the embargo had started.

"If the shippers comply with the governor's proclamation and do not tender any wheat for shipment, the railroads will not become involved," the railroads' statement said. It cited also a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States for their stand.

Managua Air Dive Kills 3 Americans

Oil Men Plunge 2,000 Feet Into Nicaraguan Lake.

Managua, Nicaragua, Oct. 18 (AP).—Three Americans were killed late today in an airplane which plunged 2,000 feet into Managua Lake.

They were William Davis, of Boston; Hansel Hollans, of New York, and Jack Lafferty, Los Angeles, all oil men, recently arrived.

Davis, said to have a pilot's license, took off from Managua Air Field this afternoon for a pleasure trip with the others.

Ecuador Senate Ousts President

Action Ends Deadlock of Two Months.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—The Senate today almost unanimously approved a resolution ousting Juan Martinez Mera from the presidency of the republic, thus terminating a deadlock between the chief executive and congress which had paralyzed all but routine functions of the government since August 15.

Premier Abelardo Montalvo automatically became acting president. The entire opposionist group in the senate cast its 22 votes in favor of the ouster, the remaining 10 pro-Martinez Mera senators absenting themselves.

Attacker Slain And Burned In Maryland

1,000 in Princess Anne Battle Police to Seize Prisoner.

Victim Hanged at Home of Judge Who Begged Mob's Mercy.

Princess Anne, Md., Oct. 18 (AP).—Accused of attacking an aged white woman, George Armwood, colored, was dragged from the Somerset County Jail tonight by a mob of more than 1,000 men, women and children and lynched.

He was hanged from a tree after the mob had stripped him of clothing, attached a rope around his neck and pulled him behind an automobile through the town.

As the mob made its slow progress, members leaped at Armwood, screaming and cursing. The prisoner apparently was dead when the crowd reached the hanging scene.

Later, the body was cut down and was taken to the public square, where it was burned. The rope was cut into small pieces and distributed as souvenirs.

Armwood was accused of attacking Mrs. Mary Denston, 71, as she returned to her home Monday.

He was brought to Princess Anne early today from Baltimore, where he was taken Monday night for safe keeping. County authorities informed the governor yesterday there would be no trouble and reiterated this belief this afternoon in the face of rumors that a mob would attack.

Hanged Near Judge's Home.

In breaking into the jail, the mob overpowered 25 State policemen, sent here to guard Armwood. Eight officers were injured, suffering cuts and bruises on their heads from bricks and stones hurled at them by mob members.

The hanging occurred next to the home of Judge Robert F. Duer, who had attempted to dissuade the crowd when it first formed at the jail.

The crowd, incensed at Duer's remarks, first went to the judge's home, but moved to the neighboring house when they were unable to find a tree sufficiently large.

One boy, apparently about 18 years of age, slashed the Negro's ear almost off with a knife.

After they had taken the Negro to the public square and burned him, the mob disbanded.

White Man Rushed Away.

In the meantime, John Richardson, a white man who was under arrest charged with being an accessory after the fact in the assault on the farm woman, was taken from the jail by officers and was started for Baltimore.

He was accused of taking the Negro away from the vicinity of the alleged assault and transporting him to another section of the county.

Gov. Ritchie had talked to Judge Duer and the State's attorney earlier in the day and was assured by them that there would be no difficulty. After this, the governor issued a statement saying he would not have the Negro removed.

The mob gathered shortly after nightfall. It converged on the jail and, as it neared, the police fired tear gas bombs.

This moved the mob back for the

$50,000 Mail Bag Found in Woods

Postal Driver Says He Was Held Up by Lone Bandit.

Wilson, N. C., Oct. 18 (AP).—Three registered mail pouches, one containing $50,000 in currency, were found intact in a woods near here today after Hugh Hawley, contract mail driver, reported to police he had been held up by a lone bandit between the station and the post-office.

After questioning by detectives and a postoffice inspector, Hawley was placed in jail pending further investigation. No charges were lodged against him.

Nazi Band Attacks Austrian Soldiers

One on Each Side Shot in Border Clash.

Salzburg, Austria, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—The tense Austro-German situation was embittered further today when six Nazis armed with revolvers attacked a detachment of the Austrian Auxiliary Frontier Defense Corps.

They wounded one and one of their number was wounded. In fleeing over the border into Bavaria, they left him behind.

The Nazis were from the Saalfelden district.

Mrs. Hoover in Seattle On Girl Scout Tour

Seattle, Oct. 18 (AP).—Visiting Girl Scout organizations of the Pacific Northwest, Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Girl Scout leader and the wife of the former President, arrived in Seattle today.

She was greeted by school children wearing the gray-green Girl Scout uniforms.

Ford Yields to NRA In Granting Strikers Collective Bargaining

Cash Goes in Millions, But U. S. Keeps No Tab

Many Bureaus Spending, But Just Try to Get a Record!

Who keeps track of the corporations—those Government corporations with designatory initials set up by the 15 emergency Federal agencies to dispense hundreds of millions in public funds?

Who knows how many and what corporations, such as the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation and the Commodity Credit Corporation, have been established in the last few months?

Not I, says Frank C. Walker, executive secretary of the Executive Council, whose duty is coordinating the activities of these emergency organizations in carrying out the recovery program.

Not I, admits Winfield W. Riefler, chairman of the Central Statistical Board, established to provide adequate and reliable statistics as a coordinating agency for the President's Executive Council.

And So It Goes.

Not I, says Lewis W. Douglas, Director of the Budget.

Nor I, admits William H. Woodin, Secretary of the Treasury.

And at the Executive offices of the White House, it was said last night there is no list of the various corporations and boards, which are announced almost daily to lend money running well into the billions.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation set up a board a few days ago to lend $1,000,000,000 on assets of closed banks; the Commodity Credit Corporation, by the end of the week, will have $250,000,000 available for loans to cotton farmers; the Farmers National Grain Corporation shortly will purchase 1,000,000 bushels of wheat, while the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation on Monday announced its intention to spend $15,000,000 for the purchase of butter and unestimated millions for range cattle.

"Coordination" Costs.

The money rolls out, the demands on the Treasury roll in. But nowhere, in any department of the Government yesterday, could an inquiring reporter find any one who could name over the spending corporations.

An allotment of $10,000 to the executive council for administrative expenses was announced yesterday by the Public Works Administration, with the added information that the council "is charged with the duty of coordinating the activities of emergency organiza-

U. S. Queries Corporations On Salaries

Executives' Cash Receipts Over 5 Years Asked for Senate.

Salaries paid executives of large corporations yesterday were made the object of a detailed inquiry by the Federal Trade Commission.

Every corporation listed on the New York Stock or Curb Exchange with assets of $1,000,000 or more was sent exhaustive questionnaires by the commission. The completed questionnaires, which would contain information hitherto considered confidential about compensation paid executives and directors, were ordered returned by Wednesday.

Col. Charles H. March, commission chairman, said the commission had no action in mind against corporations paying large salaries. He stated the information was ordered assembled by the Senate at the last session and would be turned over to the Senate when it convenes.

Five-Year Survey.

The questionnaires require each corporation to set forth amounts paid in salaries, fees, bonuses, commissions, the cash value of stock rights, stocks or bonds, remunerations and gifts made to each company executive or director, from 1928 to 1933. It requests each item given to an executive or director in addition to regular salary to be shown and asks the reason for such remunerations, from 1928 to 1933.

The firms are required to list their assets, net sales, net income, number of executive officers and their total compensation for the five years covered. Specific information as to cash value of all remunerations made other than in cash is required. The commission also asked rates of compensation of directors and executive officers in effect September 1, 1933.

It was estimated by corporations receiving the questionnaires that the information will necessitate an enormous amount of clerical work.

Wiggin Tells Of Affiliate's Huge Losses

Stockholders Were Not Kept "Fully Informed," Pecora Charges.

Shrinkage of assets in the Chase Securities Corporation by 77 per cent of their former capitalization as result of security losses yesterday held the attention of the Senate Banking Committee.

Detailing the mark-down from $156,453,306 total capital and net earnings to $14,407,732 on June 30 last, Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, charged stockholders were "not fully informed" of transfers from capital to reserves against losses.

Producing reports of the Chase National Bank affiliates for the last three years, Pecora declared there was nothing in these statements advising stockholders of reserves shifted to offset losses.

Albert H. Wiggin, former chairman of the Chase Co., denied this. He said stockholders could make the computations for themselves by comparing the statements with previous reports.

Metopan Company Studied.

Asked to make such a calculation for the year 1932, he consented. When an associate leaned forward to help him, Pecora pointed out stockholders had no such expert assistance. Wiggin fell $1,000,000 short of the corporation's capital assets in his computation.

"Doesn't a bank require any one seeking a loan to file a complete financial statement, and tell whether any of his assets are subject to liens?" Pecora inquired.

Wiggin nodded assent.

"Well, why didn't you give that information to stockholders?" asked Pecora.

"It doesn't affect a stockholder the same way," replied Wiggin.

"That's for the stockholder to say for himself," said Pecora.

Tracing activities of the Chase Securities Corporation, now in process of liquidation, from its inception in 1917, Pecora deviated fre-

Writer Banned by Johnson Ousted by Reporters' Group

Troubles of James True, which started when he was barred from press conferences by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, increased yesterday when he was dropped from membership in the business paper correspondents committee.

The committee is composed of representatives of trade journals. It approved a resolution which held the writer "no longer eligible for membership."

In its action, the committee cited its eligibility rule which does not admit to membership any person engaged in letter news service. Remarks of True in his Industrial Control Report, a "confidential" service to business men, led to his being excluded from press conferences with Johnson.

Although notified he would not be admitted to a Johnson press conference, True presented himself for the Tuesday meeting and was barred. Johnson stated the action was taken because True was not a representative of the press. Previously he complained to True that his reports were full of "misinformation and sabotage of NRA."

True invoked the constitutional freedom of the press, but Johnson refused to admit this was involved

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP).—Recovery Administrator Hugh Johnson, in a telegram to the editors of trade papers urging consideration of "ways and means" of increasing the purchase of capital goods, said today "we are at a critical time in recovery."

Bert Hall, War Aviator, Held by U. S. in China

Tientsin, China, Oct. 18 (AP).—Bert Hall, American war-time aviator, was arrested today by United States consular officials on a charge of engaging in illegal firearms importations to military forces.

Hall, according to the charges, converted to his own use $10,000 Mexican, supposedly for a shipment of pistols.

Motor Magnate Denies Reports of His Opposition.

Labor Board Chairman Sees End of Strife in Industry.

After defying the National Labor Board, Henry Ford yesterday agreed to deal collectively with his striking employes.

He also made known through representatives that "any prior published statement" that he is "unalterably opposed to collective bargaining is erroneous." Ford heretofore generally has been regarded as a foe of the system, who set his own pay scales without employes advice.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, chairman of the board, was elated and at the end of a troublous day he predicted the board would be successful in ironing out all labor difficulties in the motor industry.

Later, in a radio broadcast, Wagner threatened violators of the board's arbitration efforts with recovery act penalties which range from $500-a-day fines to revocation of the right to do business.

"There'll Be No Escape."

"There will be no escape for the misguided minority who arise to interfere with every constructive program," he told his radio audience.

The statement was considered significant in view of the reluctance of Ford to accept board guidance and because of President Roosevelt's executive order of Tuesday imposing fines and jail terms on Blue Eagle chiselers. It adds another figurative brass knuckle to the administration's program to enforce its economic experiment with a mailed fist rather than to depend upon the "friendly cooperation" which it advertised when offering the NRA for sale to the public. There have been complaints of abuses under the early policy.

"The question frequently is raised whether the National Labor Board has any power to compulsion over those who are reluctant to appear before it or to abide by its decisions," Wagner said over the radio. "I do not like to answer this question because when you talk about compelling a man to do something you make him forget that it is to his best interest to do it voluntarily.

Says Board Has Power.

"Compulsion is necessary only when there is opposition and there should be no opposition to a board which has demonstrated its willingness and ability to assist every group. At the same time I want to stress the fact that the board has power. It is an essential part of the recovery program and is working hand in hand with the recovery administration.

"Any group which flouts the decisions of the board may be placed under a code embodying the conditions approved by the board. If the code is violated, the licensing provision and the other penalties of the recovery act may be invoked. There will be no escape for the misguided minority who arises to

Mellon Wins Back Tax Suit

Judge Holds No Statute Supports Action Aimed at Gulf Oil Heads.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 18 (AP).—Federal Judge R. M. Gibson today dismissed the $5,000,000 income tax suits filed four months ago against W. L. Mellon, president, and other officers of the Gulf Oil Corporation.

The judge held there is no statute under which David A. Olsen, of Washington, and Albert R. Knight, of Lansdowne, Pa., plaintiffs, could bring court action. The law under which charges were filed applies only to cases where the Government has been defrauded of something in its possession such as supplies, he stated.

Olsen, a former investigator for the Senate Banking Committee, and Knight, former Gulf Oil employe, had asked for $10,000,000 including penalties, claiming they were entitled to share in the sum collected.

Austria Nazi Trouble Brings Czech Threat

Dollfuss Warned Against Extreme Tendencies Through Press.

Vienna, Oct. 18 (AP).—Foreign Minister Edouard Benes of Czechoslovakia departed for home tonight after conferences with Chancellor Dolfuss, leaving the Austrian public pondering one of the strongest warnings in postwar years. This injunction was not to permit "extreme tendencies, such as have been so loudly proclaimed recently" to get the upper hand.

Benes personally brought no ultimatum to Dollfuss—at least a communique issued after the meeting mentioned only that they discussed negotiations regarding a trade treaty and political and economic questions.

On every Vienna news stand, however, and in every Vienna cafe lay original or reprinted copies of Benes' own newspaper, the Prager Presse, which warned that "friendly relations of Austria and Czechoslovakia can be effectively furthered only if no extreme tendencies win the upper hand in Austria."

Outwardly the visit was cordial. Dollfuss met Benes on his arrival and took the minister to his train when he left, even spending the final 15 minutes before the train pulled out, chatting with Benes in the latter's car.

The warning may have referred to Austrian measures against Nazis, hints of martial law, investigation of a reported nation-wide Nazi military organization, or disputes with Socialists.

Attacks on the Dollfuss government came today in the shape of handbills sent aloft in fleets of small balloons.

Dispatches from Salzburg said the balloons were sent up in wholesale quantities, apparently from Bavaria.

U. S. Asks Facts On Big Salaries

The undetermnied purpose behind the commission's inquiry was disturbing to some firms.

Publicity Aspect Hurts.

One source in the commission suggested that many firms would not like to reveal publicly the fat salaries and bonuses given their officers and directors. The questionnaires were accompanied by a letter from Dr. Francis Walker, commission economist, explaining the information was being collected pursuant of a resolution of the commission. Col. March stated this resolution was taken in accordance with the Senate order asking for a report on salary schedules of corporations engaged in interestate commerce.

The commission's letter stated no other reason than the Senate order in asking for the information. This was a source of uneasiness of some corporations, and New York sources said many of the firms were consulting their legal talent to determine whether the commission could force them to divulge the information. The consensus seemed to be that if any firms balked, Congress would require them to answer.

Sources at the commission pointed to top-heavy salaries paid executives as revealed in the Senate banking inquiry, and cited instances made public of corporation executives and directors receiving staggering bonuses, and abuses of granting stock subscription rights. It was indicated that any action on inequitable compensation revealed in the inquiry will be up to the Senate.

Corporations Irked.

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Answer to the ever-recurring question "How much does the boss make?" bluntly asked this week by the Federal Trade Commission, promises to come reluctantly, if at all, from the big corporations, some of which reward their "brain trusts" with salaries of six figures annually.

Coming on the heels of disclosure in Washington that Albert H. Wiggin, former chairman of the Chase National Bank, received total compensation of nearly $1,500,000 in the past five years and was granted a $100,000 annual pension for life when he retired last winter, the questionnaire was disturbing to many big corporation executives having headquarters here.

The paying of large salaries and bonuses received major attention in 1931 when a group of Bethlehem Steel Corporation stockholders sued the directors, charging excessive bonuses had been paid to officers and directors from 1917 to 1930.

Eugene Grace, president of the corporation, was alleged to have received $1,626,753 in salary and bonus for the year 1929 and $5,745,307 in the five-year period from 1925 to 1930.

Another discord arose in the American Tobacco Co. George Washington Hill, president, was reported to have received in 1931 a salary of $168,000 and a bonus of $850,000, bringing his total compensation for the year up to $1,018,000.

Strikingly large salaries are now being paid to life insurance heads, according to Alfred M. Best & Co., insurance reporters, who estimate that the average president's salary of the large companies is $135,000 per year.

22 Workers Burned In Film Studio Fire

Culver City, Calif., Oct. 18 (AP). Twenty-two laborers at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios here were burned, four of them seriously, in a fire of undetermined origin today.

All were treated at the studio's emergency hospital and released. Clyde Howard was overcome by smoke. Roy Vail, George Minnick and D. C. Buxton were seriously burned about the head, shoulders and hands, but physicians said their condition was not critical.

Speaks for Germany

Expounding the government's version of its action at Geneva, Konstantin von Neurath, German foreign minister, said that "there must not be a second disarmament of Germany" and sought to fix the responsibility for the "world's tangle" upon England and France.

Prisoner Hanged By Maryland Mob time being, but later it again came forward and this time came to hand-to-hand combat with the police.

In this melee, Capt. Johnson was knocked out by a flying brick.

The mob then secured timber from a nearby lumber yard and began battering on the jail door while the officers stood helpless nearby.

Sheriff Luther Dougherty reached the jail at this time and ran to the Negro's cell, crying, "don't break in here."

"The responsibility for Armwood's being at Princess Anne tonight," said Gov. Ritchie, "rests squarely on the shoulders of Judge Duer and State's Attorney Robins."

While Armwood was in Baltimore, where he was rushed to avoid a mob shortly after his capture, State police said he signed a statement admitting an attack on the woman.

Gov. Ritchie, after being informed of the lynching, said he had telegraphed Judge Duer and State's Attorney Robins that the State of Maryland was looking to them to set in motion all the forces of law to apprehend the mob members.

He ordered Police Commissioner Charles Gaither, of Baltimore, to send four officers to begin an outside inquiry.

The last lynching in Maryland occurred in the same section of Maryland's Eastern Shore two years ago.

Suit to Stop Newspaper Presses Protests Noise

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 18 (AP).—An injunction to stop the presses of the Arkansas Democrat was asked in a suit filed today by owners of a building adjoining the newspaper plant.

They allege the noise from the presses constituted a nuisance which prevented the renting of offices in the building, across a narrow alley.

British Report May Link U. S. To Berlin Row

Sir John Simon Offers to Print Records of His German Comment.

London, Oct. 18 (AP).—Political circles tonight discussed whether the United States may become involved indirectly in an Anglo-German controversy over the reasons for Germany's withdrawal from the disarmament conference.

One of the points at issue in this dispute, between the British foreign secretary, Sir John Simon, and Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath, of Germany, is whether Sir John fully stated to the United States Germany's position on disarmament.

Offers to Show Records.

Sir John has offered to "publish records and documents" to disprove a statement he attributed to Baron von Neurath, that he (Sir John) was spreading "untruthful statements" about the German foreign minister and "false views" of Germany's armament demands.

Justification of the Briton's stand, it was suggested in London today, could come from the United States, but authoritative quarters denied knowledge of any move to get Washington to corroborate the foreign minister's version.

In an address last night, Sir John said American Ambassador at Large Norman H. Davis could establish the truth of his remarks.

King Hears Version.

The foreign secretary held the ear of King George at Sandringham tonight and gave the monarch a first-hand account of the arms parley and the crisis.

Earlier today, Sir John reviewed the whole situation caused by Germany's action at Geneva during a conference with cabinet ministers, and it was indicated after a two-hour cabinet session that Great Britain fully supports the secretary.

The arms crisis displaced preparations for the opening of Parliament at the meeting. The cabinet may be reconvened before there is an announcement whether Great Britain will publish a white paper on the controversy, as Sir John declared he was ready to do.

Liverpool, England, Oct. 18 (AP). Viscount Hailsham, the British war secretary, said tonight the British government fully supports Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon in the stand he took on disarmament last week in Geneva.

Judge Blocks Jury Heart Balm Award

Former Tea Room Owner Loses $25,000 Verdict.

Philadelphia, Oct. 18 (AP).—The $25,000 verdict which a jury awarded to Mrs. Estelle Wolon, former tea room proprietress, of Chicago, in her breach of promise suit against Charles Newbold Welsh, Philadelphia banker, was set aside today in common pleas court.

President Judge Horace Stern reversed the jury's verdict on points of law. He said he would not act upon Welsh's motion for a new trial until the State supreme court, in the event of an appeal, shall have passed on his decision of today.

Wiggin Quizzed by Pecora On Chase Affiliate's Losses

quently to tell of other operations in which Chase Bank participated.

These included organization of the Metpotan Corporation, which between 1928 and 1932 traded in $864,000,000 worth of stock of its parent company and banks with which it consolidated.

Public Subscribed $68,343,785.

Pecora pointed out it was impossible legally for Chase National Bank to trade in its own stock. He promised to go more fully into operations of the Metpotan Corporation at hearings resuming at 10 a. m. today.

It was the $120,138,075 shrinkage in capitalization of the Chase Securities Corporation, however, that Percora made the piece de resistance of yetserday's testimony, pointing out that $117,000,000 of these transfers were made in the last three years.

He showed how $68,343,785 was subscribed by the public for stock in the company; $47,027,567 was issued against stock of absorbed companies; $41,081,900 was realized in net earnings, and $21,907,500 was paid in dividends to shareholders.

"It looks like you lost more than five times as much as you earned," Senator Couzens observed. "Do you consider that a good record?"

"It was a very unfortunate record," Wiggin replied. "But it was better than the average. Some companies were wiped out."

Wiggin's Lawyer Admonished.

Wiggin so frequently consulted his counsel, Martin Conboy, and Conboy so often volunteered advice, that both Pecora and Couzens admonished Conboy they wanted the witness' own opinions.

Couzens said he "objected to Conboy interrupting and making speeches in the record."

Conboy told the committee he did not think he was "making speeches," and asked what the status of counsel was before the committee if he could not advise his client.

Couzens said his only objection was to "two or there people talking at the same time."

Pecora quoted from reports of national bank examiners over a period of three years, 1928, 1929 and 1930, all laudatory to Wiggin and pointing to him as the "dominating" influence in Chase National Bank. The report for 1929 declared him "the most popular banker in Wall street."

Pecora asked if it were true he "dictated" the bank's policies.

"That was an exaggeration," said Wiggin.

Senator Couzens wanted to know if there are any former examiners in the Chase National Bank.

Consulting his associates, Wiggin replied that four former bank examiners held official positions in the bank.

"Would you favor a law prohibiting examiners from making bank connections for two years after they leave office?" the Michigan Senator inquired.

"I think it would be a good thing," Wiggin replied. "Some who are ambitious to connect with a bank might use their job for that purpose."

He said he did not think any such ambition would lead them to make commendatory reports of bank officials.

Following the morning hearing, Chairman Fletcher called an executive session to consider a list of so-called "rescue parties" in which Chase National Bank was said to have participated.

"Rescue Loans" Are Dropped.

Wiggin testified Tuesday that "rescue loans" and mergers were sometimes made "to avoid trouble."

After the executive conference, Fletcher announced the committee would inquire no farther into the matter.

"It would serve no public interest, and would not add to the information we consider necessary," he said.

Earlier, Wiggin said the disclosure "might damage somebody."

Dividends Until 1931.

Of the $120,138,075 transferred from surplus and undivided profits of the Chase Securities Corporation to offset losses and mark-downs in securities, Pecora brought out that $117,303,927 was shifted in the last 3½ years as follows: 1930, $19,602,638; 1931, $51,987,313; 1932, $4,713,876; and the first six months of 1933, $41,000,000.

The corporation continued to pay dividends, aggregating $21,907,500, until 1931. Wiggin testified Tuesday the corporation is now being liquidated. This process was undertaken by W. W. Aldrich, present chairman of the board, when he succeeded Wiggin in December last year. Aldrich, attending the hearings, has not yet been called to the stand.

Early yesterday Pecora brought out that shares in Chase National Bank were split five for one in 1929.

When the split was made par value of the bank stock was reduced from $100 to $20, and the market price, $980 a share, fell to $195.

Figures in NRA Dispute

interfere with every constructive program."

Wagner combined with his warning a denunciation of strikes, pointing out that while strikes are legal, labor must abandon them as "a first resort." During September, he said, 5,000,000 working days were lost because of strikes and, although in many instances the strikers were in accord with the recovery act and the employers were not, the "tactics constitute a drain upon the potential wealth of the country which can never be replaced and are unlikely to confer lasting benefits on the workers."

New Hope Indicated.

"I want to emphasize that we should not look with unmixed alarm upon the strikes which have broken out in various parts of the country," he added. "Strikes always have accompanied industrial revivals and they indicate that labor is filled with new hopes for the future.

"Insofar as many of these disputes involve the right to collective bargaining, the workers are in accord with the principles of the recovery act and the objectives which they seek are justified in some other instances. However, I think there has been a failure in most cases to distinguish between means and ends."

Wagner, seeking for some time to terminate the Ford strikes at Edgewater, N. J., and Chester, Pa., announced Tuesday the Ford Motor Co. had telegraphed him its willingness to "meet authorized representatives of its employes" and that as a result a meeting of strikers and managers of the Ford Edgewater plant was arranged for yesterday at Newark headquarters of the NRA.

The abitration session, however, met under a cloud of defiance because a Detroit spokesman of Ford was quoted as having declared, meanwhile, that Wagner's interpretation of the Ford telegram, that "the company is prepared to meet authorized representatives of their employes," was erroneous—that its telegram had been of "quite a different tenor."

As a result of all this, Wagner told newspaper men, the strikers who had gone to Newark were ready to begin conferences, but the officials of the Edgewater plant—Superintendent N. S. Brown and W. E. Moak—"expressed doubt of their authority to confer" and therefore telephoned Dearborn, the Ford headquarters, for instructions.

However, later in the day, Wagner related, the officials said they were instructed to state that they would deal collectively with their own employes.

"They declared themselves prepared to confer with the employes' committee at the Edgewater plant at 10 a. m. tomorrow (Thursday). The New Jersey NRA officers and the National Labor Board's representative, Gordon Wagenet, communicated this proposal to the strikers' committee in the next room and the committee agreed to the meeting.

Will Confer Alone.

"The conference will take place between the Ford officials and the strikers' committee alone. Our board's representatives will be within call should the conference desire the board's services to arbitrate any differences.

"The Ford representatives expressed a willingness to discuss every matter in dispute, with one reservation as regards taking all employes back immediately, meaning there is not enough work for them now.

"Finally, the Ford representatives desired it to be known that certain statements were without foundation. They declared to the conferees that any prior published statement that Henry Ford is unalterably opposed to collective bargaining is erroneous."

NRA Deal Is Denied.

Detroit, Oct. 18 (AP).—A spokesman for the Ford Motor Co., nonsigner of the NRA auto code, said tonight that if there is any conference between Ford representatives and employes of the Edgewater, N. J., Ford plant over labor difficulties, it will be held "as it always has, and will not be arranged or conducted through the National Labor Board."

Discussing the statement of Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the Labor Board, that Ford officials and employes of the Edgewater plant would confer tomorrow on a strike at the plant, the spokesman said:

"Ford is always ready to hear any of his employes. If any man has asked to talk with the manager of our Edgewater plant, he has a perfect right to confer with them. He has always had this right. The National Labor Board will have nothing to do with it."

The spokesman clearly indicated that the Ford company is not dealing with the National Labor Board, and has no intention of adopting any such policy.

Wartime Aviator Ordered Retired

Maj. Kirby Will Leave Active Service Oct. 31.

Maj. Maxwell Kirby, post operations officer, Langley Field, Va., will be relieved of active duty October 31, and in an order issued yesterday was ordered to his home to await retirement.

An Army wartime flier, Maj. Kirby suffered serious injurles June 19, when he leaped from a burning plane near Great Mills, Md. His parachute did not break the full force of his fall.

Serving with the Ninety-fourth Aero Squadron in the Meuse-Argonne offensive during the World War, Maj. Kirby was cited for gallantry in action. After the war he was in charge of the Air Corps R. O. T. C. at the University of Illinois, and also served in the Hawaiian Department. His home is in Roseville, Calif.

Crops Ripe

Harvest on at Birthplace of Washington.

Harvest time has returned to Wakefield, historic birthplace of George Washington, and a typical "colonial crop" is being gathered under the direction of Superintendent Philip R. Hough, of the George Washington Birthplace National Monument.

Part of the scheme of restoration of the estate consisted of planting typically colonial gardens. One of these is for flowers and the other for plantation crops.

Mr. Hough announced that tobacco already has been cut and hung to dry in an old shed, in true colonial fashion. The tobacco is described as being ragged in appearance, but of a type suitable for "twists."

Peanuts, another of the colonial crops, are in good shape and promise a fine harvest. The peanuts will be fed to wild life in the area during the winter.

Hitler Smashed 4-Power Pact, Paris Declares

Arms Parley Bolt Kills 10-Year Peace Treaty, Officials Assert.

Paris, Oct. 18 (AP).—The French foreign affairs commission came to the conclusion today that the four-power Western European 10-year peace pact was killed in its first test, Germany's withdrawal from the arms conference.

When Premier Daladier told the Chamber of Deputies yesterday that France was ready to resume arms discussions and challenged Germany's action, he significantly avoided mentioning the agreement that France, Great Britain, Germany and Italy signed in July.

French leaders believed that Chancellor Hitler's explosion on Saturday, when he announced the withdrawal and termed the disarmament conference a failure, definitely rendered the four-power concord useless.

Its opponents added that the commission's stand was the first step toward a "first class funeral."

The commission, a body of the Chamber of Deputies, took no vote in the matter, but its officers said the opinion was virtually unanimous.

It was recalled that France had accepted the pact reluctantly and that Premier Daladier had successfully insisted that it be kept within the framework of the league. With Germany out of the league, political quarters asked how the pact could possibly survive.

The principal point of the agreement was the collaboration of the four nations so that provisions of the 1925 Locarno pact would include economic collaboration as well.

The treaty embodied the Kellogg pact, the League of Nations covenant and last December's agreement pledging German arms equality.

Paris, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—A move to establish a government monopoly on the manufacture and sale of arms and munitions was defeated tonight when the finance committee of the Chamber of Deputies reversed itself and rejected its earlier approval of the project.

The rejection followed a warning from Premier Edouard Daladier that the action would wreck the 1934 budget.

The premier's insistence aroused the resentment of the Socialists, whose leader, Leon Blum, submitted the original arms monopoly resolution to the finance committee. It was defeated on the second reading.

Auto Crash Kills Woman, Injures 5

California Travelers in Arkansas Collision.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 18 (AP).—Mrs. Josephine Hall, 60, of Southgate, Calif., was killed and five other persons injured, including Carl Graves, Memphis public defender, when two automobiles collided 2 miles west of West Memphis, Ark., this afternoon.

W. O. Hall, her husband, was injured. The others injured were Fred Roescher, deputy county court clerk, Memphis, and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Ferguson, Hopkinsville, Ky. Mrs. Ferguson is a sister of Mrs. Hall.

Graves was said to have been going on a fishing trip. The Fergusons and Halls were returning from California.

SPECIAL NOTICES

NOTICE.

To all persons having claims against MISSOURI STATE LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY:

Notice is hereby given that the Circuit Court of the State of Missouri within and for the City of St. Louis, in the case of R. EMMET O'MALLEY, SUPERINTENDENT OF THE INSURANCE DEPARTMENT OF THE STATE OF MISSOURI, plaintiff, vs. MISSOURI STATE LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, defendant, entered the following order of record under date of September 16, 1933, concerning filing of claims of creditors:

ORDER.

On due consideration of the application of the Superintendent of the Insurance Department of the State of Missouri, in charge of the affairs of the Missouri State Life Insurance Company, for an order determining a reasonable time and manner within which claims may be filed or evidenced as provided by Section 5949, Revised Statutes of Missouri, 1929, and the Court having seen and read said application and being fully advised in the premises thereof:

It is hereby ordered, adjudged and decreed by the Court that all persons having on or prior to September 7th, 1933, claims, of any kind or character against the Missouri State Life Insurance Company, whether under policies, contracts or other obligations, shall file such claims with plaintiff, as Superintendent of the Insurance Department of the State of Missouri, in charge of the affairs of the Missouri State Life Insurance Company, on or before the 15TH DAY OF DECEMBER, 1933;

That, immediately upon receipt of all such claims, the same be stamped with the date of receipt thereon, and thereafter all such claims be presented to Hon. Joseph F. Holland, who is hereby appointed Commissioner of this Court to hear, determine and pass upon the allowance or disallowance of said claims; that said Commissioner give to such claimants so presenting and filing a claim in this estate notice of the time and place of meeting for the purpose of deciding said claims.

Each claim so filed in this estate must be filed in duplicate. Each claim shall set forth the name of the creditor or claimant, the nature of the claim, the dates of accrual and the amounts of the various items with such details as shall definitely advise the plaintiff of the particulars thereof and distinguish the claim from other claims of like nature, and shall state whether suit is pending on such claim and, if so, the name of the court in which pending, and shall describe any security for such claim, partial payments, offsets or counter-claims due the Missouri State Life Insurance Company and if any lien, priority or preferential classification is claimed, the facts regarding same shall be fully stated. The commissioner aforesaid may, in his discretion, in any instance require any such claims to be made more specific or to be accompanied by a Bill of Particulars. Claims shall be verified by persons having knowledge of the facts.

Claims now or hereafter pending in any Court or tribunal of competent jurisdiction shall be filed in this proceeding as hereinbefore in this order specified and within the time herein designated, but, except as otherwise herein provided, may be liquidated in the jurisdiction where pending, subject to right of review or appeal;

That, upon final adjudication of any such claims now pending in any court of competent jurisdiction, notice of such fact be given to plaintiff within sixty days after final determination of any such claims. Nothing herein contained shall relieve the owner and holder of any such claim from filing a proof of claim in the time and manner hereinbefore provided. All claims or demands existing on or prior to the 7th day of September, 1933, against the Missouri State Life Insurance Company or its property or the Superintendent of the Insurance Department of the State of Missouri, as its successor, which are not now in litigation, shall be presented to and tried before the commissioner hereinbefore appointed, and within the time fixed by said commissioner for the hearing on said claims.

The time hereinbefore provided for the filing of claims to which this order is applicable is hereby determined to be a reasonable time for such purpose, and any creditor neglecting to present his claim within the time fixed by this order shall be debarred of all right to share in the assets of said Missouri State Life Insurance Company, except upon further order of this court for cause shown:

That a copy of this order shall be promptly published by plaintiff once during each week for four consecutive weeks in some daily or weekly publication in each of the following cities in States in which the Missouri State Life Insurance Company was authorized to transact business on the 28th day of August, 1933: Montgomery, Alabama; Phoenix, Arizona; Little Rock, Arkansas; San Francisco, California; Denver, Colorado; Washington, D. C.; Tallahassee, Florida; Atlanta, Georgia; Honolulu, T. H.; Boise City, Idaho; Springfield, Illinois; Indianapolis, Indiana; Des Moines, Iowa; Topeka, Kansas; Frankfort, Kentucky; Baton Rouge, Louisiana; Baltimore, Maryland; Lansing, Michigan; St. Paul, Minnesota; Jackson, Mississippi; St. Louis, Missouri; Helena, Montana; Lincoln, Nebraska; Carson City, Nevada; Santa Fe, New Mexico; Raleigh, North Carolina; Bismarck, North Dakota; Columbus, Ohio; Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; Salem, Oregon; Harrisburg, Pennsylvania; Columbia, South Carolina; Pierre, South Dakota; Austin, Texas; Salt Lake City, Utah; Richmond, Virginia; Olympia, Washington; Charleston, West Virginia; and Cheyenne, Wyoming; and a copy of this order may be mailed to each known creditor, policyholder and stockholder of Missouri State Life Insurance Company, at his last known postoffice address as the same appears on the books or records of said Company; but the publication of notice as aforesaid shall be the only notice of this order which shall be required to be given, and shall be deemed conclusive notice thereof to all such creditors, policyholders and stockholders, and holders of claims against said Missouri State Life Insurance Company.

The Court reserves jurisdiction to amplify, extend, limit, abrogate or otherwise modify this order as the Court may deem proper.

Dated September 16, 1933.

H. A. HAMILTON, Judge.

All claims should be mailed to R. Emmet O'Malley, Superintendent of the Insurance Department of the State of Missouri, Fourth Floor, Missouri State Life Building, Fifteenth and Locust streets, St. Louis, Missouri.

WHAT A SHAME!

THAT's what the world says—with a shrug of the shoulder—about the man who is a victim of alcohol.

Every reputable liquor dealer recognizes drunkenness as the greatest enemy of his business.

Nobody offers to help, because nobody has patience for this form of personal weakness.

But any alcoholic can be helped by using Dr. Siegert's ANGOSTURA, that delicious flavoring, in his food. Use it plentifully on grapefruit, in tomato juice and fruit cocktail; in the soup, the sauces, gravies and salads; in ice cream, custards, pies, stewed and preserved fruits.

It not only creates the desire for food, which destroys the craving for alcohol, but it stimulates the stomach secretions, so necessary to digestion, which are rendered inactive by over-indulgence in alcohol.

Price Fixing Action Taken By Roosevelt

Holds 4-Hour Conference With Warring Aids to Speed Decision.

Retail price fixing, long sharply debated in NRA code negotiations, yesterday drew the personal attention of President Roosevelt.

The President intervened to speed a decision and settle a dispute betwen Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, and Secretary Wallace, leaders of conflicting schools of thought on the problem.

Marked progress toward a solution was reported after a four-hour conference between the President, Johnson, Wallace and other officials concerned. Definite action is expected shortly.

Johnson insisted a majority of retailers favor a provision to restrict merchants from selling at less than wholesale invoice cost plus 10 per cent for labor costs. The administrator argued such a clause was of vital importance.

Called Demoralizing.

Wallace and George N. Peek, farm administrator, contended the cost-plus arrangement would demoralize the buying power of farmers and consumers generally. In handling wholesale and retail grocery codes Wallace and Peek eliminated the controversial provision because they involved farm products.

No merchant, Wallace submitted, could operate on a cost-plus-10-percent basis and make a profit. He declared the provision would outlaw "loss leader" selling by some stores under which customers for other merchandise are enticed by bargains.

At the same time the Federal Trade Commission reported that a survey disclosed such price cutting was a usual practice of chain stores in meeting competition.

The inquiry, conducted at senatorial direction, found that large chain stores possessed an important competitive weapon in their abiltiy to cut prices in a single locality because they could draw on the chain's entire resources for a special small business battle.

Price Slashes Quoted.

A variety chain official was quoted by the commission as saying:

"Rather than simply cut prices to meet competition, we prefer to shoot specials into the town until the competitor gives up his warfare."

Referring to competition, a candy chain executive commented:

"We meet and beat it, and this applies to all kinds of competitors and all lines of merchandise carried."

The customary lunch hour was disregarded at the White House conference. Present in addition to Mr. Roosevelt were Mr. Johnson, Wallace, Peek, Secretary Perkins, Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator; Walter C. Teagle, chairman of the NRA Industrial Recovery Board and president of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey; Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey, chairman of the NRA Consumers Advisory Board; Donald R. Richberg, NRA general counsel, and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

tions". But the coordinating process hasn't carried as far as compiling a list of the various corporations which are dispensing emergency funds, for every one in the executive offices of the council professed complete ignorance on the subject.

"Try the Bureau of the Budget," it was suggested.

Not such a good idea, that.

In the Bureau of the Budget it was said no record of corporations established recently was kept there—only those of which Mr. Douglas was a member were noted at all, despite the fact that the Budget Director may be exceedingly concerned with the expenditures sooner or later.

"Try the Treasury," volunteered the director's secretary.

More Buck Passing.

Well, the Treasury, from Mr. Woodin on down, didn't know anything about a list of such corporations, hadn't concerned itself with compiling one, although it does hand out money liberally on request.

"How about the Central Statistics Bureau?" it was proposed.

Mr. Riefler, the Statistical Bureau's chairman, quite frankly knew nothing about corporations; even suggested it would be a good idea to have some one central source of information on them.

"Perhaps the NRA might know?"

No, it wasn't any of the NRA's concern.

The AAA knew all about its own corporation for buying beef or poultry or cotton; the FERA knew about its new corporation to purchase food and fuel for the needy; the RFC had its bank relief measures well in hand; the HOLC and the FFCA knew their own particular ABC's. But despite the fact that it was all money, no matter what it was spent for, no one knew about the business of Government corporations as a whole.

Ah! A Suggestion.

Finally, the bright suggestion was made that as most of these corporations had come about as a result of Executive order, probably the White House had the complete list.

By this time the inquirer was slightly skeptical, but game. And Mr. Stephen Early, the President's secretary, is an old newspaperman himself. So it was put up to Steve.

Leave it to a newspaperman to solve the problem!

Society Matron Asks Annulment

MRS. EDITH ALLEN MATTHEWS.

D. C. Society Matron Sues For Annulment

Court Finds She Is One of "Gay Lothario's" Three Wives.

A Washington society matron yesterday asked a White Plains, N. Y., court for annulment of her marriage to a salesman described by the judge as "a gay Lothario."

The petitioner, Miss Edith Isadora Allen, 2230 California street northwest, is a daughter of Capt. Walter H. Allen, U. S. Navy, and a niece of J. Weston Allen, former attorney general of Massachusetts. She is 26 years old, marriage records here show.

Miss Allen, it developed, is one of three young women who wish the courts to sever matrimonial ties binding them to James C. Matthews, 38, of Sennett, N. Y.

Justice William F. Bleakley was told, according to press dispatches, that Matthews married three women in less than six years. The first, Miss Edna Byrd, was granted an annulment February 2, 1927. The decree would have been final in three months. Miss Charlotte Kohn, of New York, was the second.

On February 28, 1927, Miss Kohn charged, Matthews married her. Miss Allen charged Matthews married her on May 20, 1933, in Yonkers, N. Y., in a civil ceremony, followed four days later by a wedding at St. James' Church here. The Rev. S. W. Atkinson officiated.

Justice Bleakley commented, on hearing the charges brought by the women:

"All three of those young women appear to be the victims of a gay Lothario. They probably all would be better off if they do not see him again." Decision was reserved.

Matthews is a salesman, and is 38 years old.

Miss Allen has been interested in amateur theatrical work for several years. She was considered a talented drama student at Yale University.

W.C.T.U. Plans 'Buy Dry' Drive

Beer Sellers Are Charged With Tempting Students.

Problems of liquor control and the situation to confront Washington after repeal of the eighteenth amendment were outlined yesterday before the fifty-ninth annual convention of the District of Columbia Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Meeting in the Hamline Methodist Episcopal Church, Sixteenth and Allison streets northwest, the W. C. T. U. and committee of 100 joined forces to launch a "buy dry" campaign. A proposal to boycott establishments selling legal beer was referred to an advisory committee.

Distribution of circulars, quoting beer prices and brands, to students of Central High School brought severe criticism. Printed blotters, distributed by a local brewery, were read. It was charged high-school pupils were handed these circulars "just outside the school walls."

Mrs. W. Hiram Wadleigh, president of the local union, reported on the national convention in Milwaukee last July.

Speakers included Dr. Joy Morgan, of the National Education Association, and Dr. Deets Pickett, of the Methodist Board of Temperance. They urged a war against liquor traffic.

The meeting will continue today with election of officers and committee reports.

Georgia Sailor Killed In Battleship Scuffle

San Pedro, Calif., Oct. 18 (AP).—James F. Harrison, a seaman from Grovania, Ga., was killed today during a friendly scuffle with J. S. De Jarnette, jr., another seaman, aboard the U. S. S. Pennsylvania.

Harrison was thrown to the deck of the battleship and his neck was fractured.

Meeting Asks New Standards For NRA Codes

Joint Action Planned on Definitions Fixing Fair Practices.

Nationally known leaders in commercial standardization work will meet with Bureau of Standards experts in the Commerce Building auditorium today to consider establishing acceptable quality standards under the NRA codes.

The conference also will consider steps to coordinate Governmental and private research in the interest of economy. Secretary of Commerce Roper will open the conference at 10 a. m.

More than 75 NRA codes now in effect were found to lack satisfactory definitions of standard grades and qualities. Because of the sharp curtailment in the Bureau of Standards appropriations this year, the necessary additional research can not be carried on wholly by the Government.

The American Standards Association, which two months ago took over a long list of Bureau of Standards projects, has been asked to expand its activities further to care for much of the essential NRA work.

Enforcement of the fair practice codes will be delayed in many instances, officials said, until nationally acceptable standards of grade and quality have been established.

Bullets Halt Move For Church Peace

Jonesboro Roused by Firing on Pastor in Cell.

Jonesboro, Ark., Oct. 18 (AP).—An attempt to assassinate the Rev. Dale Crowley, pastor of the strife-torn Baptist Tabernacle here, has halted peace negotiations between warrnig factions of the church.

The attempt was made last night as the pastor slept in jail, where he is held on a charge of killing the church janitor, W. J. MacMurdo. A burst of pistol bullets fired into his cell failed to strike the minister.

Baker Urges Race Tolerance in U. S.

Nation Is Asked to Avoid Condition Abroad.

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, former Secretary of War, asked today on behalf of the National Conference of Jews and Christians that "the outbreak of intolerance abroad not be duplicated in this country."

His statement came after a conference of cochairmen of the organization—Roger W. Straus, representing the Jewish religion; Prof. Carlton J. H. Hayes, the Catholic religion, and Mr. Baker, the Protestant religion.

Civic Group Reelects Dr. G. H. Richardson

Dr. George H. Richardson, for many years president of the Federation of Civic Associations, was reelected last night president of the Public Interest Association of Northeast Washington at a meeting in Calvary Parish Hall. His resignation was tendered, but refused.

Other officers elected included Sedwick Landers, vice president; H. H. Shackleford, secretary; E. H. Smith, treasurer.

Tennesseean Convicted Of Killing Wife, 3 Tots

Jacksboro, Tenn., Oct. 18 (AP).—Floyd Johnson, 27, LaFollette filling station operator, was convicted by a Campbell County jury today on a charge of burning his wife and three children to death the night of August 30. The jury recommended 21 years in the State penitentiary.

Dr. Edwin Crawley Dies.

Philadelphia, Oct. 18 (AP).—Dr. Edwin Schofield Crawley, professor emeritus of mathematics at the University of Pennsylvania died today.

Senators Told Of Propaganda By Ship Lines

Owners and Builders Pay, Mail Contract Probe Witness Says.

Propaganda and publicity activities of the Middle West Foreign Trade Committee are supported almost entirely by steamship owners and builders, it was revealed at yesterday's hearing before the Senate committee investigating ocean mail contracts.

Malcolm S. Stewart, chairman of the committee, told the senators his committee's income of nearly $20,000 a year came principally from owners and builders, although a small part was received in contributions of $5 a year or thereabouts from 800 other individuals and companies interested in shipping subsidies.

Stewart, maintaining that his committee favored anything that would promote the American merchant marine, declared if Government aid were withheld the United States would be caught without adequate shipping facilities as it was in 1914.

Forecasts "Cataclysm."

"You don't have to be a philosopher to realize that another great international cataclysm is coming within at least two years—maybe sooner," said the witness.

"At the outbreak of the World War, foreign vessels deserted our ports and we were left without shipping facilities because we did not have our own."

Stewart pointed out that in 1926, during the general strike in England, the American merchant marine had been developed and took the place of foreign vessels called to carry coal to England.

Ira Campbell Mentioned.

The name of Ira Campbell, former Washington counsel for the steamship owners association, was introduced when Stewart was questioned as to his organization's Washington lobbying activities.

"There are many people who have a more powerful influence in Washington than we have," said Stewart. "Ira Campbell, for example, had great influence with Congress."

Questioned on the Black Diamond Steamship fight with the United States Lines to buy the Black Diamond vesssels from the Shipping Board, Sewart explained he contaced congressmen for the Black Diamond.

Big Salaries Cited.

Senator Black concluded the hearing with a long series of questions, all of which the witness answered in the negative.

"Do you favor a subsidy to a company, one official of which spends more than $300,000 a year personally for salary and entertainment?" queried the chairman. "Do you favor subsidies for companies that also have boats under foreign flags? Do you favor subsidies for companies already making high profits?"

Lachlan MacLeay, of the Mississippi Valley Association, will be questioned today.

Cabinet Soviet Parley Denied

White House Spikes New Rumor U. S. Plans Recognition.

Recurrent reports that the United States is about to recognize Russia continue to be discounted by authoritative State Department sources, and the White House felt called upon yesterday to issue formal denial of the latest similar report which was to the effect that the subject had been discussed in the last Cabinet meeting.

The subject has not been mentioned in a Cabinet meeting, so the President authorized one of his secretaries to say when the newest report was circulated. Nor has the recognition issue progressed at the State Department, where officials have been too preoccupied with other problems to consider it at all for the last few weeks.

Yesterday's revival of the early recognition rumor apparently emanated from ex-Senator Brookhart's vain effort during the day to see President Roosevelt. Brookhart continues to be a tireless champion of recognition.

Mr. Tucker is living with his parents in Eureka, Kans. Mrs. Tucker, jr., the former Bessie McKildin, has been with the Palmers since the separation, several months ago.

Publisher Tells Of New Moves To Gag Press

McCormick Cites 6 Recent Acts of Government Against Freedom.

Chicago, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Six new devices for curtailing freedom of the press have made their appearance in Government, Col. Robert R. McCormick, Chicago publisher, told the Inland Daily Press Association today.

Col. McCormick listed them as follows:

1. Attempted seizure of land on which newspapers are printed.
2. Attempted transfers of newspaper editors to a prejudiced jurisdiction.
3. Classification of newspapers as corporations and consequent banning of political editorials.
4. Claims that city governments can be libeled.
5. Use of injunctions against newspaper publication.
6. Pretenses, by some courts, of contempt of court.

The publishers drew parallels between these and the old licensing of the press under Henry VII of England and other monarchs. He asked for a careful scrutiny of the new enactments, including the "codes of fair practice" under the National Industrial Recovery act.

He characterized his talk as a lecture of a legal nature and he made lavish use of the histories of important cases which mark development of the concept of freedom of the press.

"Within the last ten years," he said, "efforts to destroy the freedom of the press have been renewed. In the Northwestern part of the country suppression of the free press has made substantial strides. According to the laws of Wisconsin, it is illegal for any newspaper to print political editorials.

"The original provisions of the Constitution of this country," he added, "did not include the freedom of the press. The States forced its inclusion."

Holmes Again Raps Texas Co. Policies

Former Head Resumes "Battle of Proxies."

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—R. C. Holmes, a director and former president of the Texas Corporation, today renewed his "battle of proxies" with the present management of the corporation, with whom he is at odds over policies.

In a pamphlet addressed to stockholders Holmes accused "the so-called Lapham group" on the board of directors of "coercing" stockholder-employes of the corporation "into turning over to their superiors the proxy blanks sent them" in an effort to block the calling of a special meeting of the board recently requested by a group of stockholders.

Holmes quit as chairman of the board last May, following differences with the Lapham interests. A month earlier he had been succeeded as president by W. S. S. Rodgers.

Garner, Farley On Good-Will Tour of Texas

Democratic Leaders Fly to Fort Worth for Dedication.

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 18 (AP).—Vice President John N. Garner and Postmaster General James A. Farley flew here today to start a Democratic good-will tour of Texas.

Dedication of the Southern headquarters building of the American Airways was the first work at hand. Garner said Texans had a soft place in their hearts for President Roosevelt.

"We not only love him as an individual," he said, "but for the great work he has done to relieve the suffering of 125,000,000 persons. He has brought order out of chaos."

Garner introduced Farley, who said the President had asked him to convey to Texas "his kindest greetings." To Garner, he added:

"The President is looking forward with anticipation to your return to Washington to assist him in the work he is doing."

Farley and Garner will attend the cornerstone laying at the new $1,000,000 Federal Building tomorrow. The Democratic chiefs also will be the guests of W. T. Waggoner at the opening of the Arlington Downs race track.

Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson arrived for receptions for Garner and Farley at Arlington Downs and Dallas.

Canadian Rail Head Dies of Heart Attack

Winnipeg, Oct. 18 (AP).—En route to his home in Toronto, A. D. Miles, president of Central Manitoba Mines, Ltd., and a former managing director of the International Nickel Co., died aboard a Canadian Pacific Railway train tonight.

Stricken with a heart attack, Mr. Miles was dead when medical aid was obtained at Whitemouth, Manatoba.

Cannon Heiress Sued for Divorce

Former Charlotte Mayor Files in Reno.

Reno, Nev., Oct. 18 (AP).—Charles E. Lambeth, former Mayor of Charlotte, N. C., and one-time candidate for Congress, filed suit for divorce here today against Laura Cannon Lambeth, charging extreme cruelty.

Mrs. Lambeth is a daughter of the late John Cannon, towel mills magnate, and an aunt of Ann Cannon Reynolds Smith, who divorced the late Z. Smith Reynolds here November 23, 1931.

They married at Concord, N. C., November 24, 1915.

Cuba Will Seek Labor Solution

Government Will Deport Unemployed Foreign Workmen.

Havana, Oct. 18 (AP).—Drawing the line between Socialism and Communism, the Cuban government tonight mustered its forces for an attack on labor problems.

Meanwhile, a strike of bakers and bakery deliverymen in Havana caused concern as the bread supply ran short.

Disorder was reported at the Jaronu sugar mill at Neuvitas, in Camaguey Province, and reports from Santiago said striking manganese miners at the Bethlehem mines at Daiquir destroyed railroad tracks.

The government announced that Pedro Stodolsky, Russian leader of the "Soviet" regime of workers at the Senado sugar mill, in Camaguey Province, had been arrested.

Secretary of the Interior Antonio Guiteras declared that President Grau would order the deportation of all unemployed foreigners who have become public charges and will prohibit entry of Haitian and British West Indian laborers.

Rubber Heel Fortune Awarded to Charity

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 18 (AP).—Disposition of the $400,000 estate of the late Humphrey O'Sullivan, one-time rubber heel manufacturer, contested more than two years, was allowed in probate court here today, the estate to go in trust for charity under administration of William Cardinal O'Connell, archbishop of Boston.

NRA Enforcement Agency Predicted

Roper Forecasts Federal Compliance Action.

Early establishment of an NRA enforcement and compliance agency was predicted yesterday by Secretary of Commerce Roper, chairman of the NRA Cabinet Board.

A committee representing departments and agencies has been at work on the problem for several weeks. Recommendations of this committee probably will go to President Roosevelt early next week, Mr. Roper said.

Committee members have indicated all enforcement and compliance work might be turned over to the Federal Trade Commission and the Justice Department. NRA reprsesentatives, on the other hand, have favored creation of a permanent enforcement agency under Administrator Johnson.

Cotton Mill Leaders Hail NRA Victory

"Back to Predepression Levels" Is Textile Institute Claim.

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—A picture of whirring spindles and fatter pay envelopes in the Nation's cotton mills was drawn by speakers today at the eighth annual meeting of the Cotton Textile Institute.

George A. Sloan, president, said the National Recovery Administration helped the industry add thousands of workers to its pay rolls and boost wages.

Declaring employment figures were "back to predepression levels" and the weekly pay roll was 100 per cent higher than that of early March, he said:

"The 40-hour week had the effect of reducing the working week in cotton manufacturing an average of 25 per cent. An employment survey brought out that during the last week of August the number of persons on mill pay rolls had increased by 140,000.

"The average wage for seven groups in 1932 that earned more than the minimum wage now prescribed by the code was 34.9 cents an hour; in August, 1933, the average for the same groups was 43.9 cents an hour. Furthermore, the August, 1933, rate was about 40 per cent in excess of the code minimum."

Sloan was reelected president by the board of directors.

15-Cent Cotton Asked.

New Orleans, Oct. 18 (AP).—The American Cotton Cooperative Association today demanded 15-cent cotton, as fulfillment of the administration's pledge of prewar parity, and urged that the Government immediately advance 4 cents a pound to holders of "plow up" options to prevent dumping of 2,400,000 bales.

Increase of the cotton loan to 15 cents a pound was asked as soon as growers have fulfilled their 1934 acreage reduction pledge. Unless the 4 cent advance is made, it was asserted, the 660,000 farmers holding such options would probably soon dump them on the market because of their dire need for cash.

U. S. May Ask Low Price on Relief Coal

Plans Made to Issue Fuel to Needy.

The Federal Relief Administration yesterday was mapping plans for the distribution of thousands of tons of coal among the Nation's needy during the winter.

Retailers, railroads and coal operators may be called upon to reduce rates on relief coal. Operators probably will be asked to name committees to confer with the Relief Administration.

One tentative plan would permit needy to obtain coal orders from local relief agencies.

Larger Cotton Plants Barred

Johnson Approves Ban on Equipment Additions to Balk Increase.

The NRA yesterday ruled that installation of equipment to expand production of the cotton textile industry will be permitted only upon issuance of certificates by the administrator.

The ruling was regarded as a significant step toward control of production to curtail surpluses.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator, approved the regulations upon recommendation of the Cotton Textile Industry committee. The committee is the planning and fair practice agency created under the cotton textile code, which provided for machinery restrictions if the necessity was indicated.

Certificates will not be required for replacement units or for those needed "to bring operation of existing productive machinery into balance."

Tariff Changes May Be Made To Assist NRA

President Due to Order Study of Imports by Commission.

An executive order directing the Tariff Commission to investigate imports to determine what, if any, restrictions should be put on foreign goods to keep them from destroying the domestic production price balance sought under the industrial recovery program yesterday was reported well on its way to the White House for President Roosevelt's promulgation.

The order has been prepared and is being passed upon by governmental agencies.

Almost from the inception of the codes setting wages, hours and trade practices, industrial groups have insisted they must be protected from competition of foreign goods.

One of the chief reasons offered as to why forethought has been given the NRA-tariff adjustment procedure was that care must be taken not to prescribe unwise restrictions of any imports, particularly at a time when reciprocal tariff agreements loom large.

Because the recovery act provided only for reducing imports if conditions warranted, the trend would be, in effect, toward higher tariffs if any changes were made; whereas the proposed reciprocal facts would involve mutually easier regulations as between the United States and other countries.

Imports as a whole have gone up steadily—from $88,107,000 in April to $147,196,000 in August—but it was made clear that this by no means presaged a wholesale clamping down on imports. Some officials pointed to increased buying under the recovery program.

Latest Tariff Commission figures showed how the value of United States imports have risen during the NRA period from the 1933 mark of $84,164,000 in February; March, $91,893,000; April, $88,107,000; May, $109,141,000; June, $123,994,000; July, $141,123,000; August, $147,196,000.

Review Delays Veteran Cuts

Approximately 150,000 World War veterans will benefit under an order expected to be issued by President Roosevelt today.

Because a special board has not completed review of cases involving presumptive ailments, administration sources yesterday predicted that benefit payments to this group would be continued by executive order.

Under the economy act these benefits would have expired the end of this month. The act provided, however, that the President might order a continuance to allow the board to complete its review.

The designation "presumptive cases" is applied to veterans receiving benefits for ailments and disabilities which were presumed under former veteran laws to have originated in military service.

Goodyear Firm Faces Secret Price Charge

Firm Accused of Violating Clayton Act in Pact With Sears-Roebuck.

The Federal Trade Commission yesterday charged the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. with making price discriminations in favor of Sears, Roebuck & Co., in violation of the Clayton act.

The complaint charged that since May, 1926, the Goodyear company "discriminated in prices, and is now discriminating between the purchasers of its products, by giving or allowing Sears, Roebuck & Co. a lower price than that given or allowed other purchasers." It stated the rubber concern allowed the mail order house secret rebates, discounts and "valuable stock bonuses."

The commission held the discrimination was not based on differences of quality, or other legitimate factors, but on artificial favoritism.

Defends Contract.

Rubber trade circles regard the commission's suit as particularly significant because of the long-standing tire price war between mail order houses and other tire dealers. The Goodyear company was ordered to file an early answer and the case will be given public hearing.

Upholding the firm's contract with Sears, Roebuck & Co., P. W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear company, said the contract had been in existence seven years, and that three of the four largest tire manufacturers produce special brands of tires for other large distributors. He added:

"The manufacture of special brand merchandise for large distributors is common practice in most lines of manufacturing and merchandising. We do not know why this particular contract has been singled out. However, this Goodyear-Sears contract has for several years been the subject of a great deal of publicity and the objectives of an anti-mail order campaign directed at our dealer organization. We welcome this opportunity to have the facts aired and settled.

Points to Business Increase.

"It is alleged the terms of the contract tend toward creation of a monopoly in the tire business for Sears. As a matter of fact, during the seven years of the contract's existence, the percentage of the total tire business enjoyed by Goodyear dealers with Goodyear brand tires has increased 45 per cent.

"When the case comes up for hearing, we expect to prove that no law has been violated and that our stockholders, our dealers, and thousands of employes directly engaged in the production of Sears tires have greatly benefited under this contract."

Retailers Get Bread Boost

Survey Shows Price Goes Up While Costs Go Down.

Intimations that bakers and retailers are realizing the major part of an increase of almost a half cent in bread prices were made yesterday by Dr. Frederic C. Howe, consumers' counsel of the Farm Administration, following a survey of 49 cities, not including Washington.

Bread prices gained from 7.5 to 7.9 cents a pound loaf between August 29 and September 26, Dr. Howe found, while the cost of ingredients fell from 2.94 to 2.89 cents.

"Compared with margins in previous years, a margin of 5.01 cents may not be excessive, but the danger lies in the increase if it exceeds wage advances to workers," he said.

"We can not state too often or too emphatically that the recovery program will be defeated in its purposes if margins to processors and distributors are swelled any more than the extra amount involved in higher direct or indirect labor costs."

Simultaneously, higher prices for pork chops, sausage, bacon, ham and corn meal were forecast as the result of the farm administration's decision to apply a processing tax on corn and hogs, effective November 5.

Camps for Indians Will Aid Own Land

$4,000,000 Program to Provide 14,400 Jobs.

The Federal Government will spend $4,000,000 to operate reforestation camps on 68 Indian reservations during the winter, giving employment to 14,400 Indians on projects designed to increase the value of Indian lands.

Robert Fechner, director of emergency conservation work, said the Indians will fight forest fires, build trails and fire breaks, construct lookout houses and telephone lines, improve timber stands and build reservoirs.

John Collier, commissioner of Indian Affairs, said expenditure will add $20,000,000 to the value of Indian lands before May 1, 1934.

Labor Board Seeking To Avoid 36 Evictions

The National Labor Board yesterday acted to forestall eviction of 36 miners' families, scheduled for today at Gary, W. Va., because of labor disputes with the United Coal & Coke Co.

Following a plea to the board by a miners' committee, the board wired the company: "Urgently suggest that you order all evictions deferred until investigation looking to adjustment can be made by deputy of National Labor Board."

U. S. Aids Told How to Save On Hospitals

Union Medical Services Declared Cheapest of Two Systems.

Government workers can save money by utilizing their union medical privileges instead of participating in the new group hospitalization plan of outsiders, they were told last night.

Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, speaking before a meeting of Washington workers last night in the Carlton Hotel, said the individual chapters and the independent hospitalization organization offer conflicting service.

"Their plan seems all right," Steward said, "but it costs $9 a month, and ours is only about half that expensive."

John W. Ginder, Treasury Department, was reelected District president. Other officers chosen included William S. Kinney, vice president; Alfred H. Harmon, secretary-treasurer; Mr. Ginder, Edgar Graham and Dr. Franklin Meyer, trustees.

Facilities Outlined.

A report outlining medical services available through four local unions was submitted by Miss Belle Trouland, hospitalization committee chairman.

She said the unions have contracts with Providence Hospital and the International Rescue Service, an ambulance organization. Cash allowances, the chairman said, are granted ill members who wish to enter some hospital other than Providence.

Miss Trouland said the unions were considering establishment of a hospital for convalescents. She added members could obtain the services of well-known surgeons at $50 an operation.

Rent Highest Here.

Mrs. Rebekah Pedigo, rent and buying committee, quoted James Ring, Public Utilities Commission rent investigator, as declaring Washington landlords receive higher rates than any others in the country.

Other committee reports were made by Louis A. Rosafy, public relations; Mr. Graham, legislative; Mrs. Ola King, credit union; Henry G. Nolda, publicity; Harvey B. Gram, finance, and W. E. Hoffheins, public utilities.

Friend of Long Boy Is Sought

Companion on Fatal Trip to Channel Sole Police Clew.

Homicide detectives last night were seeking a boy believed to have been with Francis Long the night he disappeared from his home.

Although they have not discarded the theory of foul play, Detective Sergeant George Darnell says the evidence they have so far uncovered tends toward the theory of accidental drowning.

They believe that Francis, the 13-year-old Washington Post carrier boy, left his home at 1313 Tenth street northwest with the intention of going to the vicinity of the Washington Channel and that he was accompanied by another boy who is now fearful of disclosing his identity.

Detectives yesterday questioned playmates of the boy but obtained no clew as to his disappearance. From the time he left home until his body was found in the Washington Channel, officers have been unable to find anyone who saw him.

Saltzman Named To New Study Unit

Will Aid Coordination of U. S. Communications.

Appointment of Charles McK. Saltzman, member of the United States Shipping Board, and former chairman of the Federal Radio Commission, to be executive vice chairman of the special Cabinet committee studying plans for the unification and coordination of communications, was announced yesterday by Secretary of Commerce Roper.

The work will be carried on as a part of the general survey of transportations and communications, which President Roosevelt launched under Secretary Roper's direction last April.

With the appointment of Rail Coordinator Eastman in July, most of the transportation study was transferred to the new agency, but Roper and his interdepartmental committee still are functioning in a supervisory capacity.

Graf Zeppelin en Route to U. S.

The Graf Zeppelin, piloted by Dr. Hugo Eckener (right), left Friedrichshafen, Germany, on a triangular flight that will bring her to Chicago. Having arrived in Brazil, the big ship is scheduled to proceed northward today via Miami and Akron and thence on to Chicago for a courtesy call at the World Fair. The Avenue of Flags at the fair is shown below. Among Dr. Eckener's personal guests on the trip is Lieut. Comdr. J. L. Kenworthy, jr. (inset, center), commandant of the Lakehurst (N. J.) Air Station.

Tiger Battles "Boss" Charges In New York

Tammany and Its Foes Continue Struggle With Smith Out.

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Attackers from within and without Tammany Hall—apparently bereft of the public backing of Alfred E. Smith—today fought to submerge the cry of bossism in its campaign to reelect Mayor John P. O'Brien.

Smith is reported sick with a cold.

Renewing his defiance of Tammany, Frank J. Prial, who broke down the organization to win the Democratic comptrollership nomination, resurrected bossism as a leading issue in the city's bitter three-cornered mayoralty campaign.

Prial's surprise attack, delivered at the wigwam's traditional ratification meeting, alarmed Tammany leaders already disturbed by the silence of former Gov. Smith, who remained away from the meeting for the first time in years.

Backers of the mayor's two leading opponents, Fiorello H. LaGuardia, fusion nominee, and Joseph V. McKee, independent, quickly interpreted Prial's statements as reacting to the benefit of their candidates.

Former Senator Nathan Straus, McKee candidate for president of the board of aldermen, struck at Prial, charging that "he has been for years subservient to the bosses and the day after he was nominated in the primary election as an independent he went up to Tammany Hall and received the benediction of Mr. Curry."

Asserting that Prial knew nothing of the city budget, Straus said "Mr. Prial has a great deal of impudence to project himself before the electorate as a candidate for comptroller."

W. J. C. O'Brien, 76, Long Printer, Dies

Served Government Office Here 36 Years.

William J. C. O'Brien, 76, a veteran printer, died yesterday at his home, 106 South Clarendon avenue, Clarendon. Born at Pottsville, Pa., he came here in 1889 and served 36 years in the Government Printing Office.

Requiem mass will be said at St. Charles Catholic Church at Clarendon Saturday at 9:15 o'clock, with burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery, Washington.

Surviving are one son, Charles V. O'Brien, of Clarendon, and two brothers, John J. O'Brien, of Altoona, Pa., and Joseph O'Brien, of Pottsville, Pa.

Einstein, Elusive as Theory, Evades News Photographers

25 Cameramen Wait Hour in Vain at Princeton for Professor.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 18 (AP).—Prof. Albert Einstein, who slipped into this country yesterday without being interviewed, today evaded just as easily a university-made appointment to pose for photographers.

Twenty-five newspaper cameramen and several movie representatives called here by the publicity office of Princeton University to take pictures of Dr. Einstein at 11:30 a. m.

After an hour of waiting, the photographers were called into the lecture room of Fine Hall. There Prof. Luther P. Eisenhart, head of the university department of mathematics and dean of the graduate school, apologized and said he would "have to explain since I had a good bit to do with it."

Dr. Eisenhart said he had thought it best to have all photographers come at one time to get pictures of Einstein, who now is connected with the Institute of Advanced Study here, but "I find I made a mistake in calculations."

Grounded British Liner Carrying 200 Floated

Marseilles, France, Oct. 17 (AP). Refloated by tugs after having been aground on a sandbank, the British-owned Oriental liner City of Paris proceeded here under her own power today.

The ship ran aground 20 miles off the French coast. She was outbound for Karachi, India. Two hundred passengers were aboard the 15,000-ton vessel.

St. Lawrence Pact Sanction To Be Pushed

Waterway Project Thought Behind Appointment of Markham.

(Associated Press.)

Proponents of the St. Lawrence waterway yesterday saw in the selection of Col. Edward M. Markham as chief of Army Engineers, a decision by President Roosevelt to press ratification of the St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty at the next session of Congress.

Markham was elevated to major general over several ranking officers after a study by officials of the engineer's reports on the Great Lakes-Atlantic seaway as a member of the American-Canadian Joint Engineering Board.

Markham testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last winter at hearings on ratification of the treaty that the plans proposed were "safe, adequate and commodious."

He assumed his post today in Detroit upon instructions from Washington.

As a means of meeting Senate opposition to the waterway, instructions have gone to the interdepartmental board to bring up to date for presentation to the Senate all reports on the cost of the project, and on how many men and how much material and supplies would be needed during its seven years of construction.

In one official quarter today, the administration was represented as feeling that, by expediting the project, toward which the United States would pay $272,000,000, hundreds of thousands might receive employment during the construction period.

Huey Long's Biography Appears; Not on Sale

New Orleans, Oct. 18 (AP).—Senator Huey P. Long's autobiography, "Every Man a King," was passed out to a few friends here today, but the publisher remained anonymous and the Senator declined to say when the book would be placed on sale in his native State.

Long said the volume had first been offered for sale yesterday at a Chicago newsstand "which sold out in two hours."

Soviet Schools Try To Limit Oratory

Kremlin Finds Students Make Too Many Speeches.

Moscow (U.P.).—Strict limits on speech-making meetings and other forms of political work have been ordered for all higher technical schools and colleges of the Soviet Union.

The order comes from the central committee of the ruling Communist Party, which declares that these additional activities have wasted the time and sapped the energies of students.

This is not the first time that the authorities have intervened in the matter of speech-making in schools. About two years ago the Kremlin suddenly called a halt to teaching methods which, it said, left students ignorant of everything but politics. It demanded discipline and attention to studies.

But the new policy was not easy to enforce. Fifteen years of revolutionary oratory had infected the school system too deeply. The Kremlin, therefore, is obliged again to underline the fact that the first duty of a Soviet school is to teach.

City Druggist Denies NRA Code Evidence

Pharmacists Work 56 to 65 Hours a Week, Not 80, Says M. S. Alley.

The average weekly hours of work of employe pharmacists are between 56 and 65, instead of 80 as charged in an NRA code hearing, according to Marion S. Alley, president of the District Pharmacist Society.

Alley said he expected soon to present statistics refuting testimony submitted by the National Association of Retail Druggists, the Drug Institute and the American Pharmaceutical Association that pharmists work 80 hours weekly.

He also revealed that the Pharmacist Society proposes to reduce these hours to 48 with a 6-day week.

Pointing out the need for constant supervision of pharmacies by municipal authorities, Alley said "many of the stores in the District are being operated by the owner 60 seconds of every minute."

Instead of closing their stores when they are absent or leaving them in the hands of a registered pharmacist, they leave incompetent employes in charge, he asserted.

"It seems ridiculous that the District has only one part-time pharmacy inspector to cover the activities of 300 retail drug stores in the District," he said.

Attorneys Hit Lay Rivalry

Propose to Fight Legal Practice and Service by Non-Lawyers.

"The practice of law as a lawyer's prerogative is being undermined," Harry F. Payer, Assistant Secretary of State, last night told members of the Federal Bar Association.

Mr. Payer was commenting on legal aspects of law practice by non-lawyers before various boards and commissions of the Federal Government here. He also outlined the steps taken by Ohio lawyers to curb associations of motorists and apartment owners in rendering legal service free to association members.

The Federal Bar Association is determined to fight non-lawyers who practice the Federal bodies, William A. Roberts, president of the association, said. Material for this fight has already been collected, he added. Last night's program was completed by an address by F. Regis Noel, comparing British and French legal systems with that of this country. Mr. Noel contested the usual notion in this country that British justice is more swift than ours.

Public Works Snags Studied

Foley Suggests Action by States to Meet Requirements

Possible legislation by which States and Territories may remove restrictions which, in many cases, prevent their participation in the public works program, was suggested in a report on legislative requirements made yesterday by E. H. Foley, jr., assistant general counsel of the Public Works Administration.

While making no specific appeal to States to act upon any legislation suggested, Mr. Foley said the greatest obstacle so far met by the public works program is that of restrictions and limitations placed upon States and municipalities by provisions of State constitutions and statutes.

"Where the restrictions are constitutional, it is necessary to go through the cumbersome process of constitutional amendment, a process which in most instances is equivalent to a denial of aid," he said.

"In such situations we see once more the inevitable result that follows when fallible minds try to formulate an infallible mold for the future. And in such cases the Public Works Administration is helpless because the President is not given the blanket power to override State constitutions, nor is the Public Works Administration authorized to make loans on inadequate security or grants in excess of 30 per cent of cost of labor and material."

Fundamentalists Plan Own Missions

Presbyterian Body Fights Modernist Trend.

Philadelphia, Oct. 18 (AP).—Naming the Rev. J. Gresham Machen, fundamentalist leader, as its president, the Independent Board for Presbyterian Foreign Missions is mapping a campaign to "promote truly Biblical and truly Presbyterian missions in clear opposition to modernism."

In a statement the board said it hoped to "set free for the carrying the Gospel to the ends of the earth" great resources of missionary zeal which are being left unused.

Bank Robbers Flee With $4,000 Cash

Customer at Hold-Up Notes 3 Numbers on Ohio Car.

Fredonia, Pa., Oct. 18 (AP).—Two men held up the Fredonia National Bank today, scooped up between $4,000 and $5,000, and escaped. The robbers, well-dressed and about 30, overlooked $2,000 in bank notes.

A customer in the bank noted the first three numbers—285—of the Ohio license plate on the robbers' car. He was unable to say how many numbers the plate bore.

Liquor Report Urges Central Control Board

Rockefeller Survey Asks Single State Authority Free From Politics.

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—The outstanding prerequisite of a liquor licensing system, said the Rockefeller Liquor Survey today, is the creation of a single board, with State-wide authority, free from politics and permanent in its tenure.

"Some States," the survey said, "will doubtless be tempted to follow the beaten paths and adhere to the old rules; and our task would be incompletely performed if we failed to present an outline of what we consider the soundest possible licensing system, if such a system must be adopted."

Experience has proved, the survey said, that a State-wide, single-authority licensing system "is more efficient, more responsive to broad, public opinion and more free from political influence than autonomous county or municipal bodies can possibly be."

The survey listed as some of the essentials in a licensing system:

The State board should control both beverage and industrial alcohol and should be responsible for the granting and revoking of all licenses.

Members of the licensing board should be given long terms of office and should be eligible to reappointment. Under no circumstances should appointments to the board be made on the basis of partisan political considerations. Nor should resort be had to a bipartisan board in the mistaken belief that this device eliminates politics. In practice, it turns public departments over to the keeping of both parties.

The "tied house" (establishments under contract to sell exclusively the product of one manufacturer) should be prevented by all available means.

Restrictions also should be placed on the number and character of places where liquor may be sold. The number of licenses may be limited on a population basis, as done in Massachusetts and Rhode Island under the new laws.

Central Y. M. Closes Drive

Secretary Wallace Heads 643 New Members; Werber Speaks.

Led by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, 643 new members enrolled in the Central Y. M. C. A. during its membership drive which closed with a banquet at the Y building last night.

The goal set for the 300 campaigners was 600. The drive began October 10, and each participant was to draw at least two newcomers. Frequent talks and rallies were held during the week.

The principal speaker at the dinner last night was "Billy" Werber, former Duke University athlete and now shortstop of the Boston Red Sox.

Werber praised the athletic facilities of the Y. M. C. A. He attributed his condition at the beginning of spring training to constant exercise in the gymnasium here.

The name of the campaigner enrolling the most members was not announced. His prize will be a round trip to Chicago over the American Airways new direct Washington-Chicago skylane.

John L. Vandergrift was general chairman of the successful campaign.

Hiccough Case Proves Puzzle

Doctors Ponder Operation to Cure Woman Victim Here.

Physicians declined to say last night whether they contemplated an operation on Mrs. Gladys Meek, 27, 3227 Volta place northwest, who for 18 weeks has hiccoughed every minute.

Mrs. Meek, confined at Providence Hospital, remained in an unchanged condition last night. She did not seem visibly weaker, nurses said.

The hiccoughs started last summer. At first she lauged about them, but as days passed she called in Dr. Dunlap Penhallow.

Dr. Penhallow has tried every known method to stop the hiccoughs without avail. Medical science has known few such cases as Mrs. Meek's, physicians asserted. Protracted spells of hiccoughing have been ascribed in the past to many causes, among them drinking and eating too fast and nervous disorders.

On February 19, medical annals show, an Allandale, S. C., farmer walked into the Southern village and said that he had hiccoughed seven years. A New York stonecutter hiccoughed for 169 days before he stopped. A Mount Clemens, Mich., woman hiccoughed more than a year. Several cases of hiccoughs lasting more than a month are on record.

Eugene Robinson Rites Here Today

Funeral services for Eugene F. Robinson, 71, 2801 Twentieth street northeast, retired merchant, who died Tuesday, will be held in the Chapel at Oak Hill Cemetery at 2 p. m. today.

Robinson founded and for many years was a member of the clothing firm of Robinson, Parker & Co.

A lifelong resident of Washington, he is survived by his widow, Mrs. Essie Robinson, and two sons, Wallace B. and Francis M. Robinson.

Chevy Chase Votes Stores

Proposed 'Parking Stands' Get Approval of Association.

The Chevy Chase Citizens Association, at a controversial meeting last night, reversed its stand against proposed "parking stores" on the east side of Connecticut avenue, between Morrison and McKinley streets.

More than 150 Chevy Chase residents attended the meeting and participated in the debate. Two votes were taken, the first limited to paid-up members and the second open to all interested parties.

On the first ballot the vote was 17 to 16 in favor of the "parking stores," and on the second the count was 94 to 23, also favorable.

Last May the association voted, 24 to 1, against the construction plan, and in June protested a rezoning petition. As a consequence the petition was denied.

The belief that the "parking stores" would relieve parking congestion and stimulate business in Chevy Chase and the promise of builders that the project would be landscaped were cited as reasons for the change in attitude.

Mix-Up Caused By 'Lame Duck' Shift of Dates

President Slated to Be Inaugurated Before Told He Won.

(Associated Press.)

The twentieth amendment to the Constitution, abolishing the lame duck session of Congress has put the cart before the horse by pushing the Presidential inauguration date ahead of the time now set for officially proclaiming the election winner.

The so-called Lame Duck Amendment which became effective last Sunday moved up from March 4 to January 20, the date of inauguration of a new President and Vice President. The new assembly date of Congress was fixed for January 3 each year instead of the first Monday of each December.

Under existing law, the electoral college meets the first Wednesday in January, following the quadrennial President elections next November, to cast ballots of their respective States.

These ballots are sent to Congress. The law provides a joint session shall be held on the second Wednesday in February to poll electoral votes and formally to proclaim the next President and Vice President.

Thus, as the situation now stands, the next President and Vice President would take office on January 20, 1937, or about 25 days before Congress tallies the electoral votes and announces the winner. Thus far, there has been no move in Congress to correct this anomalous situation.

Congress has, however, until 1935 to enact remedial legislation. Louis Deschler, parliamentarian of the House, said yesterday that the date of the meeting of the Electoral College undoubtedly would be moved up to some time in early December and that the time for Congress to poll the electoral votes would be fixed between January 3 and Inauguration Day, January 20.

Man Arrests Another; Fined; Victim Released

Bringing an alleged "egg thief" into Hyattsville police court yesterday, Robert W. Cochran, Beltsville, Md., found himself the defendant instead of the prosecutor.

Judge J. Chew Sheriff ruled that James Craft, former employe of Cochran, was innocent of the larceny of 4 dozen eggs. Instead, he imposed a $5 fine on Cochran for forcibly bringing the man to the bar of justice.

Widow Named as Slayer.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 18 (AP).—A formal information charging Mrs. Lily Banka Gaines, 27, with first-degree murder in connection with the slaying of her husband, Dr. James I. Gaines, 41, wealthy sportsman, August 15, was filed in Superior Court today.

N. Y. Banks Put Weight Behind Roosevelt Plan

jective is constructive and sound, and that bankers generally should support the plan to strengthen the capital of the banks of the Nation.

"Therefore, be it resolved, That the New York Clearing House Association supports the President in his program and recommends to its members their cooperation in carrying out his suggestion."

Pursuant to this, directors of five banks, the Chemical Bank & Trust, the Guaranty Trust, the Bankers Trust, the Bank of Manhattan Co., and the Chase Bank, agreed to sell their notes or preferred stock to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and others were planning to fall into line.

Adds $200,000,000 to Capital.

Percy H. Johnston, chairman of the clearing house committee and head of the Chemical Bank, said no quotas had been assigned, but estimated $200,000,000 would thus be added to capital of New York banks until after July 1, when the permanent deposit guarantee law takes effect. The new capital costs the banks 4 per cent, but they expect to break even by investments in Government bonds and other securities.

While the subscribing New York banks do not need the new capital and it will not flow out in credit-expansion loans to industry, they set the pace for banks which do need it. Had only the needy banks applied, the public might have become uneasy about the subscribers. When the big banks set the example, the little banks can follow suit more readily and so become eligible for deposit guaranty.

Few Banks Excluded.

None of the Presdient's advisers would discuss their talks with him, but the White House made clear that very few banks would be excluded from the guaranty provisions by January 1. There is to be no wholesale weeding-out process at that hour. This should set at rest the qualms of various State banking commissioners who have come here in apprehension and perplexity.

J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency, gave similar assurances to the Dallas Clearing House Association in a speech there yesterday, in which he cited that more than 27 per cent of the nonmember banks had already applied for Federal guaranty and predicted "nearly every bank in the country" now open will be a member of the guaranty fund.

The White House emphasized yesterday that the President is satisfied with the guarantee law and does not mean to ask Congress for revisions of importance.

President Pleased.

What pleased, though it did not satisfy, the President were the reports of oversubscription to Treasury bonds, the action of the New York banks, and compilations presented to his Executive Council reflecting a 32 per cent increase in prices of products sold by farmers and an increase of 11 per cent in the price of goods the farmer has to buy.

Also the figures given him show September factory employment had recovered two-fifths of its decline and income of factory workers recovered one-fourth, since 1929, while the cost of living rose 9 per cent since March.

The President holds that the farmer's return is still much too far below what the White House regards as parity in prewar days, that wheat, hogs and corn prices must be lifted, and that therefore price-raising must go on and stabilizing of the dollar be deferred indefinitely.

2,700,000 Back on Jobs.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins reported at the same time that more than 620,000 workers went back to jobs in industry and business in September. She estimates that 2,700,000 workers have been reabsorbed in 17 leading industrial groups and that weekly pay rolls have expanded by $64,000,000 in September over March.

Miss Perkins cited also that the commodity price index, closely watched by the White House, passed 70 in September, the first time it has risen that high since November, 1931. It was 65.3 in September, 1932. The low point was last February, at 59.8.

Although the President still is committed to the 1926 "parity" of 100, his advisers think he will be satisfied to weigh other factors when a final goal is set.

Chairman Merriam of the Deposit Liquidation Board announced late in the day the naming of committee chairmen in ten Federal Reserve districts, who will speed up appraisals of assets in closed banks as a basis for R. F. C. advances to pay off depositors.

Merriam asked State banking authorities to give the number of State banks which have closed since January 1, and whether State laws authorize receivers of State banks to borrow for distribution to depositors.

The committee chairmen who will name members of a committee to assist in appraising assets of closed banks include the following:

Federal District No. 1—Daniel G. Wing, First National Bank, Boston.

No. 2—Mortimer N. Buckner, New York Trust Co., New York.

No. 3—Livingston E. Jones, First National Bank, Philadelphia.

No. 4—S. B. Congdon, National City Bank, Cleveland.

No. 5—Robert V. Fleming, Riggs National Bank, Washington.

No. 8—Walter W. Smith, First National Bank, St. Louis.

No. 9—C. T. Jeffrey, president of the Soo Line Railroad, Minneapolis.

No. 10—W. T. Kemper, Commerce Trust Co., Kansas City.

No. 11—F. F. Florence, Republic National Bank & Trust Co.

CIVIL SERVICE eligibility lists are available to Senators and Representatives at all times, a statement issued by the commission last night declares.

BAKER.

"There is nothing startling or new in this arrangement. At one time it was the practice to post eligibility lists for the information of all who cared to see them. This was discontinued because of the labor involved," the statement says.

"It has always been the practice of the Civil Service Commission to give to Senators and Representatives informaton regarding the prospect of certification of persons about whom inquiry was made. The reason for this is clear. A Senator or Representative is the duly elected representative of citizens of his State or of his Congressional district. He is, therefore, entitled to be informed of the employment prospects of his constituents. Any person, whether a Congressman or a private person who is really a representative of an eligible, will, upon request, be informed of the relative standing of the eligible.

"So far as senators and representatives are concerned, the information is given to Democrats and Republicans alike. As an evidence of the absurdity of the charge that the lists are 'thrown into politics,' it is pointed out that within the past four or five months the Civil Service Commission has received a negligible number of requests from senators and representatives for eligible lists, excepting those made for postmaster lists.

"What the commission does and always has done is to give to a senator or representative, upon request, the relative standing of any eligible named, and there seems to be no good reason why he should not be given the entire list if the labor involved is not prohibitive," the statement concludes.

Clyde D. Williams, chief of Mortality Statistics, Census Bureau, was honored yesterday with a shower of cigarettes, flowers and candy in celebration of his birthday. His age? Well, he's not old. To one complimentary speech of an office associate he replied with this bit of verse:

A birthday at my age should make me sad,
But shucks! Somehow they make me glad.
I know I'm passing with the years,
But I'll not mess things with my tears;
I'll live for life and love and not feel bad.

Hopkins Plans Relief Census Of Entire U. S.

Nation-Wide Data Sought First Time to Guide Future Efforts.

A census of the Nation's relief rolls which will provide for the first time much National unemployment data and factual basis for "formulating a decision about unemployment relief insurance," was started yesterday by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, through the Census Bureau.

Administrator Harry L. Hopkins said the survey will reveal how adequately relief is given in all areas.

Data will be compiled on the basis of records of local relief offices for October. Families will not be visited by enumerators.

Hopkins said little is known about the "relief population." In roder to guide National planning for more adequate relief, he said it is becoming increasingly important to know age, sex, color and family composition.

The census will present this information by State, county, town, city or rural residence of each family head and will list dependents receiving unemployment relief from public funds. The census will not include those receiving private relief funds, or transients.

Meanwhile, Hopkins announced, the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation, formed to feed surpluses to the needy, has started a $75,000,000 purchasing program. The corporation has ordered $15,000,000 worth of butter and plans expenditure of $300,000 for apples, and $5,000,000 to $10,000,00 for low grade range cattle. Vast quantities of flour have been ordered.

He said manufacturers and distributors have promised to process and distribute foodstuffs at cost for relief organizations.

Funeral Today For D.C. Author

Foxhall Daingerfield Found Dead on His Sister's Kentucky Farm.

Foxhall Daingerfield, Washington novelist found dead on the Kentucky farm of his sister, will be buried in Lexington, Ky., today, according to the Associated Press.

Funeral services will be held at "Haylands," the stock farm operated by the sister, Miss Elizabeth Daingerfield. Bishop H. P. Almon Abbott and Dean Christopher P. Sparling will officiate.

Miss Daingerfied, at whose farm the dead man was recuperating from a nervous breakdown, is a well-known breeder of thoroughbred horses. In addition to operating her own farm, she has managed the Samuel Riddle farm on which Man o' War is quartered, and also the Price McKinney stables.

Daingerfield is survived by his father, secretary of the Jockey Club of America, three half-sisters, and an aunt, Mrs. A. C. Norman, of Seattle, Wash., in addition to Miss Elizabeth Daingerfield.

U. S. Creates Unit to Boost Negro Industry

N. Y. Man Scheduled to Head New Commerce Bureau Division.

Creation of a Negro Division in the Foreign and Domestic Commerce Bureau of the Commerce Department was announced yesterday by Secretary Roper.

The new agency will be charged with general consultative responsibilities in connection with "problems which immediately affect the business and economic life" of the Negro race.

Eugene Kinkle Jones, of New York, secretary of the National Urban League, and a widely known Negro leader, has been tentatively selected to head the division. It will take over and expand the duties of the Small Business Men's Unit, under the direction of James A. Jackson, which was abolished in July. Jones' appointment has not been formally approved by President Roosevelt, but the White House announcement probably will be made soon, Secretary Roper indicated.

Establishment of the new division follows the recommendation of the Negro Advisory Board, appointed by Secretary Roper six weeks ago to present a plan for guarding the interests of Negro workers and small business men under the NRA. Robert L. Vann, of Pittsburgh, was chairman of the Advisory Committee of 10, which included Garnet C. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent of public schools here, and G. David Houston, principal of the Armstrong High School.

No action yet has been taken on the recommendation that a Negro be placed on the NRA Consumers' Council.

Processing Tax Puzzles.

The probable and possible effects of processing taxes upon the prices of agricultural products are among the most complex of the many puzzling problems raised by the restriction programs of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. The processing tax on cotton already has given rise to excited debates concerning the extent to which it is necessary for the processor, who pays the tax, to shift the burden to consumers of processed products, including the farmers who are themselves consumers. In the heat of such controversies, the effect of the tax upon the farm producer seldom receives its fair share of attention.

Tax experts, however, have pointed out that it is highly probable that the farmer will be compelled indirectly to assume part of the burden of the processing taxes which the Government is levying for his benefit. Undoubtedly a tax of this sort tends to have a depressing influence on farm prices, because handlers or processors have no assurance that they can shift the tax to buyers of their own products. Furthermore, they are called upon to make payments to the tax collector which can only be recovered as their goods are sold, in many cases after costly delays. Hence, farmers are almost certain to be called upon to absorb part of the processing taxes by taking less than they might receive if the tax were nonexistent.

The hog industry provides some instructive illustrations of the complex nature of the problems that arise in trying to determine the incidence of the processing taxes in any given case. Secretary Wallace has just announced his plans for paying benefits to hog growers who agree to cut their production 25 per cent during the next two years. Processing taxes are to be levied which will amount at maximum to $2 per 100 pounds and, according to press reports, are expected to yield about $350,000,000 for the two-year period, with $200,000,000 of the total payable to hog growers.

How much of this $200,000,000 should be regarded as a net addition to the farmers' income? To what extent are receipts from this source likely to be offset by reductions in the buying prices of live hogs as a result of the tax? Will the direct benefits paid to farmers by the Government more than compensate for loss of income caused by the 25 per cent reduction in the hog output—and the price depressing influence of the tax itself?

These hypothetical questions merely reveal the extreme complexity of the problems which confront the A. A. A.; they can not be answered. Nevertheless, the available price data lend strong support to the view that the farmer will pay a goodly share of the processing tax on hogs, although a rise in hog prices from other causes may conceal that fact.

The tax doubtless will be shifted in part to consumers of pork products, but consumers will have to pay higher prices in any case if the restriction plan succeeds. Since the demand for meat products is relatively elastic, care has to be taken to avoid too sharp an increase in retail sales prices resulting from a combination of artificial scarcity and a shift of the processing tax.

There is a third possibility: that is, assumption of the tax by the processors and the distributors of hog products at wholesale and retail. The statistics showing the course of hog prices and prices of pork and lard tend to discredit the belief that the tax will be absorbed in such wise. Wholesale and retail prices of pork and lard as well as of hogs have declined sharply from the levels of five years ago, but the margins between prices of live hogs and the comparable prices of pork and lard equivalents have shown no correspondingly pronounced drop. In fact, the average differential between hog prices per 100 pounds at Chicago for the first eight months of this year and retail prices of pork and lard equivalents at New York was practically the same as the average margin for the year 1929, when hogs were bringing over two and one-half times the 1933 average.

This situation is partly explained by the nature of distributors' costs, many of which are fixed. Then, too, distribution costs in general have shown greater resistance to deflationary pressure than have commodity prices. Hence, the available price data strongly support the conclusion that a processing tax on hogs will be paid for in the main by the consumer and by the farmer, who will be compelled to take less for his product than he would receive if there were no processing tax.

Subsurface Traffic Plans.

The corporation controlling Rockefeller Center, in the heart of New York, has asked permission of the city to construct underground passageways for both pedestrians and vehicles to connect all the buildings in this metropolitan improvement. Although the corporation proposes to defray all expense in connection with the construction and upkeep of the subsurface system, which is intended primarily for the benefit of the property, it is believed that the system will be an important factor in relieving midtown traffic congestion.

By means of the trucking and delivery areas designed for this underground traffic, all deliveries will be removed from the street level. Rockefeller Center, it is estimated, will have a population of its own totaling 200,000. The proposed subsurface corridors and tunnels will permit all these persons to circulate freely throughout the entire area of three squares and have access to the twelve buildings, without making use of surface street facilities.

The vehicular roadways will be wide enough to carry four lanes of traffic leading into a central area 185 by 320 feet, from which deliveries can be made to all the buildings in the development. Nearly a mile of pedestrian corridors will be constructed. They are to be air conditioned and well lighted and flanked on both sides by shops. Altogether the plans contemplate turning over to public use more than two acres of private land, including a wide promenade running west to the sunken plaza in the central block and a new surface street through the Rockefeller Center north and south from Forty-eighth to Fifty-first street.

In connection with the proposed scheme for the new development, it has been suggested that extension of the innovation to adjacent blocks might well be considered as further aid in solving the growing traffic problems in the busy center of the metropolis.

Wasting Valuable Time.

Secretary Ickes urges State advisory boards to turn down impracticable or extravagant public works projects, instead of "passing the buck" to Washington. The Public Works Administration finds its operations slowed down by needless consideration of projects which should have been rejected by the State boards. Mr. Ickes says:

> I fully appreciate the State groups of P. W. A. are subjected to pressure, political and otherwise, in behalf of particular projects, with proponents giving little consideration to merit. No matter what the interest is, it remains the duty of the State groups to consider projects on merit alone, bearing in mind real social values as well as economic, financial, engineering and legal feasibility.

Actual experience reveals that it is a tedious task to bring an important public works project to the point where it meets every test of desirability. Communities hoping to obtain large appropriations of public money easily convince themselves that their particular projects will serve a public need and will not be a crushing burden.

But Mr. Ickes reminds the State boards that some communities would bankrupt themselves if their proposals were accepted. Some projects, while financially feasible, are impracticable from an engineering viewpoint, or their economic merit may not be worth their cost and maintenance charges. Somebody must take the time to examine projects and apply the tests of acceptability. If the Public Works Administration is doing this winnowing of projects which should be done in the States, it is not surprising that slow progress is made in construction.

The showing up to date is unsatisfactory to all concerned, including the Public Works Administration itself. Too much time evidently is consumed in considering unworthy projects—time which could be utilized more profitably in pushing forward actual construction of public works of unquestioned merit.

America's Cup Challenge.

Announcement from London that the Royal Yacht Squadron has issued a challenge to the United States for another series of races for the America's cup will interest not merely the yachting fraternity, but all Americans who have followed the repeated efforts of British sportsmen to regain this prized trophy. The new challenge is issued on behalf of Thomas Octave Murdoch Sopwith, aircraft manufacturer and pilot.

The yacht races are inseparably linked with the name of Sir Thomas Lipton, who made five attempts to lift the cup between 1898 and 1930. The five Shamrocks he sent across the Atlantic in the quest would have been followed by a sixth had he lived another year. The Lipton challenges were made through the Royal Ulster, but in the year of his death Sir Thomas was made a member of the Royal Yacht Squadron.

An interesting innovation will be afforded in next year's race by the new challenger, which is being constructed entirely of steel. It is, of course, of the America's size, which is approximately 120 feet long on deck and 80 feet on the water line, with 7,500 feet of sail spread from a mast 168 feet high. The designer is Charles E. Nicholson, who designed the last two Lipton Shamrocks.

The challenge is addressed to the New York Yacht Club, which has been custodian of the America's cup since 1857. That the challenge will be accepted is a foregone conclusion. The next races will be the fifteenth in the series which started in 1870. In the first challenge contest the Cambria sailed against fourteen American yachts and finished tenth. Conditions were changed in the following year to make it a two yacht race. Yachtmen expect a new American defender to be built for the 1934 contest. This international match now demands that a contender win four races over alternating windward and leeward and triangular courses of 30 miles each.

Pan-American Questions.

Two questions that may come before the Pan-American Conference in December threaten to provoke animated discussions. The propriety of considering them at that parley is already under discussion, with decided differences of opinion. These troublesome subjects relate to intervention and foreign debts.

Reports from Argentina and Chile indicate that they do not desire to be classed as defaulting nations. Unusual efforts, it is said, are being made, even in connection with provincial loans, to meet payments at least in part, and to give assurance that all obligations will be met as soon as possible. Chile has set up an amortization bank which is accumulating funds from special taxes. If the question should be raised at Montevideo, Argentina is expected to maintain that it is a non-defaulting nation. Various republics of South America are said to realize that, as their foreign loans have no official connection with the American Government, adjustments should be sought by direct negotiation with private creditors.

The interjection of the intervention question at the conference probably would provoke the usual acrimonious expression of opinions, with little hope of practical results. Writing frankly in the Panama American on this subject, Salomon de la Selva, a well-known political writer, says that denouncing intervention is a waste of effort. He adds that if this matter should be considered at Montevideo the Latin nations should avoid expressions reflecting attitudes which nearly wrecked the Havana conference.

It is to be hoped, says Mr. de la Selva, that there will be a different spirit at the forthcoming parley, which should hold the welfare of the continent paramount. Intervention, he finds, is not a practice confined to the United States, history affording more than a hundred cases in which one Latin-American country has intervened in the affairs of another. Recent examples of American withdrawal of forces from Nicaragua and Haiti, and restraint in connection with the Cuban situation, have given added assurance of the absence of imperialistic designs by the United States. If intervention must be discussed at Montevideo, he thinks it should be possible to consider the question free from the rancor which too often has accompanied such discussions.

China's Anti-Red Drive.

The Nanking government is making every effort to enlist effective cooperation of the Cantonese armies in the extensive campaign to be directed against Communists in central China. Gen. Chiang Kai-shek is reported from Shanghai to be preparing for the most intensive drive yet undertaken against the red forces, but he is awaiting assurance that when he starts from the north the forces of Gen. Chen Chia-tang also will attack from the south.

Parleys are being held both in Shanghai and Canton in the hope of aligning support from the various southern commanders on the northern Kwantung border in a campaign to crush the Communists between the armies of the north and south. Gen. Chiang is dispatching supplies of all kinds to Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi province, in preparation for the coming advance. Indicative of the intensive fighting anticipated, these supplies include 10,000 hospital beds to be added to several thousand already provided at the base hospitals in the district.

With the return of Dr. T. V. Soong, minister of finance, Nanking has been able to secure additional funds from the banks, including $20,000,000 which will be largely used in financing the anti-red campaign. Dr. Soong holds that present conditions in China call for centralized executive power, such as he found in other countries. With a concentration of authority he expects to see the Nanking government function more effectively.

The situation in north China for the moment appears to be quiet, the combined drive of Japanese and Chinese troops having quickly forced the rebellious irregulars of Gen. Fang Chen-wu from the neutral zone south of the Great Wall. This force still causes apprehension, since it occupies several towns and villages outside the demilitarized area within 25 miles of Peiping, and continues to augment its numbers from former soldiers and bandits adrift in the country

"Letting George Do It."

From the Boston Transcript.

President Roosevelt seems to have discovered something, in the workings of Government aid, that disturbs him. In his address last night on the mobilization of human needs he emphasized continually that Federal assistance should not supplant, it should only supplement that of States and municipalities and private charities. It was a fundamental policy of the administration which preceded his that it was the first duty of the local unit, and the last of the Federal Government, to maintain welfare and relief work; that the National Government was not organized for that purpose, and once Uncle Sam entered upon that task, he would be expected by many to carry the full burden. President Hoover even leaned backward in his insistence upon holding local agencies responsible for welfare work in their own communities, but he was only a voice crying in the night.

The policy of the Roosevelt administration has been predicated upon huge Federal expenditures for the relief of the distressed. Congress, under the leadership of the President, went joyously to it, and thousands of millions, in gifts and loans, are being poured out in an only partly successful effort to stem the tide of distress. But the "Let George do it" policy of which the President complains is a natural human reaction. Especially has it embarrassed such charitable work as is dependent on private individuals, who have reasoned that they would prefer to make their contributions in taxes, in which all would share, than personally, with the knowledge that they were paying disproportionately for the relief of their fellow citizens.

Mr. Roosevelt has now got back to first principles. The overwhelming majority of the American people understand clearly, he says, that it is the first duty of the individual and the local community to do all they can to maintain relief and welfare; that the Federal Government stands ready to help only when these agencies have failed. We would not criticize the President in this matter, with all his burdens, but we trust that Congress and the local governments will take to heart the sound advice he emphasizes and that the mobilization forces under Newton D. Baker will act upon it. Even yet, although conditions are improving, large sums of money are needed for direct relief which the politicians would spend on public works, which can relieve very few.

RED AND GREEN LIGHTS IN CONGRESS.

The Danish Parliament has installed red and green lights to control speeches. There's an idea worth adopting in this country. Can't you imagine what would happen in our own Senate?

* * * *

Senator Dufflebag—Mr. President, I have been waiting here for ten minutes to make a speech on the tariff.

President—I can't help it. The light is against you.

Senator Dufflebag—You should speed up the system. There's no sense keeping the red on forever.

Senator Phootle—It merely ties up oratory for five or six blocks.

Senator Twitchell—It takes all day to get through with a 2,000-word speech. I remember when I could deliver 10,000 words in two hours.

Senator Dufflebag—I demand the right to say a few words on the tariff.

President—I can not allow it.

Senator Dufflebag—Suppose I turn from the tariff and discuss the gold standard?

President—You know the rules. No turns on red.

* * * *

Senator Phootle—There! I told you so.

President—What?

Senator Phootle—Traffic is all jammed up and——

Senator Dufflebag (as the red changes to green)—Mr. Speaker and gentlemen. There is a tide in the affairs of men which, taken at the . . . Hey! . . . Listen!

President—What's the trouble now?

Senator Dufflebag—You switched the green back to red before I could get into high.

President—You're too slow on your pickup.

* * * *

Senator Phootle—Can that guy stand there all day and tie up all traffic?

Senator Dufflebag—It's all rhythm anyway. If you get off to a bad start on red you'll be stopped at every paragraph. It's funny how it works out.

Senator Twitchell—There ought to be an intermediate light for caution.

President—Who ever heard of a senator showing caution?

Senator Dufflebag—He can't do that.

Senator Phootle—He's gotta stay in line.

Senator Twitchell—Why don't he wait for green like the rest of us?

President (apologetically) — He can't help it. He's color blind!

CONFIRMATION.

Mr. Rockefeller, from whose offices ideas for liquor control after repeal are descending upon newspaper offices like snowflakes on a Siberian landscape, says that good whisky can be made for 45 cents a quart. This bears out the general complaint that 75 cents a drop for the last 14 years has been a little exorbitant.

One of the many signs of repeal is that full quart bottles are reappearing in America and that there has been a big falling off in funny labels.

It is becoming so difficult to keep anybody at these disarmament conferences that there is talk of making the delegates sign a run of the play contract.

Yale, holding millions of dollars' worth of tax-free property in the center of New Haven, has refused to contribute something to the city treasury in its hour of desperate need. Eli is determined not to revise that college song to read, "For God, for New Haven and for Yale."

Daily Talks About Books and Authors

The Answer of Melancholy.

Robert Burton, who wrote this huge work, was a lonely scholar at Oxford, where he spent most of his life until he died in 1640. Sometimes he emerged from his room and leaned over the parapet of Magdalen Bridge, shaking with laughter at the coarse jokes of the bargemen. This was his reaction against his prevailing mood of melancholy. He suffered from chronic low spirits and black despondency. Like many a sufferer, he became interested in his symptoms. Whence his melancholy? So he spent his life writing one vast volume, in which he attempted to psychoanalyze himself, make a diagnosis of this mental disease, hoping by thus studying it to cure himself. The attempt failed. He never shook off his melancholy.

But I think, when his book was published in 1621, its prodigious success must have alleviated his suffering. It went through many editions and he kept making additional pages.

It would be a great mistake to suppose that this book is dull. It is filled with human sympathy and humor. Saintsbury called it a perpetual refuge and delight. It is filled with good stories about men and women. It is a case-book. And his remarks about suicide, fishing, chess-playing, and especially his comments on lovers, will always please. A few years ago a new edition, with all the Latin quotations translated, was edited by Floyd Dell.

If We Pray for Common Sense, We May Not Have to Pray for Rain

By Robert Quillen.

One spring years ago, following a period of expansion and speculation, America began to develop the typical symptoms of depression.

Prices fell, banks closed, securities were dumped, jobless men walked the streets.

And then in the early fall the whole bad business ended almost in a day.

Europe had suffered a disastrous crop failure. America had produced one of the greatest crops in her history. And hungry Europe's gold made America prosperous again.

This time the story may be reversed.

You may not care about crop figures, but you do care about eating, and this concerns your morning toast.

The Government is urging farmers to plant less wheat in order to raise the price. It offers a kind of bribe to win their cooperation. And as this is written, it is offering the Orient 35,000,000 bushels, at a figure below the world price, in order to reduce the quantity of wheat in this country.

The idea is to make wheat scarce, for scarcity is the only thing that will insure a high price.

Nature is helping the good work along, and if she continues her help for another year or two, somebody is going hungry.

Do you know how much wheat we have on hand? Neither does anybody else. Government experts say 385,000,000 bushels. But they take available production records and subtract available consumption records and assume that the difference is left on hand.

But they say most of that 385,000,000 bushels is held on farms. That may sound right to a Government expert, but not to people who know something about farming.

Wheat "left on the farm" is fed to stock or eaten by chickens, pigeons and rats, or spoiled by mold and weevils. Very little of it ever will be flour.

There isn't enough hard wheat in sight to feed America a year.

This year the wheat section suffered the greatest drought in a generation. Kansas, banner wheat producing State, harvested but a fifth of her normal crop.

Wheat land is hard and dry. Even a normal snowfall this winter can not store up enough moisture to produce a normal crop.

Wheat is a heavy drinker. It takes an average of 1,044 pounds of water to produce a pound of wheat. And another year of drought, plus a little more Government generosity, should make bread scarce enough to please everybody but the city poor.

Advice to Young Lovers.

When I was courting Nellie, eight and twenty years ago,
My best side to her father I believed it wise to show.
Although she was my objective, in an artful way I knew
It would be to my advantage could
I win her father, too.
So to please him, walking homeward, for we didn't have a car,
I would drop into a drug store for a good ten-cent cigar.

Being young, I had the notion that a present for her dad
Would delight Miss Nellie's parent
and would also make her glad;
But I later on discovered not all
sweetness filled the cup,
For at times as late as midnight he would still be sitting up.
And though I was bent on wooing,
all my fondest hopes he'd mar.
By remaining calmly with us till he'd smoked that good cigar.

Oh, the hours I sat and watched him, wishing he would go to bed.
As he puffed that clear Havana and not hearing half he said.
Oft I'd say: "Smoke this tomorrow,"
He'd reply, with wrinkled
brow,
"Since it isn't quite my bedtime, I believe I'll light it now."
And instead of courting Nellie I would have to sit and stare.
At her father blowing smoke rings
from his ancient easy chair.

So, young men who go a-wooing,
bear this helpful thought in mind,
It will be to your advantage to her father to be kind,
But though good cigars may please him, if the hour be growing late,
Keep your present in your pocket
or you'll have to sit and wait
Just as I did, wasting moments—and how precious few they are—
Till the daddy of your sweetheart
puffs away your good cigar.

Bargeron.

THERE IS AN importance that attaches to the controversy between Gen. Johnson and Mr. James True, a trade letter writer, an importance that justifies the attention it has attracted. But it is not an importance due to Mr. True or because of the "freedom of the press" being involved.

For one thing, Mr. True is not of the daily press by any stretch of the imagination. I believe he does claim to represent a trade publication in addition to his trade letter service,—a service that purports to give facts and information to business men which can not be obtained by newspapermen. I have never understood just what that information was, but this is beside the point.

* * * *

MR. TRUE is not entitled to attend the general's press conferences as a newspaperman. Of that, there is no doubt. As to whether he has a bona-fide trade paper connection entitling him to admission in that category is the concern of the trade paper correspondents.

The thing that is important in the controversy—and the impression is inescapable the general would like to see it dropped—is there is hardly any doubt that Mr. True would be attending the conferences today had he not criticized the NRA, had he not, as the general described it, "sabotaged" the much-discussed agency, the agency which the general holds so dear.

* * * *

THAT this is the importance—and the only importance—attaching to the controversy is something the general does not yet seem to understand. He makes the point that no freedom of the press is involved, that Mr. True is not a newspaperman.

He overlooks entirely the revelatory nature of the incident as reflecting the state of his mind.

The general's press conferences have been just about the most open thing in town. It was he himself who let down the bars and the result has been the newspapermen make up but a small percentage of those who attend. Lobbyists even have been at conferences. Somebody—and I think it was the general—said early in this administration that things were to be done in a gold-fish bowl. Whether it was the general or not, he has tried to administer the NRA in one.

* * * *

I UNDERSTAND now the conference rules are to be tightened and only bona fide newspaper and trade paper representatives admitted. Undoubtedly it will be a more satisfactory arrangement all around.

But the fact remains there would have been none of this hullabaloo and Mr. True could have remained all day long had he not criticized the NRA.

* * * *

WHEN the general entered the controversy he realized his foot had slipped. And he logically called upon Mr. Charles Michaelson, who knows the newspaper and publicity business thoroughly, to help him extricate himself.

And Charles fixed up a nice piece of extrication by explaining that Mr. True was not eligible for a press conference. If the general had stopped there, it is likely the incident would have passed over. But there is no escaping the fact that what irked him, what caused him to "fly off the handle" was criticism of the NRA.

* * * *

THIS is a surprising attitude for the general. It is his colorful nature that has carried the NRA. If it were not for him the thing would have been off the front pages long ago, and — of course there is the question of whether we all would not be better off if that had happened.

But, for better or worse, he is the NRA. And one of his most attractive features has been his sense of humor. If he is shorn of that — well, he won't be the same general. An incident or so of the True kind will have shorn him, too.

Letters to the Editor.

Cites Maryland Farmer Who Averaged Eleven Cents Net for Whole Milk.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was tremendously interested in your article concerning the controversy over the prices paid to the farmer for milk by the independent and the national dairies. I hope you will give time and space to more of these and enlighten the consumers on the difference in the price between the producer and the consumer.

I shall quote prices as given by a Maryland farmer, who was unable last fall to pay his taxes. For contract milk, and this farmer could make a contract for only fifteen gallons, he was paid 20 cents per gallon. For the second lot, ten gallons, he received 15 cents per gallon. For the third lot, called surplus, consisting of 25 gallons, he received 7 cents a gallon. This averaged the farmer approximately 13 cents per gallon, and from this he had deducted 2 cents for handling and shipping. Thus the farmer received net 11 cents per gallon for whole milk.

The independent dairy is now paying this farmer 15 cents per gallon net for his milk.

Processing Tax Puzzles.

The probable and possible effects of processing taxes upon the prices of agricultural products are among the most complex of the many puzzling problems raised by the restriction programs of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. The processing tax on cotton already has given rise to excited debates concerning the extent to which it is necessary for the processor, who pays the tax, to shift the burden to consumers of processed products, including the farmers who are themselves consumers. In the heat of such controversies, the effect of the tax upon the farm producer seldom receives its fair share of attention.

Tax experts, however, have pointed out that it is highly probable that the farmer will be compelled indirectly to assume part of the burden of the processing taxes which the Government is levying for his benefit. Undoubtedly a tax of this sort tends to have a depressing influence on farm prices, because handlers or processors have no assurance that they can shift the tax to buyers of their own products. Furthermore, they are called upon to make payments to the tax collector which can only be recovered as their goods are sold, in many cases after costly delays. Hence, farmers are almost certain to be called upon to absorb part of the processing taxes by taking less than they might receive if the tax were nonexistent.

The hog industry provides some instructive illustrations of the complex nature of the problems that arise in trying to determine the incidence of the processing taxes in any given case. Secretary Wallace has just announced his plans for paying benefits to hog growers who agree to cut their production 25 per cent during the next two years. Processing taxes are to be levied which will amount at maximum to $2 per 100 pounds and, according to press reports, are expected to yield about $350,000,000 for the two-year period, with $200,000,000 of the total payable to hog growers.

How much of this $200,000,000 should be regarded as a net addition to the farmers' income? To what extent are receipts from this source likely to be offset by reductions in the buying prices of live hogs as a result of the tax? Will the direct benefits paid to farmers by the Government more than compensate for loss of income caused by the 25 per cent reduction in the hog output—and the price depressing influence of the tax itself?

These hypothetical questions merely reveal the extreme complexity of the problems which confront the A. A. A.; they can not be answered. Nevertheless, the available price data lend strong support to the view that the farmer will pay a goodly share of the processing tax on hogs, although a rise in hog prices from other causes may conceal that fact.

The tax doubtless will be shifted in part to consumers of pork products, but consumers will have to pay higher prices in any case if the restriction plan succeeds. Since the demand for meat products is relatively elastic, care has to be taken to avoid too sharp an increase in retail sales prices resulting from a combination of artificial scarcity and a shift of the processing tax.

There is a third possibility: that is, assumption of the tax by the processors and the distributors of hog products at wholesale and retail. The statistics showing the course of hog prices and prices of pork and lard tend to discredit the belief that the tax will be absorbed in such wise. Wholesale and retail prices of pork and lard as well as of hogs have declined sharply from the levels of five years ago, but the margins between prices of live hogs and the comparable prices of pork and lard equivalents have shown no correspondingly pronounced drop. In fact, the average differential between hog prices per 100 pounds at Chicago for the first eight months of this year and retail prices of pork and lard equivalents at New York was practically the same as the average margin for the year 1929, when hogs were bringing over two and one-half times the 1933 average.

This situation is partly explained by the nature of distributors' costs, many of which are fixed. Then, too, distribution costs in general have shown greater resistance to deflationary pressure than have commodity prices. Hence, the available price data strongly support the conclusion that a processing tax on hogs will be paid for in the main by the consumer and by the farmer, who will be compelled to take less for his product than he would receive if there were no processing tax.

Subsurface Traffic Plans.

The corporation controlling Rockefeller Center, in the heart of New York, has asked permission of the city to construct underground passageways for both pedestrians and vehicles to connect all the buildings in this metropolitan improvement. Although the corporation proposes to defray all expense in connection with the construction and upkeep of the subsurface system, which is intended primarily for the benefit of the property, it is believed that the system will be an important factor in relieving midtown traffic congestion.

By means of the trucking and delivery areas designed for this underground traffic, all deliveries will be removed from the street level. Rockefeller Center, it is estimated, will have a population of its own totaling 200,000. The proposed subsurface corridors and tunnels will permit all these persons to circulate freely throughout the entire area of three squares and have access to the twelve buildings, without making use of surface street facilities.

The vehicular roadways will be wide enough to carry four lanes of traffic leading into a central area 185 by 320 feet, from which deliveries can be made to all the buildings in the development. Nearly a mile of pedestrian corridors will be constructed. They are to be air conditioned and well lighted and flanked on both sides by shops. Altogether the plans contemplate turning over to public use more than two acres of private land, including a wide promenade running west to the sunken plaza in the central block and a new surface street through the Rockefeller Center north and south from Forty-eighth to Fifty-first street.

In connection with the proposed scheme for the new development, it has been suggested that extension of the innovation to adjacent blocks might well be considered as further aid in solving the growing traffic problems in the busy center of the metropolis.

Wasting Valuable Time.

Secretary Ickes urges State advisory boards to turn down impracticable or extravagant public works projects, instead of "passing the buck" to Washington. The Public Works Administration finds its operations slowed down by needless consideration of projects which should have been rejected by the State boards. Mr. Ickes says:

> I fully appreciate the State groups of P. W. A. are subjected to pressure, political and otherwise, in behalf of particular projects, with proponents giving little consideration to merit. No matter what the interest is, it remains the duty of the State groups to consider projects on merit alone, bearing in mind real social values as well as economic, financial, engineering and legal feasibility.

Actual experience reveals that it is a tedious task to bring an important public works project to the point where it meets every test of desirability. Communities hoping to obtain large appropriations of public money easily convince themselves that their particular projects will serve a public need and will not be a crushing burden.

But Mr. Ickes reminds the State boards that some communities would bankrupt themselves if their proposals were accepted. Some projects, while financially feasible, are impracticable from an engineering viewpoint, or their economic merit may not be worth their cost and maintenance charges. Somebody must take the time to examine projects and apply the tests of acceptability. If the Public Works Administration is doing this winnowing of projects which should be done in the States, it is not surprising that slow progress is made in construction.

The showing up to date is unsatisfactory to all concerned, including the Public Works Administration itself. Too much time evidently is consumed in considering unworthy projects—time which could be utilized more profitably in pushing forward actual construction of public works of unquestioned merit.

America's Cup Challenge.

Announcement from London that the Royal Yacht Squadron has issued a challenge to the United States for another series of races for the America's cup will interest not merely the yachting fraternity, but all Americans who have followed the repeated efforts of British sportsmen to regain this prized trophy. The new challenge is issued on behalf of Thomas Octave Murdoch Sopwith, aircraft manufacturer and pilot.

The yacht races are inseparably linked with the name of Sir Thomas Lipton, who made five attempts to lift the cup between 1898 and 1930. The five Shamrocks he sent across the Atlantic in the quest would have been followed by a sixth had he lived another year. The Lipton challenges were made through the Royal Ulster, but in the year of his death Sir Thomas was made a member of the Royal Yacht Squadron.

An interesting innovation will be afforded in next year's race by the new challenger, which is being constructed entirely of steel. It is, of course, of the America's size, which is approximately 120 feet long on deck and 80 feet on the water line, with 7,500 feet of sail spread from a mast 168 feet high. The designer is Charles E. Nicholson, who designed the last two Lipton Shamrocks.

The challenge is addressed to the New York Yacht Club, which has been custodian of the America's cup since 1857. That the challenge will be accepted is a foregone conclusion. The next races will be the fifteenth in the series which started in 1870. In the first challenge contest the Cambria sailed against fourteen American yachts and finished tenth. Conditions were changed in the following year to make it a two yacht race. Yachtmen expect a new American defender to be built for the 1934 contest. This international match now demands that a contender win four races over alternating windward and leeward and triangular courses of 30 miles each.

Pan-American Questions.

Two questions that may come before the Pan-American Conference in December threaten to provoke animated discussions. The propriety of considering them at that parley is already under discussion, with decided differences of opinion. These troublesome subjects relate to intervention and foreign debts.

Reports from Argentina and Chile indicate that they do not desire to be classed as defaulting nations. Unusual efforts, it is said, are being made, even in connection with provincial loans, to meet payments at least in part, and to give assurance that all obligations will be met as soon as possible. Chile has set up an amortization bank which is accumulating funds from special taxes. If the question should be raised at Montevideo, Argentina is expected to maintain that it is a non-defaulting nation. Various republics of South America are said to realize that, as their foreign loans have no official connection with the American Government, adjustments should be sought by direct negotiation with private creditors.

The interjection of the intervention question at the conference probably would provoke the usual acrimonious expression of opinions, with little hope of practical results. Writing frankly in the Panama American on this subject, Salomon de la Selva, a well-known political writer, says that denouncing intervention is a waste of effort. He adds that if this matter should be considered at Montevideo the Latin nations should avoid expressions reflecting attitudes which nearly wrecked the Havana conference.

It is to be hoped, says Mr. de la Selva, that there will be a different spirit at the forthcoming parley, which should hold the welfare of the continent paramount. Intervention, he finds, is not a practice confined to the United States, history affording more than a hundred cases in which one Latin-American country has intervened in the affairs of another. Recent examples of American withdrawal of forces from Nicaragua and Haiti, and restraint in connection with the Cuban situation, have given added assurance of the absence of imperialistic designs by the United States. If intervention must be discussed at Montevideo, he thinks it should be possible to consider the question free from the rancor which too often has accompanied such discussions.

China's Anti-Red Drive.

The Nanking government is making every effort to enlist effective cooperation of the Cantonese armies in the extensive campaign to be directed against Communists in central China. Gen. Chiang Kai-shek is reported from Shanghai to be preparing for the most intensive drive yet undertaken against the red forces, but he is awaiting assurance that when he starts from the north the forces of Gen. Chen Chia-tang also will attack from the south.

Parleys are being held both in Shanghai and Canton in the hope of aligning support from the various southern commanders on the northern Kwantung border in a campaign to crush the Communists between the armies of the north and south. Gen. Chiang is dispatching supplies of all kinds to Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi province, in preparation for the coming advance. Indicative of the intensive fighting anticipated, these supplies include 10,000 hospital beds to be added to several thousand already provided at the base hospitals in the district.

With the return of Dr. T. V. Soong, minister of finance, Nanking has been able to secure additional funds from the banks, including $20,000,000 which will be largely used in financing the anti-red campaign. Dr. Soong holds that present conditions in China call for centralized executive power, such as he found in other countries. With a concentration of authority he expects to see the Nanking government function more effectively.

The situation in north China for the moment appears to be quiet, the combined drive of Japanese and Chinese troops having quickly forced the rebellious irregulars of Gen. Fang Chen-wu from the neutral zone south of the Great Wall. This force still causes apprehension, since it occupies several towns and villages outside the demilitarized area within 25 miles of Peiping, and continues to augment its numbers from former soldiers and bandits adrift in the country

From the Boston Transcript.

President Roosevelt seems to have discovered something, in the workings of Government aid, that disturbs him. In his address last night on the mobilization of human needs he emphasized continually that Federal assistance should not supplant, it should only supplement that of States and municipalities and private charities. It was a fundamental policy of the administration which preceded his that it was the first duty of the local unit, and the last of the Federal Government, to maintain welfare and relief work; that the National Government was not organized for that purpose, and once Uncle Sam entered upon that task, he would be expected by many to carry the full burden. President Hoover even leaned backward in his insistence upon holding local agencies responsible for welfare work in their own communities, but he was only a voice crying in the night.

The policy of the Roosevelt administration has been predicated upon huge Federal expenditures for the relief of the distressed. Congress, under the leadership of the President, went joyously to it, and thousands of millions, in gifts and loans, are being poured out in an only partly successful effort to stem the tide of distress. But the "Let George do it" policy of which the President complains is a natural human reaction. Especially has it embarrassed such charitable work as is dependent on private individuals, who have reasoned that they would prefer to make their contributions in taxes, in which all would share, than personally, with the knowledge that they were paying disproportionately for the relief of their fellow citizens.

Mr. Roosevelt has now got back to first principles. The overwhelming majority of the American people understand clearly, he says, that it is the first duty of the individual and the local community to do all they can to maintain relief and welfare; that the Federal Government stands ready to help only when these agencies have failed. We would not criticize the President in this matter, with all his burdens, but we trust that Congress and the local governments will take to heart the sound advice he emphasizes and that the mobilization forces under Newton D. Baker will act upon it. Even yet, although conditions are improving, large sums of money are needed for direct relief which the politicians would spend on public works, which can relieve very few.

RED AND GREEN LIGHTS IN CONGRESS.

The Danish Parliament has installed red and green lights to control speeches. There's an idea worth adopting in this country. Can't you imagine what would happen in our own Senate?

• • • •

Senator Dufflebag—Mr. President, I have been waiting here for ten minutes to make a speech on the tariff.

President—I can't help it. The light is against you.

Senator Dufflebag—You should speed up the system. There's no sense keeping the red on forever.

Senator Phootle—It merely ties up oratory for five or six blocks.

Senator Twitchell—It takes all day to get through with a 2,000-word speech. I remember when I could deliver 10,000 words in two hours.

Senator Dufflebag—I demand the right to say a few words on the tariff.

President—I can not allow it.

Senator Dufflebag—Suppose I turn from the tariff and discuss the gold standard?

President—You know the rules. No turns on red.

• • • •

Senator Phootle—There! I told you so.

President—What?

Senator Phootle—Traffic is all jammed up and——

Senator Dufflebag (as the red changes to green)—Mr. Speaker and gentlemen. There is a tide in the affairs of men which, taken at the . . . Hey! . . . Listen!

President—What's the trouble now?

Senator Dufflebag—You switched the green back to red before I could get into high.

President—You're too slow on your pickup.

• • • •

Senator Phootle—Can that guy stand there all day and tie up all traffic?

Senator Dufflebag—It's all rhythm anyway. If you get off to a bad start on red you'll be stopped at every paragraph. It's funny how it works out.

Senator Twitchell—There ought to be an intermediate light for caution.

President—Who ever heard of a senator showing caution?

(Suddenly a senator breaks into the head of the line and begins delivering a speech on the peach nut industry. There is great objection.)

Senator Dufflebag—He can't do that.

Senator Phootle—He's gotta stay in line.

Senator Twitchell—Why don't he wait for green like the rest of us?

President (apologetically) — He can't help it. He's color blind!

CONFIRMATION.

Mr. Rockefeller, from whose offices ideas for liquor control after repeal are descending upon newspaper offices like snowflakes on a Siberian landscape, says that good whisky can be made for 45 cents a quart. This bears out the general complaint that 75 cents a drop for the last 14 years has been a little exorbitant.

One of the many signs of repeal is that full quart bottles are reappearing in America and that there has been a big falling off in funny labels.

It is becoming so difficult to keep anybody at these disarmament conferences that there is talk of making the delegates sign a run of the play contract.

Daily Talks About Books and Authors

The Answer of Melancholy.

Robert Burton, who wrote this huge work, was a lonely scholar at Oxford, where he spent most of his life until he died in 1640. Sometimes he emerged from his room and leaned over the parapet of Magdalen Bridge, shaking with laughter at the coarse jokes of the bargemen. This was his reaction against his prevailing mood of melancholy. He suffered from chronic low spirits and black despondency. Like many a sufferer, he became interested in his symptoms. Whence his melancholy? So he spent his life writing one vast volume, in which he attempted to psychoanalyze himself, make a diagnosis of this mental disease, hoping by thus studying it to cure himself. The attempt failed. He never shook off his melancholy.

But I think, when his book was published in 1621, its prodigious success must have alleviated his suffering. It went through many editions and he kept making additional pages.

It would be a great mistake to suppose that this book is dull. It is filled with human sympathy and humor. Saintsbury called it a perpetual refuge and delight. It is filled with good stories about men and women. It is a case-book. And his remarks about suicide, fishing, chess-playing, and especially his comments on lovers, will always please. A few years ago a new edition, with all the Latin quotations translated, was edited by Floyd Dell.

If We Pray for Common Sense, We May Not Have to Pray for Rain

By Robert Quillen.

One spring years ago, following a period of expansion and speculation, America began to develop the typical symptoms of depression.

Prices fell, banks closed, securities were dumped, jobless men walked the streets.

And then in the early fall the whole bad business ended almost in a day.

Europe had suffered a disastrous crop failure. America had produced one of the greatest crops in her history. And hungry Europe's gold made America prosperous again.

This time the story may be reversed.

You may not care about crop figures, but you do care about eating, and this concerns your morning toast.

The Government is urging farmers to plant less wheat in order to raise the price. It offers a kind of bribe to win their cooperation. And as this is written, it is offering the Orient 35,000,000 bushels, at a figure below the world price, in order to reduce the quantity of wheat in this country.

The idea is to make wheat scarce, for scarcity is the only thing that will insure a high price.

Nature is helping the good work along, and if she continues her help for another year or two, somebody is going hungry.

Do you know how much wheat we have on hand? Neither does anybody else. Government experts say 385,000,000 bushels. But they take available production records and subtract available consumption records and assume that the difference is left on hand.

But they say most of that 385,000,000 bushels is held on farms. That may sound right to a Government expert, but not to people who know something about farming.

Wheat "left on the farm" is fed to stock or eaten by chickens, pigeons and rats, or spoiled by mold and weevils. Very little of it ever will be flour.

There isn't enough hard wheat in sight to feed America a year.

This year the wheat section suffered the greatest drought in a generation. Kansas, banner wheat producing State, harvested but a fifth of her normal crop.

Wheat land is hard and dry. Even a normal snowfall this winter can not store up enough moisture to produce a normal crop.

Wheat is a heavy drinker. It takes an average of 1,044 pounds of water to produce a pound of wheat. And another year of drought, plus a little more Government generosity, should make bread scarce enough to please everybody but the city poor.

a present for her dad
Would delight Miss Nellie's parent
and would also make her glad;
But I later on discovered not all
sweetness filled the cup,
For at times as late as midnight he would still be sitting up.
And though I was bent on wooing,
all my fondest hopes he'd mar,
By remaining calmly with us till
he'd smoked that good cigar.

Oh, the hours I sat and watched him, wishing he would go to bed
As he puffed that clear Havana and
not hearing half he said.
Oft I'd say: "Smoke this tomorrow,"
He'd reply, with wrinkled
brow,
"Since it isn't quite my bedtime, I believe I'll light it now."
And instead of courting Nellie I would have to sit and stare.
At her father blowing smoke rings
from his ancient easy chair.

So, young men who go a-wooing,
bear this helpful thought in
mind,
It will be to your advantage to her father to be kind,
But though good cigars may please
him, if the hour be growing
late,
Keep your present in your pocket
or you'll have to sit and wait
Just as I did, wasting moments—and how precious few they
are—
Till the daddy of your sweetheart
puffs away your good cigar.

Who's He?

Southern Lumberman, Nashville.

A detective magazine article says it is impossible for any man to disappear without leaving a trace of his whereabouts. Well, what about Jack Garner?

THERE IS AN importance that attaches to the controversy between Gen. Johnson and Mr. James True, a trade letter writer, an importance that justifies the attention it has attracted. But it is not an importance due to Mr. True or because of the "freedom of the press" being involved.

For one thing, Mr. True is not of the daily press by any stretch of the imagination. I believe he does claim to represent a trade publication in addition to his trade letter service,—a service that purports to give facts and information to business men which can not be obtained by newspapermen. I have never understood just what that information was, but this is beside the point.

• • • •

MR. TRUE is not entitled to attend the general's press conferences as a newspaperman. Of that, there is no doubt. As to whether he has a bona-fide trade paper connection entitling him to admission in that category is the concern of the trade paper correspondents.

The thing that is important in the controversy—and the impression is inescapable the general would like to see it dropped—is there is hardly any doubt that Mr. True would be attending the conferences today had he not criticized the NRA, had he not, as the general described it, "sabotaged" the much-discussed agency, the agency which the general holds so dear.

• • • •

THAT this is the importance—and the only importance—attaching to the controversy is something the general does not yet seem to understand. He makes the point that no freedom of the press is involved, that Mr. True is not a newspaperman.

He overlooks entirely the revelatory nature of the incident as reflecting the state of his mind.

The general's press conferences have been just about the most open thing in town. It was he himself who let down the bars and the result has been the newspapermen make up but a small percentage of those who attend. Lobbyists even have been at conferences. Somebody—and I think it was the general—said early in this administration that things were to be done in a gold-fish bowl. Whether it was the general or not, he has tried to administer the NRA in one.

• • • •

I UNDERSTAND now the conference rules are to be tightened and only bona fide newspaper and trade paper representatives admitted. Undoubtedly it will be a more satisfactory arrangement all around.

But the fact remains there would have been none of this hullabaloo and Mr. True could have remained all day long had he not criticized the NRA.

• • • •

WHEN the general entered the controversy he realized his foot had slipped. And he logically called upon Mr. Charles Michaelson, who knows the newspaper and publicity business thoroughly, to help him extricate himself.

And Charles fixed up a nice piece of extrication by explaining that Mr. True was not eligible for a press conference. If the general had stopped there, it is likely the incident would have passed over. But there is no escaping the fact that what irked him, what caused him to "fly off the handle" was criticism of the NRA.

• • • •

THIS is a surprising attitude for the general. It is his colorful nature that has carried the NRA. If it were not for him the thing would have been off the front pages long ago, and — of course there is the question of whether we all would not be better off if that had happened.

But, for better or worse, he is the NRA. And one of his most attractive features has been his sense of humor. If he is shorn of that — well, he won't be the same general. An incident or so of the True kind will have shorn him, too.

Letters to the Editor.

Cites Maryland Farmer Who Averaged Eleven Cents Net for Whole Milk.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was tremendously interested in your article concerning the controversy over the prices paid to the farmer for milk by the independent and the national dairies. I hope you will give time and space to more of these and enlighten the consumers on the difference in the price between the producer and the consumer.

I shall quote prices as given by a Maryland farmer, who was unable last fall to pay his taxes. For contract milk, and this farmer could make a contract for only fifteen gallons, he was paid 20 cents per gallon. For the second lot, ten gallons, he received 15 cents per gallon. For the third lot, called surplus, consisting of 25 gallons, he received 7 cents a gallon. This averaged the farmer approximately 13 cents per gallon, and from this he had deducted 2 cents for handling and shipping. Thus the farmer received net 11 cents per gallon for whole milk.

The independent dairy is now paying this farmer 15 cents per gallon net for his milk.

NRA Affects Trade Revival Through Japan

Raw Silk Business Drops as American Mills Reduce Purchases.

Tokyo, Oct. 18 (AP).—Japan watches closely the working of the NRA in the United States, for America is Nippon's best customer.

Anything interpreted here as a halt in the recovery act produces a corresponding check in Japanese revival, and in the last two months the Tokyo and Osaka Stock Exchanges have closely matched any indecision of the New York market.

Nipponese foreign trade has flourished, relatively speaking, in recent months with a 39 per cent increase in value.

But a setback recently occurred in the raw silk industry as a result of a 27 per cent decline in American mills' consumption in September compared to August.

Another reverse is threatened by rising tariff barriers, especially those of the British Empire, which are designed to offset Japan's advantage through depreciated currency and low wages.

Because of this Japanese delegations in Simla and London are seeking agreements to avert a trade war between the two island empires.

Indications are that something resembling normal Chinese-Japanese trade relations is returning after boycotts which reduced Japanese exports to China close to the vanishing point in the two-year period of Manchurian conflict.

The return of the Chinese minister, Chang Tso-Pin, to Tokyo last week after a long absence and the establishment of a reputedly pro-Japanese Huangfu administration in North China were hailed in Tokyo as auguring more prosperous Sino-Japanese relations.

China is staggering under huge afflictions. Japanese military pressure on China has abated, but floods, famines and communism continue in the central Chinese provines.

The prospect of bumper crops—rice in Japan, soy beans in Manchuria and wheat and cotton in China—depresses the outlook for agriculture in all three countries.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Diverticulitis.

A diverticulum is a pouch on the side of a tube. It is caused by errors or faults in development, and therefore is congenital, the exceptions being too infrequent to be of any consequence. All the diverticula that are of any practical importance occur in connection with the digestive tube. There are diverticula in connection with other tubes, but they go by other names. For instance, aneurysms of the blood vessels are diverticula, although they are acquired rather than inherited, but no one has them in mind when thinking of diverticula. In bronchiectasis there are diverticula of the bronchial tubes, but these are called bronchiectatic cavities.

Some of the bulges in the digestive tube known as diverticula are located in the neck, but most of them are in that part of the tract which is located in the abdomen. When we consider the many and complicated stages through which this part of the anatomy goes, and the many bends and folds and variations in size and in function of it after maturity, the wonder is that the builder's plans go wrong so rarely.

A diverticulum of itself is not a source of symptoms. Those who have them feel like other people and do not know that their insides depart in any way from the orthodox plan. Therefore diverticula are regarded neither as diseases nor conditions. We think of them as hazards. They are liable to fill up with food or food remnants and, since most of them open into the intestine by a small gateway, their contents are not easily emptied. It follows that local inflammations and infections are apt to occur. Diverticula are liable to get caught in hernia, or in twists or invaginations. This possibility adds another hazard.

There is no curative procedure except operation, and the need for that may be urgent. A strangulated diverticulum calls for prompt operation for the same reason that promptness of action is a necessity in strangulated hernia. If there is an impaction there is apt to be ulceration of the diverticulum with perforation, and that, too, calls for quick action. There is no treatment of them except that necessity for which arises out of emergencies. It is possible for a certain amount of filling to occur for this to cause colicky pains, for the diverticula to empty their contents into the intestines, and for the pain to subside. But this is effected by what we call nature, and nothing the patient can take or do makes any particular difference. There is no medical treatment or way of living that can cause a diverticulum to disappear.

Treating Warts.

N. V. D. S. writes: Give a remedy for warts.

Reply.

Warts can be burned off by a hot needle or by electricity. Persistent application of castor oil, calomel ointment, alcohol, camphor, or a solution of salicylic acid will cure in time. Keeping them clean and dry will cure sometimes. Huck and Tom say spooks cure warts and they sometimes do. Here is one place where magic works sometimes.

Angina Pectoris.

Mrs. J. L. writes: 1. Is it possible for a person to acquire angina pectoris as a result of severe shock suffered in an automobile accident?

2. Could this condition persist as long as one year after the accident?

Reply.

1. Yes, if the condition of the vessel walls was about right for the development of this disorder. Violent emotion is the straw that breaks more than one camel's back.

2. Yes.

Radio Waves and Ripples

WORD has come to broadcasters that President Roosevelt henceforth will keep off the air unless he has some particular message he wishes to bring home to the people.

That was the original White House "fireside chat" plan. Deviations have been many lately, so many, in fact, the brains up Pennsylvania avenue way were beginning to wonder if a few more human needs campaign send-offs and memorial unveilings might not put the White House on the same appeal-level as toothpaste and patent medicines.

This explains a last-minute shift in plans for radioing the Presidential degree bestowal at Washington College, Chestertown, Saturday. Columbia was to have put the Roosevelt acknowledgment on a network. Now all broadcasting will be confined to Washington's WMAL, N. B. C., and WJSV, C. B. S., unless Columbia is able to ring in Baltimore's WCAO, which isn't likely.

President Roosevelt, since his inauguration, has taken to an N. B. C. microphone 14 times. The C. B. S. statistical department has been allowing the figure work to pile up lately, but Presidential broadcasts normally are carried by both the older networks simultaneously.

All-time Presidential record for broadcasts is held by Herbert Hoover with something more than 100 in four years. The late President Coolidge was the most infrequent broadcaster, 37 in seven years. Excluding out-and-out campaign talks, it took Mr. Hoover a year to make 23 N. B. C. broadcasts, and that was in the last 12 months of his administration, when the G. O. P. minds were getting frantic.

Whitecaps.

WRC—Fleishman Hour, 8 p. m.; Show Boat, 9 p. m.; Paul Whiteman, Deems Taylor, master of ceremonies, 10 p. m. WMAL—British political broadcast, "Futility of National Government," by George Lansbury, Labor party leader, 4:15 p. m.; George Washington University Forum, Athletic Director James E. Pixlee, 8:30 p. m.; Phil Spitalny's Orchestra, 12:01 a. m. WJSV—Army Band, 4 p. m.; Stamp Club, philatelic drama, 5:45 p. m.; Mountain Music, 6:45 p. m. WOL—Today in Sports, 6:15 p. m.; A. B. S. Concert Orchestra, 8:30 p. m.; Wrestling matches, 9:30 p. m.

Bandman Maxim Lowe has done his bit for perpetuation of a tradition among the music makers as well established, probably, as Shylock's red beard.

In his contract with Barnet ("Barnee") Breeskin, WMAL's Manhattan Revue bandman, is written:

"It is further stipulated that your hair is not to be cut without my permission."

WJSV celebrates a year of Columbia broadcasting tomorrow with a special program that so far has been arranged to include most of the people who were around and doing things for C. B. S. at 8 p. m., October 20, 1932, and the Mayor of Alexandria, E. F. Ticer.

WJSV is proud of the things it has done since Columbia took it over. Some of those: An expansion which has made necessary the acquisition of two new announcers and larger studios, more and bigger news broadcasts, first Capital station to use a three-way hookup (radioing a female song trio from three points).

The anniversary broadcast is from 10:30 to 10:45 p. m.

And the Columbia outlet already has taken steps to avoid a repetition of Tuesday's wild half hour of program improvization. To make sure they will have an announcer at the Alexandria transmitter to play records whenever an unexpected "hole" turns up through cancellation of a scheduled show, the minds have taken to marking the time tables in such a way as to inform each broadcaster where he is supposed to be during each hour of the day. It seems the announcer who was to have handled the Troika program didn't understand he should have made a quick run out to the transmitter when the show was canceled 10 minutes before broadcast time.

WRC has taken a new sustaining program, "Creole Cabin," which is to be a singing of original darky melodies by Camille Nickerson, of the Howard University faculty, together with a dispersing, by Miss Nickerson, of her knowledge of folk music. First broadcast will be Saturday, 7:45. Others will follow, probably with the addition of a barytone.

WMAL announcers, Youse and Mayo, handle the Eastern-Western High School football broadcasting tomorrow afternoon, 3:15.

N. B. C.'s No. 1 local tenor, Bert Bagranoff, forgot he was to have received his B. S. degree from George Washington University yesterday. He was too busy broadcasting.

The Most Rev. Edward F. Gibbons, Bishop of Albany, and Spencer Miller, jr., consultant on industrial relations of the Social Service Department, National Council of the Episcopal Church, will take over the Catholic and Episcopal periods for Columbia's Church of the Air broadcast Sunday . . . Mrs. Roosevelt's address to Bryn Mawr alumnae Tuesday will be through an N. B. C. microphone at 9:30 p. m. . . . "March of Time" tomorrow night is a dramatization of German withdrawal from the arms conference and the League of Nations . . . U. S. Education Commissioner George Zook and "Anthony Adverse" Author Hervey Allen are the American Library Association broadcasters tomorrow at 2:30 and 5 p. m. respectively, N. B. C. . . . Italian Barytone Mario Cozzi will concentrate on "Nichavo" for N. B. C. at 10:30 tomorrow night . . . Army-Illinois, Michigan-Ohio and Columbia-Princeton are the N. B. C. games Saturday, all at 1:45 p. m. . . . and, the studios are laughing at the story of the Capital spirit medium who wanted to know if a little radio advertising wouldn't help business some.

Soprano and clown for N. B. C. are Jessica Dragonette and Fred Allen. Miss Dragonette is one of the higher lights of the Cities Service concerts Friday nights. Allen has rought his own company to National for Salad Bowl Revue microphoning, also Friday nights.

Rotary Has World-Wide Roll of 3,500 Clubs

Rotary International now has more than 3,500 clubs, in practically every country in the world, George W. Harris, sergeant-aat-arms of the international body, told the Washington club yesterday.

More than 100 clubs were chartered last year, about a dozen in the United States and Canada, and the remainder in foreign countries. There are four major headquarters. The original still is in Chicago, the others in London, Zurich and Shanghai.

Commerce Unit Plans Council To Meet Nov. 1

Advisory Committees Will Report on Long Range Business Program.

Approximately 100 business and industrial leaders from over the country will meet here November 1 for the second general conference of the Commerce Department's advisory and planning council, chairman Gerard Swope announced yesterday.

The future organization of the NRA on a semipermanent basis will be the chief topic before the conference. Progress reports also will be received from a score of subcommittees assigned to research on particular phases of the long-range business planning program.

Walter S. Gifford is expected to present the final report of the committee on uniform accounting and business statistics, which has been awaited by NRA officials as a basis for the enforcement program. An interim report also will be presented by the committee on the centralization of industry, of which W. A. Julian, Treasurer of the United States, is chairman.

The executive committee will meet November 2 to plan "for the second and most important stage of the council's activities," Mr. Swope said.

The council was appointed June 26 by Secretary of Commerce Roper to present recommendations on industrial reorganization, governmental business services, and long-range planning. Several council members also are associated with the NRA industrial advisory committee.

Pollard Calls Farm Leaders

Compromise Plan Sought for Growers' Debts at Parley Today.

Richmond, Oct. 18 (AP).—Farm leaders from over the State will meet here tomorrow at the invitation of Gov. Pollard to consider a program of farm-debt conciliation.

The governor said 33 farm leaders had been invited to the meeting.

The gathering is being held at the request of Federal authorities to draft a program for arranging compromise agreements between distressed farmers and their creditors.

Henry Morgenthau, jr., governor of the Federal Farm Administration, will send a representative to the conference.

The Federal administrator said he believed that farm debt conciliation would do much to hasten the Federal program of farm mortgage refinancing. He said that in a substantial proportion of the cases which have come before Federal authorities the debts of the individual farmer exceed the amount which can be loaned him.

"It was clearly not the intention of Congress that the Farm Credit Administration should be used merely to transfer the obligations of the farmer from other creditors to itself," Morgenthau said, "but to make possible a scale-down of debt where necessary in order that the farmer might ultimately work out of his financial difficulties."

Kelly's Wife Held In Cincinnati Jail

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 18 (AP).—Red-haired Kathryn Kelly plied a needle at the unfamiliar task of sewing shirts and darning socks in the Cincinnati City workhouse today, while a city councilman protested against her being accepted as a Federal prisoner there.

The 30-year-old wife of George (Machine Gun) Kelly, who, like him, was given life imprisonment for the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping, was sent here by the Federal Government to serve her term under a contract it has with the city.

For each Federal prisoner it keeps in the workhouse, the city receives 90 cents a day.

$10,119,314 Public Works Funds Allotted

2 Virginia, One Maryland Projects Included in List.

The Public Works Administration yesterday allotted $10,119,314 to be used on 67 non-Federal projects, and 1 in West Virginia. The total allotment will provide 58,317 man-months employment.

Alexandria, Va., received a loan and grant of $300,000 for use in grading and resurfacing 19 miles of streets and construction of 4 miles of sewers.

Thirty per cent of the cost of labor and material which totals $283,500, is a grant. The balance is a loan secured by 4 per cent bonds.

Public Works officials said work could be commenced in Alexandria at once, and can be completed in 16 months. Employment can be given 125 men.

A loan and grant of $30,000 was made to Pulaski, Va., for construction of three bridges. Materials and labor needed will cost $26,000, of which 30 per cent is a grant. As in the case of Alexandria, the balance is secured by 4 per cent bonds. Work will be given 35 men for 24 weeks.

The Town of Belington, W. Va., received a loan and grant of $45,000 for building a filtration plant and installing additional fire protection facilities. At Belington employment will be given 70 men for three months.

A grant of $3,400 was made to Baltimore, to aid in construction of a guard fence for a new road around Prettyboy Dam area in Baltimore County. Work will start within 30 days, giving employment for two months to 53 men.

Special Kansas Session To Fix Rum Control

Topeka, Kans., Oct. 18 (AP).—Gov. Alf M. Landon tonight called a special session of the legislature for October 30 to consider relief and liquor legislation, and to investigate the forgery of Kansas municipal bonds.

The legislative council will meet a week before the session to complete a program.

Hazlitt Urges Cheap Dollar

40 Per Cent Devaluation Asked to Exceed Gold Depreciation.

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Dollar devaluation, in the opinion of Henry Hazlitt, editor and writer on financial topics, would be a forceful factor in speeding up America's recovery program.

Hazlitt—who assumed the editorship of American Mercury this week, succeeding H. L. Mencken—today said devaluation should be to the extent of approximately 40 per cent.

"It should be slightly lower," he added, "than the gold depreciation in the dollar, which has been around 35 per cent."

The time for convertibility into gold, in the event of devaluation, he said, should be placed at a future date.

"This would serve to instill confidence that the gold reserves are secure," he said, "and would prevent immediate raids on the reserve by flighty people who feared their dollar was less secure since less gold was behind it.

Any attempt to return to the content prevailing before the President's proclamation halted conversion of the dollar into gold, Hazlitt said, "would force a violent drop in commodity prices."

Police Court Charge Denied.

John Linwood Bailey, 33, of 3133 Thirteenth street northwest, pleaded not guilty, in Police Court yesterday, to a house-breaking charge. Bailey is alleged to have been an accomplice in an attempted store breaking at 614 T street northwest on October 15.

Stars Sizzling "Like Bacon" Reach Earth Through Radio

Sound is 40,000 Years Away; Astronomers Puzzled.

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—The stars massed in the southern skies tonight made a sizzling sound—like bacon in a frying pan—which was picked up by a radio here.

The sound was broadcast to a meeting of the New York Electrical Society and the Amateur Astronomers Association by Karl G. Jansky, of the Bell Laboratories, who has been tuning in on it for two years at Holmdahl, N. J.

The source of these radio waves was from the Constellation Sagittarius, the Archer, in the Milky Way, about midway between the southern horizon and the Zenith.

40,000 Years Away.

Behind Sagittarius lies a mass of stars 40,000 light years away from earth, visible only in telescopes. These stars are thought to be the source of most of the sizzling, a short radio wave slightly under 50 feet long. They are the center of Milky Way, with a gravitational pull so immense that around them, like a cartwheel, revolve nearly 30,000,000,000 other stars.

The earth and the solar system lie in this cartwheel, about two-thirds of the way toward the rim. The waves heard tonight travel with the speed of light and are believed to have started 40,000 years ago from this hub of the universe.

What causes them, Jansky said, is not known. They could not be, he said, radiations from ordinary stars like the sun, because none of them seems to come from the sun, despite its nearness. They might be, he hazarded, rays from young stars, which are boiling with energy far in excess of the sun.

Seeks Shorter Waves.

Jansky said he is making new receivers, which will be turned toward the stars in search for shorter wave lengths. He explained that these radio signals might be the original waves from stars piercing the earth's atmosphere, or that they could also be waves set up in the earth's own atmosphere by the bombardment of primary radio waves coming from distant space.

But even if they are only the secondary signals originating in the atmosphere, his calculations showed that the space waves beating on the upper atmosphere come mainly from the direction of the Milky Way center.

These signals are continuous. At no time has there been noted such a break in their continuity as might be taken to indicate that intelligent beings outside the earth were trying to attract attenion.

WomenPonder Jobless Child

Voters' League Discusses Problem Arising From Ban in Industry.

Problems growing out of the prohibition of child labor under NRA were seen as a challenge to the League of Women Voters at a meeting of the national executive committee of the organization yesterday.

The need for funds to enable curtailed educational systems to care for thousands of children who might otherwise be working was emphasized.

"The schools, at a time when the problem of adequate revenue is extremely acute, will need to provide for increased enrollment in high schools and upper grades," Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, executive vice president and acting chairman of the league's department of education, said.

Vocational education courses, which were reduced last year, will be needed to care for many of these children, she pointed out.

Other features of the recovery program significant to women voters, such as trade practice provisions in codes, were discussed. Attending the meeting were Mrs. Quincy Wright, of Chicago; Mrs. Elsie A. Zinsmeister, of Louisville, and Miss Belle Sherwin, president, of Cleveland.

Officers' China Duty Ends.

Lieut. Col. William C. Powers and First Lieuts. Harold C. Roberts, J. G. Walraven and A. W. Ellis were relieved of duty in Shanghai, China, and will return to the United States, it was learned here yesterday from the commanding officer of the Fourth Marines.

Skyline Drive Plan Is Given To U. S. Board

Reynolds "Encouraged" After Talk With Public Works Group.

(Associated Press.)

Sponsors of the proposed scenic highway from the Shenandoah National Park to the Smoky Mountain National Park presented their project yesterday to the Public Works Administration.

The highway would run from the Virginia park, through a portion of Tennessee, to a point near Asheville, N. C.

Senator Reynolds, of North Carolina, and Senator Byrd, of Virginia, are among those active in behalf of the road.

Reynolds' office said the senator was "encouraged" over the road's prospects after the conference.

Skyline Contract Given.

Luray, Va., Oct. 18 (Spl.).—The Keeley Construction Co., Clarksburg, W. Va., has been awarded the contract for macadamizing and resurfacing the Skyline Drive from Thornton's Gap to Fisher's Gap, a distance of 17 miles. The bid was $230,238.

The Keeley Co. was also awarded the contract for macadamizing and resurfacing the Skyline Drive to its southern end, but officials of the company, it was said, will not undertake both jobs. The next lowest bidder for the work on one half of the drive was the Ralph Mills Co., of Franklin, Ky., at $226,067. It is expected the Mills company will be given the job on the southern end.

Denies Route Is Fixed.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 18 (Spl.).—Senator Harry F. Byrd, who was appointed by Gov. Pollard to head the Virginia committee to promote the scenic highway connecting the Shenandoah and Smoky Mountain Parks, declared here tonight that a "news dispatch from Washington stating that the route of the road has been decided upon is erroneous."

Byrd added that no decision has been made as to what route the road will take. He declared that the action of the committee had been to request sufficient funds from the Federal Government to carry the highway connecting the two Parks to the National capital.

The senator stated he felt "very confident the project connecting Shenandoah and Great Smoky Parks by using Federal funds as a Federal project will be successful."

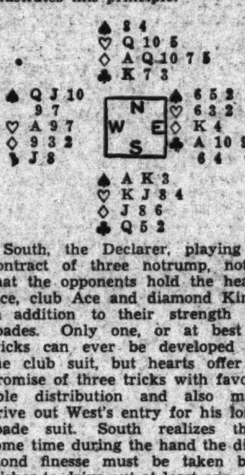
Removing Opponents' Re-entries.

The general principle of the play of hands at notrump is for the Declarer to attempt to establish his longest suit or the one which offers the possibility of winning the greatest number of tricks. There are, however, some exceptions to this rule. One occurs when opponents have a sure card of entry which must be driven out, and also hold a suit which can soon became established. In such cases it is wise to take out opponents' sure entry card immediately, hoping by these tactics to block the run of opponents' long suit. The hand below illustrates this principle:

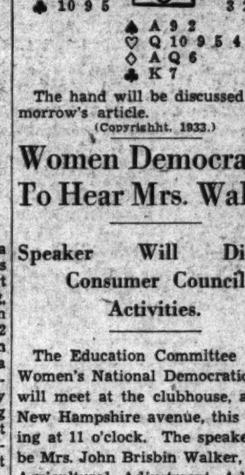


South, the Declarer, playing a contract of three notrump, notes that the opponents hold the heart Ace, club Ace and diamond King, in addition to their strength in spades. Only one, or at best 2 tricks can ever be developed in the club suit, but hearts offer a promise of three tricks with favorable distribution and also may drive out West's entry for his long spade suit. South realizes that some time during the hand the diamond finesse must be taken but wishes to drive out at least one entry before a suit is established against him. His first step, therefore, after winning West's Opening lead of the spade Queen, is to drive out the heart Ace. West wins the second round of the suit and returns the spade Knave, which South refuses to win, since the success of his plan of campaign rests upon voiding East's hand of spades. He wins the third round of spades and now tries the diamond finesse. This fails, but East, whose hand is now void of spades, can not place his partner in the lead. It is true that he holds the club Ace, but the plan of the Declarer in driving out East's entry before attempting to establish his long suit has permitted the fulfillment of the contract.

Tomorrow's Hand.

Should North and South reach a contract of six hearts on the hand below, and if this contract is reached, how can it be made?

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

The Counselor of the Chilean Embassy, Senor Don Benjamin Cohen, will sail from New York Saturday, November 4, aboard the Santa Barbara, for South America, where he will attend the Pan-American Conference, which opens on December 3, in Montevideo.

What Today Means

"Libra."

If October 19 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 to 11:30 a. m., from 2 to 3 p. m. and from 5:30 to 6 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 to 9 a. m., from 4 to 4:40 p. m. and from 7 to 8:10 p. m.

Influences operating on this date will keep you from appearing in the best light. You will be inclined to be nervous and irritable, quick to criticize and not at all inclined to give the other fellow an even break. Things will probably start off badly in the morning at home, and this run of similar events will seem to hound you all through the day. No one will be able to please you.

The child born on this October 19 may quite possibly have a disagreeable disposition and will not try to fit his plans in with those of others. He will invariably want what is necessary for him at an awkward and often embarrassing time. He will forget things quickly and can never be counted on to come through 100 per cent. Will be careless about his appearance.

If October 19 is the date of your birth, you are more than likely a person of impressive appearance. You meet people well and know how to jolly them along so as to get what you want from them; you are inclined to flatter a good deal. By sheer force of personality you bluff yourself along through life. People will like you generally from the moment they meet you, and they will be a long time discovering that you do not strike a sincere note. You are a very material person, you measure success solely by wealth and social prestige. If things go against you, you will more than likely become very bitter.

Born on October 19, you no doubt have a temper, and one which you do not attempt to control. It will become worse as you grow older unless you make some definite move to suppress it. You are very ambitious, for yourself and for your family; you work hard for your social successes. You are a jealous person and most selfish. The best side of your nature comes out when you are out in the country for some considerable time, away from many of your worldly contacts. Here you are able to see things more sanely, for you come closer to being face to face with the stern realities of life. Yours will not be a happy life.

Successful people born on October 19:

No End of Books

Ex-Inspector Fitch of Scotland Yard Tells of Activities Against Spies and Anarchists; Dorothy Parker Writes New Book of Short Stories.

Doubleday-Doran has just published "Traitors Within," the memoirs of former Detective Inspector Herbert T. Fitch, of Scotland Yard. If there is one thing more fascinating than to hear a doctor step out "from under the rose" and tell of things he actually met, it is to hear a detective do so.

Inspector Fitch satisfies the most curious. Of Lord Kitchener's death on the torpedoed cruiser Hampshire, he narrates the events (Kitchener's personal attendant, a detective sergeant from the Yard, was a friend of Fitch's) and sums them up: "No one has ever discovered the exact causes which resulted in this grim tragedy."

Fitch served for many years in the special branch, a little known division of the Yard, whose business was the suppression of espionage and anarchism. Before the war he kept watch on Lenin and Trotsky. During the war he hunted enemy spies. Now, he observes, spying has almost disappeared save on the pages of boys' books. Blackmail, he says, is the modern crime, and the majority of victims are not the rich, but the respectable poor. Inspector Fitch's viewpoint is, of course, English. Kidnaping is no problem there.

Entering the field of humorous novels, John Day Co. picked over a pile numbering 200, before they decided upon Oliver Claxton's first novel—"Heavens Above!"—which they publish today.

Viking Press will publish on October 27 a volume of short stories by Dorothy Parker. The title—"After Such Pleasures"—comes from a line in John Donne's poem, "Farewell to Love."

"Ah, can not we
As well as cocks and lions jocund be,
After such pleasures?"

If the vogue for Donne continues much longer, a vogue fostered at one time or another by T. S. Eliot, Elinor Wylie and Edna St. Vincent Millay, then Shakespeare's record for inspiring book titles may well be threatened by the seventeenth century dean of St. Paul's.

Traveling Westward.

"PASSPORTS FOR ASIA," by Beatrice Borland; Long & Smith, $3.50.

Asia, a focus of world attention atic customs, character and travel conditions.

Miss Borland's party made a large and expansive swing around Asia, visiting Japan, Manchuria, China, Indo-China, Singapore, Bali, Java, India, Persia and Russian Caucasus. All the usual spots are noted, along with scores of out-of-the-way places, that will live for the reader because of many sparkling and keen-sighted anecdotes.

There are sly references to the high price of the Soviet regime in the Caucasus. Meal checks run to $7 a person, while the Intourist (governmental travel agency) will feed, lodge and conduct the stranger for $35 a day.

A large number of excellent photographs which must be credited to the author's sister, Harriet—today, is peculiarly apropos as subject for a book of travel. This tale recounts the adventures of a young Chicago society girl and lecturer on an expedition in Asia with four picturesquely nicknamed companions.

But if the reader is seeking information on economic, social or political conditions he will be disappointed, for there is little recognition of these problems and no analysis.

On the other hand, "Passports for Asia" is a highly readable and pleasantly illuminating account of the impact of customs, places and experiences upon a personality refreshingly lucid and informal.

To unusual powers of observation and description Miss Borland adds a candid sense of humor. The reader feels he has seen the trip as the author saw it, and he leaves the book with a lively memory of Asi-nicknamed "Tomango"—make the book as interesting from a pictorial as from a literary point of view.

M. R. McCORMICK.

A biography, "WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR," by Hilaire Belloc; Peter Davis, London.

The life of the most forceful character in English history before the Reformation afforded Mr. Belloc's fertile and glowing pen a fit outlet for the pent-up store of historical information with which he is rightly credited. Those who have cherished a sentimental regard for Harold, the last of the Saxon kings, will rejoice to learn that the present author has given him full due as a military leader.

However, Mr. Belloc is neither so generous nor so just in the matter of Harold Godwin's motives. He portrays Godwin and his sons as inspired wholly by ambition and lust for place and power in their struggles against the oncoming Norman. There is abundant evidence, on the contrary, which Mr. Belloc can not fail to know, that Godwin was a patriot of high order, determined not to endure the encroachments and insolence of the Norman favorites of Edward the Confessor.

Nor does the author recognize to the full the justice of Harold's claim to the throne of England. Surely it bears more weight than that of William, who claimed it simply by right of conquest.

Mr. Belloc does not idealize William the Conqueror. He portrays him with swift clean strokes, providing a broad background for the general study of this ruler.

The book, a short one, is a real biography though compressed. It gets down to facts and to essentials. In this regard Mr. Belloc differs widely from many of his contemporary biographers, who do not hesitate to weave their own fancies into the lives of their subjects.

Interest in Music "Sesame" to Society

Diplomats, Debutantes and Hostesses, Thus Met.

Washington likes to be thought musical. Perhaps it is for that reason, as well as for other ones, that one can see the leading hostesses, the popular debutantes and the best known club men at musical events. The capacity audience at the National Symphony Orchestra opening concert included the Washington world and his wife.

Patronage of music, it may be whispered, is an opening wedge to many a fast-closed door in the social circles of Washington for the ambitious and the newcomer.

Of course, the diplomats patronize musical events because music is part of their very life. Those who like to hobnob with representatives of foreign nations in the Capital go wherever they think this fascinating element of national society is almost certain to be in attendance.

Mrs. Roosevelt To Be Present At Benefit Show

University Women's Play Part of Fellowship Fund Project.

Led by Mrs. Roosevelt a brilliant Washington gathering will attend the National Theater onday night for a benefit performance on behalf of the Million-Dollar Fellowship Fund of the American Association of University Women.

Mrs. Roosevelt and a party of friends will occupy the President's box. In writing that she would attend, Mrs. Roosevelt said the President might accompany her.

Other box holders who have made reservations include Dr. and Mrs. William John Cooper, Dr. and Mrs. Wilson Compton, Mr. and Mrs. Whitman Cross, Mrs. Frederick Farrington, Mr. and Mrs. Basil Manly, Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, Mrs. Charles Matthews, Dr. and Mrs. John C. Merriam, Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, Mrs. George B. Woods and Mrs. William C. VanVleck. Mrs. Marvin is chairman of the box committee, other members being Mrs. Merle Thorpe, Mrs. Joshua Evans, Mrs. Compton, Mrs. Farrington, Mrs. Ellwood P. Morey, Mrs. Merriam, Mrs. William Slade, Mrs. Woods and Mrs. Otto Veerhof.

The performance will be "Mary of Scotland." It is being presented under the auspices of the Washington branch of the association in an attempt to complete its quota of the fellowship fund. The fund provides for nine scholarships, averaging $1,500.

The Washington fellowship committee is headed by Miss Janeiro Brooks. Other members are Mrs. Lyman B. Swormstedt, Miss Ruby Nevins, Miss Mary Louise Chace, Miss Mildred Green, Miss Margaret Atchison, Mrs. Hampton Percy, Miss Emma Crane, Mrs. Lanier Gray, Mrs. Harvey Wiley, Mrs. Warner J. O'Leary, Miss Eleanor Bonner, Mrs. Veerhof, Miss Pauline Yates Long and Mrs. Stanley Titus.

Social Leader Angel Unaware To Lonely Sailor

Smiles When Told Name Is Vanderbilt; Says He's Prince of Wales.

Washington rejoices to learn that the former Senator from Rhode Island and his charming wife, Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry, formerly Mrs. George Vanderbilt, will pass part of the winter anyway in this city. At the present time they are at Biltmore, N. C., where the Gerrys enjoy the comforts of the Dower House on that super farm.

It will be remembered that Mrs. Gerry, then Mrs. Vanderbilt, during the World War served with the head of the refreshment corps of the District Red Cross, down in the railroad tracks near Union Station where troop trains were handled. One of her companions in this good work was the present First Lady of the Land, who did her "canteen turn" regularly there.

One day a sailor came into the canteen where Mrs. Gerry, then Mrs. Vanderbilt, was at work. He complained that he did not wish to drink his coffee and eat his sandwich alone, so Mrs. Vanderbilt sat down with him. The sailor was pleased with his girlish looking companion and inquired her name. "Mrs. George Vanderbilt," was her reply.

"Good," replied he, "I am the Prince of Wales." He went serenely away, unaware of the fact that his hostess really was a Mrs. Vanderbilt.

Words Have Passed Between Us.

By Katherine W. Smith.

Words that split the bleeding silence
Lie like swords of warriors broken
During battle. Speaking weapons
Sometimes should remain unbroken.

Leaves of olive lose their beauty,
When our feet have made them dusty.
Swords of battle stay unbroken
If their blades are slightly rusty.

What's in Fashion?

Double-Breasted Box Coat Holds Number 1 Position

Directed by Amos Parrish

Information as to where fashions of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, The Washington Post, on request.

As it has been for the last several seasons, the double-breasted box coat will be America's No 1 men's overcoat this season. The same coat you've noticed in past years on steelman Myron C. Taylor, motorman Chrysler, radio's Gen. Harboard, labor's William Green, and plain, comfortably well-dressed John Citizen.

There's good reason for this preference. It's the same simple reason that dictates almost everything men wear: the double-breasted box type is the most wearable of all overcoats.

Nothing confining, or tight, or clumsy, or uncomfortable about it. Properly cut, it has good roomy, natural shoulders. Its back drops straight from the shoulder to just (and comfortably) below the knee. It's full across the chest. And because it is double-breasted, it gives double wind protection where protection is most needed.

Collar Generous.

The collar and lapels of this model, not wide nor bulky like an ulster's, are still generous enough to let a man cover his ears and chest when the blasts blow hard.

A good many of this winter's double-breasted box coats have a half-belt, slightly pinched back—doesn't make the coat tight, but pulls the surplus material together enough to give the coat extra fit and dressiness. Makes it a little warmer and more comfortable, some men think.

Men usually like their double-breasted box coats in fleece fabrics, brushed wools, velours or in the hair cloths like camel's hair, llama and alpaca . . . All of them nappy fabrics suggesting softness and warmth, which accounts for much of their popularity.

Fleeces, Hair Cloths Lead.

This winter will see a big fleece and hair cloth season . . . because these are the fabrics which, through the past several years, have been coming up to prove their full right to first place. But there'll be this difference this year. Where better than nine out of ten were absolutely plain before, this winter will bring out great numbers of fleeces and hair cloth coat in fine checks or good-to-look-at overplaids. Or even subdued herringbones.

Of course, the grays will walk away with first place in the winter overcoat picture. Better than half the men you see will be wearing dark and medium shades of gray. Dark and medium shades of brown and blues will fill the rest of the important places in the winter coat color picture.

The conclusion is obvious that in overcoats, as in everything else, the triumvirate of color, pattern and comfort are influencing men's dress tremendously. Men who get themselves into one of these good-looking, easy-to-wear double-breasted box coats will have the fashionable and the practical answer to the overcoat problem for this and future winters.

Bromfield, Back From Abroad, Expects to Live in Baltimore

Doesn't Care for Paris, Hollywood Too Strenuous, Seeks Quiet Place.

Baltimore, Oct. 18 (AP).—Back in America after three years abroad, Louis Bromfield, the author, today set to work at the prosaic business of hunting a house.

"My wife and three children are coming over next week," he said, "and I have until then to find a place for them to live."

He arrived in Baltimore this morning on the liner City of Newport News, and almost immediately began conferences with real estate men.

There was an intermission when he was discovered by a group of "Pen-Women" in convention in a local hotel and that necessitated a personal appearance and handshaking with the entire group.

Finds India Interesting.

Bloomfield's three years abroad have been spent largely in France, where he has a home, but the most interesting experience, he said, came in India, where he visited the Maharaja of Cooch Behar last winter.

At the midday meal, he noticed about 20 elephants outside. Then quite casually, everybody, including himself, mounted the elephants and rode off "to trample the jungle and shoot leopards."

"They have to shoot them every day to keep them from taking possession of the country," he explained.

The tall, slender author said he did not care to live in New York again but preferred a more quiet place.

"Wreck" After Hollywood Visit.

"When I left three years ago, after six months in Hollywood and six months in New York, they almost had to carry me on the boat in a stretcher. I was a wreck."

"It wasn't Hollywood, it was the work. I am accustomed to working by myself, but out there were crowds of people pawing over my manuscript, telling me how to write it. They even let the truck drivers read it to see what the public's reaction would be."

Paris Is "Whoopee" City.

And speaking of cities, he said he didn't like Paris.

"It's all right to stay a few weeks to make whoopee, but life is too strenuous there."

There was the added hazard, he said, of having one's friends come over to visit during the spring and summer.

"Of course they want to go to a night club every night, which is most exhausting."

Rector Descendant Of Washington

The Rev. Francis Bland Tucker, rector of St. John's Church, Georgetown, is a great, great, great, great grandnephew of George Washington. He is also a brother of the present Bishop of Virginia, a son of the late Bishop Beverly Tucker of Southern Virginia and one of thirteen sons, all of whom were named for ancestors prominent in Revolutionary annals.

Tallulah was Cotton Queen.

Senator Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee, one of the outstanding bachelors of Capitol Hill, once took the part of King Cotton at a fancy dress ball at the Willard Hotel. His long robe had cotton balls for ermine, and he led by the hand a blushing, demure debutante as Queen Cotton, no less a person than the present-day actress, Tallulah Bankhead.

New Record for Tip!

Minneapolis, Minn.—Louie, the waiter, is back on the job at the cafe, after spending his biggest tip.

It was an automobile and the price of a trip back to his native Greece, given him by a woman whom he served 10 years. He spent five months in his homeland.

Hunting Season Calls to Riders

First Meet of Club Will Start at Potomac, Md., on Saturday.

An enthusiastic field of riders is expected to participate in the opening meet of the Riding and Hunt Club of Washington starting at 2 p. m. Saturday. The riders will meet at Craemer's Gate, near Potomac, Md. A hunt breakfast at the National Woman's Country Club will follow the chase.

The club maintains a working pack of 15 pairs of American-English cross-bred hounds and 25 pairs of puppies for replacement. The hunt committee has opened considerable territory for fox hunting in the past summer. The hounds have met twice a week for the last three weeks and the hunters have been rewarded with a spirited chase across the rolling farm country.

The hunt staff consists of Maj. Wilfrid Blunt, master of fox hounds; Joseph J. Cotter and F. Moran McConihe, honorary whippers-in; Tom Cooke, professional huntsman, and Allan King, professional whipper-in.

The officers of the Riding and Hunt Club, which maintains its headquarters at Twenty-second and P streets northwest, are Admiral Cary T. Grayson, president; Maj. Henry Leonard, vice president; Melvin C. Hazen, secretary treasurer; Dr. Fred R. Sanderson, hunt secretary, and Col. Charles D. Herron, chairman of the hunt committee.

Used Clothing Sought For Veterans, Families

An appeal for used clothing in good condition was issued yesterday by the home service section of the District Chapter of the American Red Cross. The clothing is needed for war veterans and their families.

Coats and dresses for women, coats for girls and suits, overcoats and shoes for men are especially needed, it was said. They may be delivered at 1730 E street northwest.

Lockjaw Causes Man's Death.

Frank Hutchinson, colored, 60, died at Emergency Hospital yesterday from lockjaw, said to have started from a slight laceration of the hand at his home, 1425 First street southwest, last week.

Admiral Dewey Insists On Statue Facing Front

More than a quarter of a century ago the late Admiral George Dewey was asked to make a speech at the unveiling of the statue of Commodore Barry in Franklin Square. The admiral rode by the park driving his high-stepping team of horses and noticed that the commodore stood with his back to the street. A brave officer like Commodore Barry never faced the rear, the admiral insisted, so the statue was turned around before the dedication.

Mrs. Dewey, after the death of Admiral Dewey, took a daily ride in her automobile about the speedway. She noticed that the statue of John Paul Jones faces away from the water. A sailor, of course, should not stand with his back to the water. But the statue of John Paul Jones still stands that way.

Brigadier General, Wife, Plan Tea for October 27

Brig. Gen. George B. Pillsbury, chief of Engineers, and Mrs. Pillsbury will entertain on Friday, October 27, with their annual tea for the members of the Corps of Engineers, who are stationed in or near Washington. Mrs. Pillsbury's sister, Mrs. Phillip Lasdale, who has been visiting in Washington, left Tuesday for San Francisco, where she will spend the winter.

Girl, 17, Proves Escapeless 'Devil's Isle' Is Just a Laugh

Swims "Swift Rushing" Waters of Alcatraz; U. S. Disconcerted.

If it's any satisfaction to her, Miss Babe Scott, of San Francisco, can rest assured today that she has the Department of Justice in a state only described as agog.

Miss Scott, hereinafter known as Babe, is a 17-year-old girl, weighing 112 pounds, and is the owner of a bathing suit. Until she stuck her nose into things, the Department of Justice was progressing nicely with plans to send 200 of the Nation's most desperate criminals to Alcatraz Island in San Francisco Bay. "Machine Gun" Kelly was going out there, because Alcatraz is a rocky, isolated dot on the map from which nobody could possibly escape.

Formidable Words.

"Deep, swift-rushing water," according to the department, surrounds the island, and anyone who attempted to leap from the rocky coast and swim to freedom would wind up deader than last year's Paris styles. So what? So Babe goes out to Alcatraz, puts on her bathing suit and leaps from the rocky coast into the deep, swift-rushing water. Forty-seven minutes later she walks up on the mainland beach, wipes her hair out of her eyes and announces:

"It was easy. I could jump in and swim right back again." That news penetrated to the Department of Justice yesterday and embarrassment became general. Would the Attorney General like to discuss Babe's feat in the light of the statement that nobody could escape from Alcatraz? It seemed the Attorney General was ill—just a cold, nothing serious. Would Sanford Bates, superintendent of prisons, care to comment? Out of town—indefinitely.

Dark Doubt Voiced.

Subordinates tried to plant the poison of suspicion and hinted that Babe used water-wings, or, for all they knew, a motor boat.

"Look here," said W. T. Hammack in the Prison Bureau, "that island rises 130 feet from the water. Why, they have to have a special truck to get up the incline. There's a seawall around part of the island that makes it even a higher jump into the water.

"Scott—Babe Scott—neaver heard or her. Maybe she did and maybe she didn't. I've got no way of knowing. But remember this—Alcatraz is going to be a prison, and if has deep, swift-rushing water around it. We've got barracks out there for 480 prisoners."

Can Kelly Swim?

That's the way the situation stood last night. Whether "Machine Gun" Kelly is an expert swimmer remains to be seen. He must know something, because after he was convicted he assured Federal agents that he would escape from Alcatraz by Christmas.

To which the Federal agents replied—Just to show that they aren't all steel and concrete, but have flashes of humanity just like you and your Uncle Fred:

"Which Christmas?"

Roosevelt Calm in Quake.

The night of the earthquake in Los Angeles, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt heard about it first. She went in to awaken her husband. He instructed her to wake up his secretaries and get in touch with Los Angeles at once.

"Well, get in touch with Los Angeles, anyway," he insisted.

"Alice in Wonderland" Scheduled Tomorrow

"Alice in Wonderland" is to be presented again under auspices of the Community Center department, tomorrow night and Saturday afternoon at Central High School. The Saturday matinee performance is especially for children.

New members of the cast are Anne McGuffey as The Duchess; Howard Whitfield, Caterpillar; Gerald P. Flood, Cheshire Cat, and William Rodon, Knave of Hearts. The caterpillar and cat are roles added since presentation of the tabloid version of the fantasy at Sylvan Theater last summer.

Washington Women in Welfare Work

Mrs. Robertson Aids Women in Florence Crittenton Home for Mothers.

One major welfare activity, the Florence Crittenton Home, occupies practically all the attention of Mrs. Thomas E. Robertson, president of the board of that institution. Her only other activity is as a trustee of the Community Chest. No hours are too long nor any task too hard if it involves work for the Crittenton Home.

This instutition, one of many members of a national organization, offers a refuge to the unmarried expectant mother and not only cares for her during the prenatal period, giving her hospitalization and the best of medical care, but offers a home after the child is born, where the mother can equip herself to face the world again and at the same time have the care of her child. Every effort is made to keep mother and child together and the cases where the little ones are offered for adoption are relatively few.

"In administering aid to unmarried, expectant mothers, many of them sarcely more than children themselves, and in helping them to take care of their babies, the Florence Crittenton Home is serving the most helpless group in society," Mrs. Robertson says.

"At the particular time these girls come to the home," she continues, "Mother Nature is a strong ally in efforts to build up character as well as body, so that the Crittenton Home can really be described as a hospital for body and soul.

"Women of Washington will find a great satisfaction in doing volunteer service in welfare work. There is room for as many as can be induced to give time to this method of making our city a better place in which to live."

Historic Banjo Clock Takes On Electric Ways

Up-to-Date in Mechanism, It Lends a Colonial Touch to Home.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

Even if you're not musically inclined, you've probably long had a yen for a banjo clock. The name has such a tinkling sound, the design fits so neatly in almost any type of room, and the clock itself is more decorative than most timepieces.

Chances are nine out of ten that your great-great-great-granddaddy had one hanging in his house, for the banjo clock was a great favorite in colonial days. Your ancestor, however, had to go through the familiar ritual of winding his clock every night. You, being a modern woman, will simply plug in on electric current, and your new pride and joy will begin to tick merrily.

The banjo clock we saw yesterday in a New York avenue shop has a brass eagle on top. Paul Revere gallops excitingly in a print which decorates the base. Just above him is a long, narrow print showing the old North Church. Brass, in discreet design, trims the mahogany case. And here's a fine idea: The base is recessed so that the electric wiring will not show.

The best part of all is the price—$9.95. Until recently these clocks sold for more than twice that amount.

Remember how you used to prick your finger when you were pinning a flower on the shoulder of a festive costume?

Now you may fasten adorable French gardenias in your hair or on your dress without using a single pin. Clips are attached to the flowers to solve your problem. The price of 50 cents includes gardenias and clips.

You who have been using the creams and lotions of a widely known cosmetician have probably wondered why, oh why, this manufacturer did not have a face powder in her superior line. Call it telepathy, or what you will, the cosmetician has learned your thoughts. The face powder has just been placed on the counter of an F street store.

For blondes who do not care for pinkish tints, there is an enchanting cream shade. The powder is also made in orient, a delectable peach tone. Then there are the conventional rachel and naturelle. The former has a variant called tawny rachel, invented to bring out the gypsy in you.

Have you a little chromium in your home? If you've managed to resist this glittering metal you're the exception. It lends itself so strikingly to the slithering curves and sculptured angles of ultra-modern design.

Glistening chromium, with artful touches of black, makes a cocktail shaker that will be a sensation at any party. It's cylindrical in shape, which is a great relief from the omnipresent spout type. Price: $4.

Amusing little bowl-shaped cups are just right for holding the contents of the shaker. They are 50 cents each.

There will be a feather in your cap if you so much as glance at the gay little quills and bits of ostrich in an F street shop. You'll never be able to resist carrying off at least one. It's remarkable, the dashing air of insouciance a jaunty feather will add to a plain, uninteresting hat.

Polly-parrot hues distinguish most of these saucy little feathers, although a goodly number are in neutral colors. The price of each is 50 cents.

Your next dinner party will go as smoothly as a swan gliding on a lake if you serve the nuts and candies in wee ivory china swans. True distinction is apparent in the design and in the material, belleek china.

These exquisite little figures, when arranged on a mirror lake, make a charming centerpiece for the luncheon table. Some hostesses use them for salt dishes, as tiny spoons to match may be obtained. When placed on a mirror in the center of the table a charming effect may be created by filling them with short-stemmed flowers. Pansies would be adorable.

The baby swans cost 50 cents each. For an additional 50 cents you may have each delicately hand-trimmed in gold. The same shop also has larger swans for flowers or vines. Their price is $2.50.

"Silver, silver everywhere, but nary a serving dish of it in my home." If that has been your heart-broken cry, there's no good reason why you shouldn't change that lament to a paen of joy and thanksgiving. Yes, we know all about those budgets just large enough to take care of Junior's shoes, little Sally's spinach and hubby's dry-cleaning bills.

All the way from England have come these particularly lovely ones in a G street shop. Sheffield silver on copper is the material. Georgian gadroon is the design.

You may select a well-and-tree platter, a vegetable dish, cold meat plate or gravy boat and tray. Each is priced at $6.85.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 105, for further information. Or write, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope.

Gorgeous New Gowns, Hats and Gloves Make All Women Want to 'Go Velvet'

Velvet, velvet everywhere. Soft and shimmering, combined with wools and silk crepes, in panels, bows and bands, for gowns, gloves, bags and chapeaux. You can't hope to be alluring this year without a touch of the delicate downy stuff somewhere about you. Most women are using velvet to accentuate each item of their ensemble.

Every year by this time we've grown weary of the command of the first-line designers to "go velvet." But that command is easy to obey this autumn. In fact, it becomes a pleasure, what with the most alluring velvet hats imaginable, the most seductive gowns, and tricky velvet gloves that make ordinary hands seem long-fingered and expressive.

Time was when a velvet dress meant nothing but a velvet dress. But this season it's ever so much more complicated and downright intriguing. Some of the loveliest models have subtly arranged bands, bows, or panels of soft, shimmering velvet, combined with such incongruous materials as lightweight woolens, or with more conventional dull crepe.

Never have hats been so varied in line, type and design. Yet most of them seem to have one thing in common. You've already guessed it. It's velvet. If you fancy yourself peeping demurely from beneath a large brim, go ahead and do it, but be sure the brim is velvet. Perhaps you discovered a season or so ago that you are most alluring in a nifty little chapeau that dips over the right eye, thus making the left one seem deliciously flirtatious. You won't have a bit of trouble this autumn in finding a hat, in velvet, of course, that will create the desired effect. Your only trouble will be in contenting yourself with one or two, there are so many perfectly ducky ones from which to make your selection.

Sleek feathers, modernistic ornaments in metal, gay little bows and bewitching nose veils all contribute to making hats more exciting this year than they have been for a long, long time. But remember, velvet is the password to the head of fashion's class.

Blind Veteran Supports Wife With Ironing

Long Trail From Gridiron to Ironing Board, Says Former Athlete.

A young man wearing dark glasses sits in the window of a downtown store ironing from morning till night. Men and women press their faces against the window pane, drawn by curiosity, held by compassion. The man at the ironing board does not see them. He does not even see the pillowcases he irons. For the last five years he has lived in a world of darkness.

Darkness has been more than a physical thing to William U. Phillips in those five years. He has known the blackness that steals into a man's heart when he is unable to earn his family's daily bread. The job at the ironing board is the first he has had since he became totally blind.

When he was hired by an electric supplies manufacturer to demonstrate how easy it is to use the modern iron, he was given two weeks in which to practice.

"I didn't burn a single thing," Phillips says with a bit of pride. He adds that his wife deserves most of the credit as she was a patient and invaluable aid during the first days. He will soon complete his third week of ironing in public.

Phillips lost his sight as the result of a motorcycle accident when he was serving in France with the 360th Air Squadron. Before he enlisted he was a football star at the University of Pittsburgh.

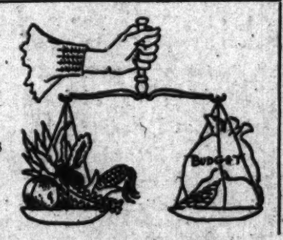
"It's a long trail from the gridiron to the ironing-board," he says without bitterness. "I'm not exactly proud of this job, but I'm thankful to be earning something for my wife and two children. The compensation I receive from the Government helps, of course, but it doesn't take care of four people."

True Story About Nature.

Valley City, N. Dak.—Freeman Anderson says that when he shot a pheasant in the air the bird fell on a rabbit which dashed away with the pheasant on its back. After being carried several yards, the pheasant fell off.

The Family Marketer

Fresh Cocoanut, Grated as You Wait, Stays Moist in Wax Paper Bag.



"I'll take a quarter pound of fresh grated coconut, please," said the marketer. "That will be 13 cents?"

The proprietor of the stall in a northwest market smiled and nodded.

"And fresh it will be, miss," he said. There followed the whirring, scraping sound of the grinder, and in a minute he handed her a wax paper bag of moist coconut.

These coconuts come all the way from the islands off the coast of South America. Some come from Puerto Rico, but the very best are grown in San Blas, off the coast of Chile. They are brought on the fruit boats to Baltimore and then shipped to Washington.

First the market man removes the outer shell. Underneath this shell is a brown layer which he scrapes off, leaving the nut smooth, white and whole, with the milk still in it. When he has a sale he cuts the coconut, throws away the milk and grates it for the customer.

The man who sold the coconut told of a delicious "white fruit cake" his wife makes, using the coconut milk that is generally thrown away. He has promised the recipe, and when the marketer gets it she will turn it over to you.

At this same stall you can buy homemade sauerkraut, 20 cents a quart, and superlative potato chips, 25 cents a pound. And what pickled onions! Thirty cents a pint.

Potatoes, ordinary ones, are priced at 25 cents for 8 pounds. If, in planning today's menu, you prefer the Idaho baking variety, you can get them at the market for 25 cents for 6 pounds. They are nicer, of course, and the price per meal is only a few cents more.

Concord grapes are beautiful now. They sell at 13 cents a quart. Large 12 quart baskets are 50 cents.

For large families with a taste for apples, it might be wiser to buy Winesaps at $1.00 a bushel. Six pounds are 25 cents. Because of the valuable minerals that are just under the skin of the apple, they are more nourishing when eaten unpeeled. The fried apples in today's menu should be unpeeled.

Pork Chops and Fried Apples.

Brown pork chops in a heavy skillet. Season with salt and pepper. Add apples which have been washed and sliced. Cook slowly until apples are tender, about 30 to 40 minutes. Serve on large platter. Garnish with parsley.

Coiffure Must Show the Tip Of Ear Lobe

Massage and Shell Pink Rouge Help Effect of Hairdress.

Few women can expose their entire ear with complete assurance. Nature has been extremely chary in allotting the shell pink, exquisitely curved type of ear.

The fashion of exposing the lobe in a casually graceful, off-the-face hair dress, is almost universally becoming.

In looking through the smart magazines, you've no doubt seen dozens of illustrations of flattering new coiffures that you'd like to try—most of them showing a glimpse of the ear.

Try experimenting with a few of them. Spend an hour before your dressing table working your hair into new lines. It's good for one's soul, as well as for the appearance.

And give your ears a bit of beauty treatment. Cleanse the outer part thoroughly with cleansing cream, just as you would your face, extending the treatment to the throat and face area surrounding. Then sponge and pat gently with skin tonic, and anoint with nourishing cream.

The ear should be massaged between thumb and finger with a gentle, rotary movement, beginning with the lobe and working up to the top. This tends to make the skin firm and fine, and brings up circulation to produce that desired shell-pink effect. In applying powder, carry it over the neck and back of the ears.

A touch of rouge at the ear lobes brings a flushed and glowing look to the face. This is excellent for the thin or pale faced woman, but is not advocated for those whose features are broad, or whose complexion is florid. In fact, this latter type will be wise in keeping her ears covered.

It is only the fortunate few who can achieve distinction and beauty with a severe coiffure and wholly exposed ears. But when it is successfully dared, the effect is compelling.

Good Morning Meal Starts the Day Right

Growing Children Must Be Tempted to Eat Breakfast.

By Ruth Chambers.

It is well to start the day with a substantial meal. It should not be heavy, but it should be nutritious. This rule holds true especially in the case of growing children, but adults, too, will be benefited by a real breakfast to fortify them against the physical and nervous strain of a working day.

Sometimes the appetite has to be coaxed a bit. One of the best of coaxers is a crisp bit of bacon. There is something tantalizing in the odor, while the taste lends flavor to the other food.

Since fruit has come to be regarded as an essential part of breakfast, why not try the combination of bacon and pineapple as a tempting and nutritious breakfast dish?

Bacon with Pineapple.

Place a single layer of bacon in a cool frying pan. Place it over a slow flame. Pour off the fat as it forms, in order that the bacon may be dry and crisp. Place the bacon in the center of a hot platter and keep it hot.

Season a little flour with salt and pepper. Dip the slices of pineapple in the flour, covering both sides. Brown them in very hot bacon fat and serve around the bacon slices on the platter.

Ham and Eggs in Ramekins.

Ham is also appetizing as a breakfast food. Here is a way of using ham with eggs in ramekins:

1 cup boiled chopped ham
4 eggs
½ cup rich milk
¼ teaspoon salt
Pepper
Paprika

Beat the eggs lightly without separating the yolk and whites. Add salt, a dash of pepper and paprika, the ham, chopped very fine, and milk. Pour into the buttered ramekins, set in a pan of hot water and bake in a slow oven.

Sausages and Pineapple.

Sausages have long held their place upon the breakfast menu. Here is a way of combining them with pineapple:

12 link sausages
2 tablespoons flour
6 triangles toast
1½ cups crushed pineapple

Fry the sausages until brown. Toast the triangles of bread.

To 2 tablespoons of fat left in the pan after cooking the sausage add the flour and brown, then add the crushed pineapple, stirring constantly until it reaches the boiling point. Pour the pineapple mixture over the toast and place two sausages on each triangle.

Lamb Shortcake.

Lamb is a suitable meat for a breakfast dish. Here is a way to utilize cooked lamb which may be left over from dinner. It makes an especially tempting dish to serve with baking powder biscuits.

2 cups cold cooked lamb
1 tablespoon butter
1 hard cooked egg
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon flour
6 baking powder biscuits

Combine the butter and flour and add milk to make a cream sauce. Dice cooked lamb and combine it with the cream sauce. Add the hard-cooked egg, finely minced. Serve on the biscuits, split open and buttered.

Bacon, dried beef or ham may be used to good effect to give added tastiness and food value to scrambled eggs or an omelet.

The best kind of breakfast for young children, authorities agree, is that which contains fruit juice or ripe fruit, cereal, hot or cold, with whole milk, toast, bread or a roll with butter, cocoa or milk as a beverage, a soft-boiled egg and some bacon. Variety may be gained by using scrambled eggs or an omelet.

Mid-Autumn Designs Enhance Tea Gowns

New Lines, Materials and Tints Give Allure.

Teagowns, always expressive of femininity, are especially lovely this year. A world of thought has gone into their designing, with the result that several new types appear in the mid-autumn collections.

A somber, dark green and gold brocade has a bewitching high waistline and oval neck, front and back, reminiscent of the fifteenth century.

The woman with a flair for the dramatic may successfully meet the demands of an exotic dark green velvet creation with gold stenciling on a vivid red top.

Knotted fringe borders the flattering cape collar of another model. When chosen in one of the jewel shades, crepe back satin is most effective for this teagown's lyric lines.

Sports Afford Topic For Wales' Table Talk

When the Prince of Wales came to Washington during the Coolidge administration he lunched en famille with President and Mrs. Coolidge with only their son, Mr. John Coolidge, as an additional guest. The conversation lagged. President Coolidge did not wish to talk to the boyish prince on matters of state at his own luncheon table. John was a college boy. Mrs. Coolidge came into the breach, suggesting the prince probably was interested in football and games and having a good time. After that the conversation was brisk enough, with the prince asking many questions about college life in America and rehearsing stories of his own experiences. President Coolidge contributed a number of good college yarns in his own dry way at which the prince laughed heartily.

Copy of Declaration Is Gift to D. A. R.

An exact copy of the Declaration of Independence, word for word and even comma for comma, engraved on silver, is the proud possession of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution in their national headquarters in Memorial Continental Hall, Washington, D. C. It was the gift of Mr. Alfred B. Brosseau in honor of his wife, Mrs. Grace Lincoln Hall Brosseau, honorary president general of the society.

Presidents Have Odd Collections

Marine Pictures, Pipes, Law Books, Rare Volumes, Are Hobbies of Some.

President Roosevelt's hobby for collecting marine pictures is a reminder that other Presidents have had hobbies as well.

President Warren G. Harding collected pipes, as many as he could get, of all sizes and varieties from all parts of the world. Many of these he kept on his broad desk, in what was then the private study of the President on the second floor of the White House. Pipes were placed on book shelves about the room. President Harding smoked one pipe only in his private study, although he had other pipes in the Executive offices which he liked to smoke occasionally.

Another collector-President was Calvin Coolidge, who would go to much trouble to get original editions of law books, or autographed copies of more modern ones. He always wrote in the book the date it came into his possession and where he had obtained it.

Another rare book collector was the sixth President of the United States, John Quincy Adams, who gathered rare books from all over the world and particularly treasured those that had been collected by his father.

The late Speaker of the House of Representatives, Champ Clark, of Missouri, not only had a collection of gavels but of corn-cob pipes as well. Speaker Clark kept these collections in his desk in the Speaker's office. It was a mark of rare favor to be shown them and to be told their origin and history.

Andrew Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury and former Ambassador to Great Britain, has a notable gallery of paintings, many of rare value.

Admiral George Dewey was a collector of watches and was the recipient of many handsome jeweled ones from countries and organizations eager to honor him in this way.

Mrs. Wilson Wears Colors Once More

Former First Lady Appears Without Orchids, However.

The sight of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson walking on Massachusetts avenue the other day with her brother and secretary told of her presence in her charming S street home once more. Mrs. Wilson is wearing "colors" again, and blue was becomingly mingled with black in her costume.

Mrs. Wilson did not wear orchids as was her custom during those days, when from the White House each morning, would arrive orchids to Mrs. Norman Galt, afterwards to become Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. Her corsage of orchids became a familiar sight to Washingtonians and it remained her favorite flower during the late President's lifetime—that is, after their marriage. When Mrs. Galt was married to President Wilson, some 17 years ago, her attractive home in the fashionable northwest was a bower of orchids in almost every variety.

Speaking of orchids reminds one of the hundreds of white ones which ornamented the wedding of Mrs. Sumner Welles, wife of the recent Ambassador of the United States to Cuba, to Senator Peter Goelet Gerry, of Rhode Island. At that time, Mrs. Welles was the popular Mathilde Townsend, of Washington, and became known as the "white orchid bride" because of the profusion of this rare bloom at her first wedding.

Son Born Monday To Mrs. Hardison

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Osborne B. Hardison are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, Monday, at Coronada, Calif. Mrs. Hardison was formerly Miss Ruth Morgan, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Gerry Morgan, of Washington. The child will be named for Dr. Morgan, William Gerry Morgan Hardison.

Townsends Return to City.

Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, Washington's society impressario, is in town again after a summer at Shroon Lake. The Townsend morning musicales at the Mayflower are on the social calendar again this year as well as promising rare feasts of good music. Attendants at these musicales hear good music, see their friends and partake of appetizing luncheons afterwards.

Nellie Ross Has New Job.

Former Gov. Nellie Tayloe Ross, of Wyoming, has a new job. She is now director of the mint. Few persons know that she is a collateral descendant of Mary Ball, the mother of George Washington. That accounts for the resemblance many comment upon to the father of his country.

Stocks Slump 3.6 Points on Lighter Sales

Rise of Dollar Blamed in Losses; Trading, 1,733,570 Shares.

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—An advance in wheat proved insufficient to keep stocks from sliding today and prices in Wall street's leading market again veered downward rather sharply.

Activity was moderate, though the pace quickened a bit toward the close after a desultory reaction following an irregular opening. Net losses for leading issues were in a 1 to 5-point range, with rails and steels particularly soggy. From the chart follower's standpoint the most interesting feature was the industrial average's sag under last July's lows.

Pronounced weakness of French francs during the afternoon had a sympathetic effect on other gold currencies. Sterling also advanced against francs but lost ground in terms of the dollar. Those who find a connection between stock market movements and the gyrations of exchange associated the fresh reaction in shares partly to our money's rise.

Drooping Steel Blamed.

Lower prices were also attributed to word of drooping steel operations, to revived rumors concerning the safety of France's gold standard in view of her budget-balancing problem, to the familiar monetary uncertainties here and to a weakened technical position as a result of what had apparently been a brisk covering movement yesterday.

The steel shares took little comfort from word that ingot production had tumbled 5 points to a Nation-wide average of 39 per cent of capacity, some 20 points under the July peak. U. S. Steel preferred slumped nearly 6 points while the common was down 3½.

Bethlehem's senior issue was off 4¼, the junior 2¾. National Steel lost about 4.

New York Central Loses.

New York Central, breaking 30, closed with a loss of more than 3 points and Union Pacific declined as much.

American Can, Western Union, Celanese, American Commercial Alcohol, Firestone, Allied Chemical, Chrysler, Santa Fe and U. S. Industrial Alcohol were off 3 to 4 or more, while American Telephone, Goodyear, General Motors, Westinghouse, Southern Pacific, Sears Roebuck, Du Pont and Union Carbide yielded in the neighborhood of 2 to 3.

National Distillers flopped 6½ and U. S. Smelting 5½. The average loss, 3.6 points, was smaller than that of Monday. Volume was reduced to 1,733,570 shares, some 700,000 under Tuesday's turnover.

The large oversubscription to the new Treasury bond issue created a favorable impression; it indicated, some pointed out, that demand had come not alone from the banks.

New York City banks decided to have a part in the Government's proposed capital expansion plan, indications being that their share would approximate $200,000,000, making that much more money available for investment purposes; a large part of it would presumably go into Federal securities.

Iron Age finds it "difficult to derive much encouragement from any angle of the current situation" in the steel industry, which "faces the remainder of the year with increasing pessimism." Leading consumers are taking much less steel with third quarter specifications completed and the profits from such business as comes to hand, the review believes "will almost certainly be pared down by decreasing volume."

Wall Street Sees a Rescue

Government Wheat Purchases Set Precedent for Future

By Ralph West Robey.

All of us recognize that concomitant of better business in this country will be higher prices, especially for various agricultural commodities. Ordinarily, therefore, a rise of value for farm products can be viewed as a favorable development—as evidence of further progress on the road to recovery. When the rise rests upon such factors as these that caused the dramatic about-face of the trend a little before 1 o'clock last Tuesday, however, it is essential to make reservations as to its desirability. In that case, the Government's action too closely approximated straight out-and-out manipulation for it to afford much encouragement to anyone looking for sound price improvement.

The specific commodity concerned was wheat. The reversal of trend, however, extended throughout not only the entire commodity markets, but security prices as well. In consequence, whereas between 12 and 12:30 o'clock Wall Street was more or less resigned to another day as bad, or worse, than Monday, when the average drop in security prices had been over 5 points, by 1:30 the atmosphere had been changed completely and the markets were pounding forward at a terrific rate.

Agricultural Prices Had Been Falling for Weeks

To understand exactly what happened it is desirable to recall that agricultural prices recently have been declining at a rather rapid rate. This has been notably true in the case of wheat. Thus, a month ago spot wheat was selling in New York at $1.08¼ a bushel. From this there was a more or less steady, but relatively slow, fall until a week ago, when the price was only 98¼ cents a bushel. Then the drop became precipitous, the closing on Monday being 84⅛, or almost 25 cents a bushel less than it had been a month earlier.

On Tuesday morning the market again opened weak and prices fell some 2 cents a bushel more. According to the gossip in the Street, the immediate cause of this was that one, or perhaps two, large speculators had become overextended and were being closed out. Further, it was the hope that as soon as this clean-up was accomplished the pressure on the market would be lifted with the result that there would be a rally, or at least not a continuation of such a rapid decline. Of course there is always much reason to doubt such stories as these, but it is possible that in this case the gossip was true.

It May be That Market Was Ready for Independent Rise.

It is possible, too, that the liquidation was completed at noon on Tuesday and consequently that the wheat market was ready for a sharp upturn without any outside aid. There was no sign of such an upturn, however, when the Government stepped in with the announcement that it was buying wheat.

No effect of this was instantaneous. All the markets turned upward. With the Government a buyer, the reasoning seemed to be, prices must advance and therefore it was time to climb on the bandwagon. Final prices in securities were 2 to 10 points above their lows for the day, wheat advanced 7 cents a bushel, corn 4 cents and rye 5 cents.

Officially, the purpose of the Government buying was simply to provide foodstuffs with which to carry out the direct poor-relief program of the administration. It will take strong arguments, however, to convince traders in securities and commodities that the action was not also a rescue party for agricultural prices. They will consider it, therefore, as a precedent and henceforth will look to Washington for relief whenever values start crumbling.

Bond Market Sags Half Point As Sales Drop

Stocks Loss and Exchange Blamed; Trading Cut to $9,118,000.

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Bond prices sagged today in quiet trading, the further decline being attributed partly to sympathy for slumping stocks, erratic movements of foreign exchanges and some uncertainty regarding industrial progress.

Sales totaled only $9,118,000, par value, for around $2,000,000 less than yesterday, and the average for 60 domestic corporate loans was off one-half point.

Another drop in steel production and the easing of electric power output did not furnish any especial cheer for traders and investors.

Prime Investments Held.

Prime investment maturities, however, held fairly well and there were even some small gains in various groups. Secondary liens, though, were heavy throughout.

Rail losers of 1 to around 3 points included some issues of Alleghany Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corporation, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Erie, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Pere Marquette and Wabash.

Santa Fe general 4s, Cincinnati Union Terminal 5s, Colorado & Southern 4½s, Pennsylvania general 5s, Union Pacific first 4s and some others firmed.

On Casualty List.

Among utility and industrial casualties of 1 to 2 or more were bonds of American & Foreign Power, Colorado Industrial, Columbia Gas, International Paper, Postal Telegraph, International Telephone, Portland General Electric, United Drug, U. S. Rubber and Warner Bros.

While Liberty fourth 4¼s, both the called and uncalled series, eased, some of the Treasuries advanced moderately in dull trading. Holders of Federal issues were encouraged by the President's announcement that the new $500,000,000 3¼ per cent offering had been oversubscribed already nearly four times.

Foreign obligations were irregular. French 7½s lost 3½ points as the franc slumped in foreign exchange markets. Loans of Cuba, Denmark, Berlin, Japan, Royal Dutch and Great Britain firmed. Various German issues were higher, but the Reich 5½s eased ⅛ of a point and the 7s were unchanged.

London—Traders on the stock exchange seemed more confident today after having thrown off the effects of the European political occurrence. New buying improved prices generally. Industrials, gilt-edged securities and transatlantic issues advanced, although the last mentioned closed under the best. The market closed steady.

Paris—Budget-balancing measures and Premier Daladier's declarations regarding disarmament yesterday created a favorable impression on the bourse and sent prices upward. Rentes especially improved. The market was calm, however, and closed irregular.

Berlin—Prices on the boerse were firmer and the closing was sustained. Mining shares were in demand on Reichian strike rumors.

Cotton's Gains Trimmed to Final Losses

December Sells at 9.16 as General Market Drops 10 to 13 Points.

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Cotton gained further ground in the early buying today but couldn't hold it and ended about 50 cents a bale lower.

December contracts after selling up from 9.20 to 9.51 during the morning, broke to 9.15 in the late trading and closed at 9.16, with the general market finishing barely steady at declines of 10 to 13 points.

Some reactionary sentiment was in evidence following yesterday's advance, but the appearance of further July buying orders in the hands of brokers rumored to be acting for Government agencies, helped to lift the market about $1.25 a bale before the late reaction.

Weaker Near Close.

The market showed increasing weakness toward the close when sentiment seemed to be influenced by the decline in sterling, the action of the stock market, and the appearance of Southern selling in somewhat larger volume.

Last prices were at or within a point of the lowest for the day, showing reactions of about 35 to 40 points from the highest of the day.

The early buying rumored to be for agencies probably connected with the operations in seed loan cotton, was estimated by some local brokers at about 30,000 bales in New York and 20,000 bales in the New Orleans market. Making total estimated purchases of about 100,000 bales in the last two days.

Exports today 40,939 making 1,885,919 so far this season. Port receipts 61,646. U. S. port stocks 3,818,395.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was barely steady today, closing 3 to 7 points net lower under liquidation and commission house selling, influenced by the reaction in cotton and the weakness of stocks. Sales were 29 contracts. Bleachable spot and October closed 3.90, December 4.20, January 4.28, March 4.52, May 4.65.

Steel Output Cut on Finish Of Contracts

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—A decline of 5 points in the steel ingot production rate, bringing the national average to 39 per cent of capacity, was reported by Iron Age today. The decrease, which had been expected, reflected completion of orders against third-quarter contracts.

"With the output definitely lower in all the principal producing districts and much lighter demand reported in leading consuming areas, the steel industry faces the remainder of the year with increasing pessimism," said the review.

"Manufacturing costs are still rising and steel makers are yet to benefit materially from increased selling prices under the code. The profits from such tonnage as now comes in will almost certainly be pared down by decreased volume, and it is difficult to derive much encouragement from any angle of the current situation."

Railroad buying has "practically disappeared from the market, presumably because of the efforts of the Government to establish lower steel prices by group purchasing." Rail makers, Iron Age asserted, have made no move to accept the rail tonnage offered a fortnight ago at a price reduction, "and it is indicated that an increase rather than a reduction in the current $40-a-ton price would be more in keeping with steel-making costs in the last quarter of the year."

Public works projects have not yet reached the stage where inquiries for structural steel are developing, and there is little demand for agricultural steel products.

British Cotton Goods Exports Fall During '33

British exports of cotton and rayon-mixed goods in the first eight months of the current year declined 4,427,215 square yards, or 14 per cent, compared with the corresponding period of 1932, according to a report from the American consulate general, London, made public by the Commerce Department. Total shipments in the 1933 period amounted to 27,432,160 square yards, compared with 31,859,375 square yards in the first eight months of 1932.

Decreased shipments were registered to nearly all the principal overseas markets, with the exception of British South Africa and the Netherlands. To the first-named there was an increase of 1,813,075 square yards, or 118 per cent, while to the latter the growth was small.

Exports to Canada declined by 35 per cent; to Dutch East Indies by 64 per cent, to China by 50 per cent, to British India by 10 per cent and to Egypt by 43 per cent.

Shipments during August, 1933, rose considerably when contrasted with recent months, but fell short of the figures for August, 1932, by 2,968,885 square yards, or over 42 per cent. With the exception of a fair increase in exports to British South Africa, and a slight gain to Canada, there were decreased quantities shipped to all other principal countries.

More Oranges Shipped From State of Sao Paulo

Shipments of oranges from the Brazilian State of Sao Paulo increased by 57 per cent in the first eight months of 1933 as compared with the corresponding period of last year, according to a report from Consul General C. R. Cameron, made public by the Commerce Department.

Total exports in the 1933 period amounted to 1,134,134 boxes valued at $1,644,301 as compared with 649,759 boxes valued at $859,838 in the first eight months of 1932. During 1931 orange exports from Sao Paulo amounted to 767,394 cases and in 1930 only 195,679 cases.

West Virginia Asks Bids On Stone for Highway

New Market, Va., Oct. 18 (Spl.). Information has been received here by local crushed stone contractors from the State Highway Commission that bids are being asked for the completion of 2.4 miles in the Brocks Gap highway from Bergton, southwest of here, to the West Virginia line.

The Brocks Gap highway has already been hard-surfaced from the Valley pike through Broadway to Bergton, and West Virginia has recently completed a modern wide shale highway from the State line through Mathias and Lost City to Baker.

Virginia Cured Tobacco Listed At $6,500,000

Richmond, Va., Oct. 18 (AP).—A $6,500,000 flue-cured tobacco crop in Virginia was forecast today by the State Department of Agriculture, as the Old Dominion markets prepared to open tomorrow.

The department's estimate of value of the crop this year, was approximately $4,000,000 greater than that of last year, and about $2,000,000 higher than estimates of last week, when the new marketing agreement guaranteeing a 17 cent average price for domestic leaf was signed.

Under the estimate the 20,000,000 flue-cured weed growers in Virginia would average about $200 each more for their tobacco than they received last season.

The upward revision came with reports of excellent quality. The department estimated that not less than 23,000,000 pounds of the State's estimated 47,000,000 pound production will be absorbed on the domestic market at the 17 cents price. The remainder was expected to bring an average of between 11 and 12 cents.

The production of flue-cured tobacco last year was 32,000,000 pounds, and the average price was 7.9 cents.

Real Estate Foreclosure Drop Noted as Result of Home Loans

A decrease nationally in real estate foreclosures of 9.2 per cent in September as compared with August was announced yesterday by the division of research and statistics of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and Home Owners Loan Corporation, which made public an analysis of reports from 1,037 communities that include 54.1 per cent of the population of the United States.

The 1,037 communities reporting, which in most instances are counties, reported 16,161 foreclosures in September, as compared with 17,802 in August and 20,067 in June. In September, 1932, the number of foreclosures in these identical communities totaled 19,896.

The decrease in the number of foreclosures in September reported by these communities was 19.5 per cent as compared with June of this year, when the number of foreclosures reached the highest volume of any month on record.

Foreclosures in the communities covered by this survey were 17 per cent lower in September of this year as compared with September, 1932.

The decline in foreclosures in general throughout the United States was evidenced by the fact that decreases in September as compared with August were reported from 34 States.

The Fourth Federal Home Loan Bank District, constituting the States of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia and the District of Columbia showed the greatest decrease in September as compared with August. In this district foreclosures in September were were 33.5 per cent lower than they were in August. The State showing the greatest decline was Alabama, in which the number of foreclosures reported in September was 60.1 per cent less than in August.

Apples Are Listed For U. S. Purchases

(Associated Press.)

Apples yesterday were added to the surplus products to be purchased by the Government for relief purposes.

Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, announced that 1,000 carloads of Grade C apples will be purchased in addition to butter, meat and an undetermined amount of wheat. He has appropriated $300,000 to buy apples.

Pierce-Arrow Stock Issues Are Explained

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Because of an apparent wide disparity in the values of new and old securities of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Co., the New York Stock Exchange directed its members to warn prospective buyers and sellers of the anomalous markets.

Under its recent reorganization Pierce-Arrow arranged to issue 750,000 shares of new $5 par common stock to be exchanged for old preferred stock on the basis of 3.2 shares for each of preferred, and for the old Class A common at the rate of one-tenth a share for each share of Class A.

Class A stock has been quoted recently around $3 a share against a range of $5 to $7 a share for the new stock. On the basis of the latter's market the "A" shares appear to have an actual value of only about 50 to 75 cents, if no other considerations except exchange value are figured.

There is a wide market on the preferred with the recent bid and asked price at $14-$19. Some disparity is also indicated here, according to brokers, although it is small as compared with that between Class A and new stocks.

Clearing House Backs Capital Increase Plan

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—The New York Clearing House Association today passed a resolution recommending to its members that they enlarge their capital structure in support of President Roosevelt's bank program and cooperate in carrying out his recovery policy.

A statement issued by Percy H. Johnston, chairman of the clearing house committee said:

"The President of the United States has publicly stated his belief that banks of the Nation should strengthen their capital structure. We believe the President's objective is constructive and sound and that bankers generally should support the plan to strengthen the capital of the banks of the Nation."

Empire Sheet and Tin Buys Steel Company

Mansfield, Ohio, Oct. 18 (AP).—The Empire Sheet & Tin Co. was the successful bidder for the Empire Steel Corporation in a public auction here today with a bid of $1,334,500.

The Empire Steel Corporation's Mansfield plant has been operating in receivership for two years. Officials of the plant said the operating rate had been about 70 per cent of capacity, and that prospects for continuation are good, if the corporation is reorganized.

Wheat Values Soar Again in Buoyant Mart

Buying by United States Continues as Aid to Price Advance.

Chicago, Oct. 12 (AP).—Buoyant new soaring of wheat prices late today carried the market higher and higher to exactly 11 cents a bushel over yesterday's low point.

Fresh big purchases of wheat for United States Government account were reported at various centers, and for the first time this season wheat for immediate delivery in Chicago brought a better figure than December contracts, one-half cent a bushel premium against 1½ cents discount yesterday.

The majority of traders acted on opinions that Government buying of wheat had ended a critical situation and that a much healthier market outlook was apparent.

Wheat Closes Strong.

Wheat closed strong at almost the day's top level, 2¾ to 3 cents above yesterday's finish; corn, 1 to 1⅝ advance; oats, 1 to 1½ up, and provisions varying from 12 cents decline to 5 cents gain.

Gains in wheat values were achieved in the face of weakness of securities and notwithstanding unsettlement of foreign exchange rates. Brisk buying on the part of mills at Minneapolis and in Chicago was a feature of wheat trading, but friends of higher prices laid chief stress on evidence of a complete change in market psychology as a result of Government moves to take ownership of large amounts of wheat for emergency food relief.

The Government policy was asserted by trade leaders to have turned a liquidating market into a rapidly advancing one.

Profit Taking Weathered.

Throughout the day, profit-taking sales of large proportions led to only transient setbacks in wheat prices. At one stage, wheat dipped to well below yesterday's finish, but on rebounds went to heights unequaled earlier today. Some of the late buying was associated with a comprehensive summary indicating that this year's domestic total combined production of wheat, corn, oats, rye and barley is 3,686,000,000 bushels, compared with 5,217,000,000 bushels for 1932, about 71 per cent of last year's figures.

Corn and oats were strengthened by Government plans for reducing corn and hog production. Corn specialists said the immediate effect of the Government program would be to encourage farm holding of corn.

Provisions averaged higher most of the day, responsive to action of hog values and of grains.

Wool Advance Helps Business In Australia

The high prices received for wool at the first auction held in Adelaide has served to materially improve the economic position of South Australia, according to Consul Henry M. Wolcott, Adelaide, in a report made public by the Commerce Department.

The total amount realized at the opening sale held last month was 527,641 pounds against 314,071 pounds at the first sale last year, an increase of 68 per cent. While the greater part of the returns from wool must be applied on long overdue account and interest payments, the buying power of the farmers in this area has been increased considerably over what it has been during the past three years, and the general credit situation shows a distinct betterment.

The total offering at the first wool auction in Adelaide, it is pointed out, was 30,536 bales, practically all of which was sold. The average price was 12.8 pence per pound, as compared with an average of 8.06 pence at September sales last year. The highest price realized was 21 pence per pound, which compares with the peak price of 23¼ pence in 1929.

A large proportion of the wools sold at the opening auctions in South Australia this year were for the account of Continental European consumers where the gold standard still prevails. Due to depreciated exchange value of the Australian pound, the cost of the wool to countries on the gold basis is only about half of the 1929 level and in terms of English money it is 25 per cent below the 1929 values.

Old Belt Tobacco Prices Rise 4 Cents Over '32

Danville, Va., Oct. 18 (AP).—Official figures for yesterday's opening sales on the Old Belt tobacco market here were 1,052,510 pounds sold for $142,284.31, an average of 13.52 cents a pound.

Today approximately 500,000 pounds was offered with little change noticed in prices which averaged 4 cents a pound over last year.

Warehousemen expressed the opinion that the opening was satisfactory and fair prices were paid, but some of the growers complained that the prime quality of the crop and the Government's actions toward price stabilization should have brought a better return.

Canada Trade Holding Lead Over '32 Rate

Progress Slows Down in Past Week; Loadings at Lower Mark.

New York, Oct. 18.—While the volume of trade continues well in excess of that for the comparative period a year ago, the rate of progress has slowed down somewhat during the past week.

Bank clearings gained by a smaller percentage over the 1932 total than has been the case for several weeks, while carloadings were lower, and the gross earnings of the two leading railroad systems declined.

Labor troubles were a retardative influence in many directions, while the unfavorable conditions in agricultural districts of the West are beginning to be felt in many branches of trade. Retail trade, however, has continued its upward trend, but at a slower rate, being helped by favorable weather, which has stimulated the demand for apparel lines, shoes, and house furnishings.

Dry Goods Moving.

Dry goods is moving in larger volume, and retailers of jewelry and silverware are encouraged by the improved demand. The opening of schools brought heavier sales to stationery stores, and brought a spurt to the inquiries for children's clothing and shoes.

The gain in hardware sales has been chiefly in country districts, where there also has been a better movement of agricultural implements, and harness, according to dispatches to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., from branch offices located in the chief commercial and industrial centers of the dominion.

At wholesale, orders have continued heavy for merchandise needed to complete stocks, but retailers, generally, show an unwillingness to make commitments beyond immediate requirements, although assortments still are incomplete in many lines.

Goods Shipments Increase.

There was a moderate increase in the shipments of dry goods, but radio orders were held up because of labor difficulties with cabinet makers. Orders for shoes, shirts and overalls and men's furnishings were larger than last week.

Sales of new automobiles have not been up to expectations, but accessories, such as chains, windshield wipers, anti-freeze, and other winter accessories moved well. Mail orders for hardware from country districts were of good volume, and fall lines of sporting goods were active, especially hunters' equipment.

Sales of household paints and varnishes are holding up well, due to favorable weather for outside work. The outlook for the fur business is brighter, with total sales to date ahead of last year's.

Heavy Industries Lagging.

Many important factories continue to produce on a liberal scale, employing full complements, but the heavy industries have thus far not responded to the constructive movement which has benefited so many lines since early summer.

Production of automobiles during August numbered only 6,079 units, as compared with 6,540 in July, and 4,067 in August, 1932.

For the eight months ended August 31, 1933, there were 50,881 cars produced, compared with 51,208 in the same eight months of 1932.

The largest monthly output of pig iron since July, 1931, however, was recorded in August, amounting to 35,283 long tons, compared with 31,689 tons in the month preceding.

Production of ferro-alloys increased 42 per cent in August, but output of steel ingots and castings declined. If the expected yield this year of $6,000,000 in gold is realized, British Columbia will have doubled its output of this precious metal in four years.

Both placer and lode recovery will be heavier than in any former period for a considerable time. Small to fair increases in the price of silver, copper, lead, and zinc, with some evidence of returning steadiness in world markets, are regarded as an even more favorable influence for the future progress of this industry.

South Africa May Expand Fruit Canning

Fruit-canning in South Africa may be materially expanded as a result of the preferential rates now effective on imports of Empire products into Great Britain and Canada, according to a report from Consul K. de G. McVitty, Capetown, made public by the Commerce Department.

At the present time, the report shows, there are 90 factories in the Union engaged in the production of jams, canned apricots, pears, pineapples and fruit salad. Total output of the entire industry in recent years has averaged approximately 7,000,000 pounds.

While the fruit-canning industry has concentrated their efforts on export trade, to England the domestic market has not been neglected. As a result of increased use of the local product, imports of canned fruit into the Union have declined from 41,000 in 1929 to less than 15,000 in 1932.

The per acre yield of peaches, pears and apricots in South Africa is far below that of either Australia or the United States, it is pointed out. The chief difficulty in increasing output of canned fruit in the Union has been the fact that local fruit growers preferred to export their products as fresh fruit. However, they are finding it difficult to dispose of their shipments profitably, and if deciduous fruit production continues to increase, the logical solution of the problem will be the canning of surplus crops.

Until the present, Great Britain has been the only export market for South African canned fruit. However, Vice Consul McVitty states that with the tariff preferences granted under the Ottawa agreements, a special effort is now being made to develop a market in Canada.

Miss Dressler's Birthday Tribute—Screen and Stage Programs for Next Week

Vast Volumes Of Greetings Being Signed

"Queen Marie" Will Need Archives Building; Theater Bits.

Beginning today patrons of Loew's Fox and Palace theaters will have an extended opportunity to "sign that book."

"That book" in each instance is a massive volume reposing on a special stand in the lobby of the theater, awaiting the signatures of those well-wishers who may care to attest their hope that on November 9 Marie Dressler will enjoy a "glorious sixty-second natal day."

There can be no gain saying that this is a thoughtful and a handsome gesture. What with the elaborately embossed scrool that has been signed by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and will be signed by a large number of the Republic's dignitaries and men and women of prominence in all lines of endeavor between now and November 9, the huge volumes of signatures that will result from the active participation of City Manager Carter Barron, of Loew's, in rounding up Washington's admirers of one of the most beloved of the theater's stars and similar activities presumably by other Loew officials in other cities, November 9 should witness the impressive spectacle of many truckloads of congratulations and best wishes being backed up to Miss Dressler's front door and their contents dumped affectionately into her front yard!

Magnificent Tribute, But—

It will bear repeating that this is a thoughtful and a handsome gesture. It is more than that. It is a magnificent tribute to a great artiste and a publicity device that could not be surpassed as a means of keeping her ebullient personality and recent achievements prominently before her public, but—

After she gets all of these testimonials of the high esteem and deep affection in which she is held by the American public, what is she going to do with them?

By the time this wave of birthday solicitude has swept the continent from Coast to Coast and from Hudson Bay to the Isthmus there will be enough volumes of signatures to fill the Congressional Library!

What is poor, dear Marie Dressler to do with them all?

If she sets a match to them some still, dark night, her ingratitude will be emblazoned on the heavens by a conflagration scarcely second to the Chicago fire.

If she attempts to preserve them in silken ribbons and sweet lavender she will have to erect an archives repository about the size of the Commerce Building to house them comfortably.

Imagine Miss Dressler's consternation every time she wants to move at having to charter a fleet of freight trains to transport her birthday greetings to her new address!

If she is the sagacious and shrewd woman we have always believed her, when the presentations all have been made on November 9, Miss Dressler, with a few glycerine tears in her eyes, will turn to the ladies and gentlemen who have gone to all this trouble and say, feelingly:

"Boys and girls, this is the happiest day of my life. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for this wonderful tribute of love and the expression of all these good wishes—but you keep the d—n things for me, will you, please, there's a dear!"

Dispatches from Hollywood bring word that Fredric March, noted star of both stage and screen, yesterday suffered a relapse after an attack of influenza and was confined at his home in a serious condition—so serious, in fact, that only his nurses and physicians were allowed in his room. Florence Eldridge, the well-known actress who in private life is Mrs. March, said her husband was taken ill a week ago, but was not in a serious condition until yesterday's sudden turn for the worse. Fredric March is probably most immediately remembered for his fine work in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "The Sign of the Cross," "The Royal Family of Broadway" and "The Eagle and the Hawk."

How to Spend Night.

Along with the sudden enthusiasm for preview private screenings for the ladies and gentlemen (sic) of the press that has overtaken the local film executives, there seems also to have impressed itself upon their consciousness the box-office advantage of the midnight public preview for those who haven't heard about going to bed as a means of passing the night.

Several of these are in the offing, so don't bother to set the alarm clock.

On next Thursday night, October 26, Mae West will make the boast: "I'm No Angel," from the screen of Loew's Palace Theater, and forthwith set about the indelicate business of proving it to the complete satisfaction of everybody present.

One week later, to the exact day and hour, "The Footlight Parade" will be similarly divulged to a midnight audience at the Metropolitan and will stagger the senses of those sensible enough to be present by the Gargantuan nature of its closing sequences, the like of which never have been seen upon the screen of any theater at any time.

Because "Footlight Parade" was originally announced to open with a midnight performance on Thursday, October 26, instead of November 2, the Warner offices announce that tickets already purchased for the earlier date will be good the night of November 2, and need not be exchanged or redeemed.

Preceding both of these events was to have been one of no less magnitude at RKO-Keith's. On next Tuesday night, October 24, "The Private Life of Henry VIII," starring Charles Laughton, was supposed to begin its local engagement with a midnight public preview. The powers that be, however, vetoed that plan late last night.

One of the finest pictures of its kind ever made—authentic, beautifully acted and magnificently produced—"The Private Life of Henry VIII," opening next Wednesday morning, at least until New York changes its mind again, will share with Maxwell Anderson's "Mary of Scotland" the pleasant task of bringing to present-day theatergoers true pictures of life as it was lived in a day of primitive luxuries and social crudities that seem almost incredible to those inured to elaborate table services, electric lights, modern plumbing, central heating, radio and motor cars.

As a mild preparatory course in what to expect, it might be well to read Mark Twain's Rabelaisian classic of social amenities in the courts of ye merrie olde England of about this general period, known to the publishers of clandestine books as "1601."

The local dramatic desks are this evening to be guests at dinner at eight, to gormandize restrainedly and preview "Dinner at Eight," in the Palm Room of the Shoreham. City Manager Carter Barron of Loew's, Inc., and his associates in the furtherance of the Loew interests in the National Capital are hosting the press, who seem to be eating with rather better than usual regularity of late, what with "Bowery parties," Walter Huston welcomings and one thing and another—not forgetting beer and skittles when the screenings fall at the noon hour! "Dinner at Eight," of course, opens at the National as a roadshow attraction, a week from Sunday night.

But first the motion picture attractions and their complementary stage offerings that are slightly more imminent, to wit, once you hurdle the dash:

William Powell in "The Kennel Murder Case"—Metropolitan.

Eddie Nugent, Madge Evans in "Beauty for Sale"—Loew's Fox.

June Knight, Neil Hamilton in "Ladies Must Love"—Rialto.

Genevieve Tobin in "Golden Harvest"—Earle.

An Eight-Unit Bill Augments Spicy Picture

Edwin C. Hill, noted radio commentator, in person, and the first appearance away from New York of the Capitol Theater's 24 lovely Chester Hale dancers are the highlights of a dazzling eight-unit stage presentation, over which Bob Murphy, the prince of good humor, will preside when presented Friday at Loew's Fox Theater.

On the screen the Fox features "Beauty for Sale," a daring picturization of the sensational Faith Baldwin novel, "Beauty."

The stage offering has been especially evolved for local edification, and will be presented under the personal guidance of Chester Hale, eminent dance director, and Gene Ford, of Loew's production department.

Edwin C. Hill is today deemed the Nation's most colorful dispenser of ethereal news. His varied journalistic experiences enable him to inject intimate events that heretofore have been undisclosed.

The Chester Hale beauties will be seen in the same three dance arrangements that were considered sensational by New York reviewers and audiences. Their "Peacock Finale" is extremely lavish and is thoroughly fascinating. Enrica and Novello add graceful waltz and rhumba numbers and Bob Murphy spices the program with wholesome humor. There are also included in the eight-unit show several novel specialties.

Phil Lampkin augments the stage program with another of his fantastic overture arrangements.

Alice Brady, Madge Evans, Otto Kruger, Una Merkel and Phillips Holmes have starring roles in "Beauty for Sale," which is a swift, racy and modern story of city life.

A Gay Musical Piece Coming To the Rialto

A peek into the private lives of those lovely big-town ladies who live in luxuriant apartments and drive high-power cars and never work is afforded by the Rialto's next feature, "Ladies Must Love," opening Saturday, with June Knight, Dorothy Burgess, Sally O'Neil, Mary Carlisle and Neil Hamilton in the roles of chief importance.

The film is a screen adaptation of William Hurlbut's stage play, and it was directed by E. A. du Pont, the German director who made "Variety." With Miss Knight as the principal soloist, "Ladies Must Love" abounds with tuneful numbers which have already attained popularity. These include "Tonight May Never Come Again," "I've Got Personality," "I'd Worship Him Just the Same" and "Three Little Maids."

Here is a gay, rollicking comedy that takes one behind the scenes of the "gold-digging" colony and details the antics of the beautiful charmers who pursue money.

The Rialto completes its gala program with a short comedy feature, selected screen novelties and Graham McNamee as the Talking Reporter with the latest Universal News.

Timely Drama Combined With Five Ace Acts

The new bill at Warner Bros. Earle Theater for the week starting Friday will be headed by Paramount's newest timeliest production, "Golden Harvest," in which Genevieve Tobin, Chester Morris and Richard Arlen play the stellar roles. The stage portion of the new program is headlined by Ruth Miles and Eddie Kover, adagio experts.

"Golden Harvest" is a headline story of current interest interwoven with two stirring romances. It has as its background the hysterical activity in the Chicago wheat pit, and the turbulent strikes against foreclosures on farms that have been in the news recently.

It tells the story of two brothers, born to the soil, but lacking a real love for farming. One brother seeks his fortune in Chicago, becomes a speculator in the grain he knows so well, as the "Big Bear," driving down the price of wheat. Unwittingly he causes the farmers to lose their land and face ruin. The other brother stays on the farm, and, as the price of wheat drops, goes radical, organizes the farmers, brings about a farm strike. What happens forms one of the most exciting climaxes seen in months.

The stage bill brings to Washington for the first time the king and queen of adagio dancers, Ruth Miles and Eddie Kover, with Melissa Mason, eccentric dance comedienne of Earl Carroll's "Vanities" and a large supporting company in a pretentious presentation of rhythmic choreography, entitled "Dance Modernistic."

Other acts will be Senator Murphy, America's foremost humorist; Ray Saxe, the musical dancing genius; the five Wonder Girls, sensational coed athletes, and Gracie Barrie, who terminates her eight-week stay with a special farewell program of request songs.

Rowdy Comedy Held a Second Sportive Week

Captivating imaginative Washingtonians daily, and heading furiously toward a new box-office record, "The Bowery" with Wallace Beery, George Raft and Jackie Cooper reliving the colorful lives of a famous trio, will be held over for a second week, starting Friday at Loew's Palace Theater.

"The Bowery" is the first production from the new Twentieth Century studios and is released by United Artists. It graphically depicts, aided by the sterling characterizations of its three principals, all of the rowdy, bawdy, exciting and humane events that transpired on the "livest mile on the face of the Globe."

Wallace Beery adds further to his notable record with his engrossing enactment of Chuck Conners, the illiterate but beloved mayor of New York's Chinatown. As Steve Brody, who made his famous leap from Brooklyn Bridge, George Raft has never turned in a better screen performance. And Jackie Cooper is the obtrusive but popular newsie, "Swipes."

Others in the cast are Fay Wray and Pert Kelton, who provide the chief "love" interests.

Another gem that's staying over for next week is that musically infectious Silly Symphony, "Three Little Pigs." "Whose Afraid of the Big, Bad Wolf" is now on more lips than the most popular of current melodies.

A ludicrous, farcical short subject, in which Ted Healy and his bad boys cavort in madcap fashion, is another attraction. News events are added.

Aviation Story Renews Run at The Columbia

"Night Flight," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer multi-star saga of the airways, is being revived Friday at Loew's Columbia Theater.

It presents John Barrymore, Helen Hayes, Clark Gable, Lionel Barrymore, Robert Montgomery and Myrna Loy in a pictorial drama that is one of the screen's outstanding contributions to aviation.

Clarence Brown, himself a pilot, has directed a forceful and fast-paced drama from the prize novel by Antoine de Saint-Exupery, a French airmail pilot.

"Night Flight" is a story of the first night air mail flight in South America. With considerable realism the story unfolds the dangers that pilots face and the ordeals experienced by those who wait for them.

Every detail to make this a thoroughly realistic film, has been injected into the direction of Clarence Brown.

New events, short subjects and a comedy are also included on this program.

Powell Again Ace Detective On Met Screen

William Powell, suave, polished, romantic lover comes back to the screen Friday in the role of Philo Vance, the character which made him famous. The picture which gives him this opportunity is "The Kennel Murder Case," a Warner Bros. film adapted from S. S. VanDine's latest mystery, which will be shown on the Metropolitan screen.

"The Kennel Murder Case" is one of S. S. VanDine's greatest mysteries, the novel having been a best seller through many editions. The film story keeps the spectator in suspense from beginning to end. It concerns the solving of what Philo Vance terms "the most baffling case in my entire exeprience."

Supporting William Powell are Mary Astor, Eugene Pallette, Hugh Herbert, Claire Dodd, Robert Barratt, Arthur Hohl, Ralph Morgan and George Blackwood.

The program will be completed by short reel screen subjects and the new release of the Paramount Sound News.

Sinclair Lewis' Stirring Story Continues Run

Owing to the great popular success achieved by Irene Dunne and Walter Huston in the film version of Sinclair Lewis' widely read and more widely discussed novel of "Ann Vickers," this attraction will be continued over the week-end at RKO-Keith's Theater.

Already having run eight days, "Ann Vickers" continues to attract large and enthusiastic audiences who find in the characterizations offered by Miss Dunne, in the title part, and Mr. Huston, as Judge Barney Dolphin, ample repayment for the eagerness with which they have anticipated the coming of this film to the local screen.

The costars are supported by a distinguished cast that includes Edna May Oliver, Sam Hardy, Conrad Nagel, Mitchell Lewis, Bruce Cabot, Rafaela Ottiano and numerous others.

"The Private Life of Henry VIII," hailed with more glowing advance reports from every source than are usually accorded a dozen pictures, is scheduled as the next feature attraction at RKO-Keith's in its autumn festival of hits. The amorous adventures of England's greatest king, who won the title of bluebeard because of his six wives, two of whom he had beheaded, has given Charles Laughton, in the role of Henry, a part that has elevated him to a much deserved stardom.

The picture opens with the execution of Anne Boleyn at the Tower of London, with Anne commenting about her "little neck" while the crowd gathers for the execution and the king prepares to wed Jane Seymour so soon as guns tell of the death of Anne. From Jane, who dies, the story passes on to the king's interest in Katheryn Howard who becomes his fifth wife after his marriage to his fourth, Ann of Cleves, and the divorce that she wins from him in a card game played on the royal bed on their wedding night. It is his sixth and last wife who inspires him to comment that "the best of them's the worst."

The wives of Henry are portrayed by six of England's most beautiful actresses.

Construction First to Feel Trade Trend

Industry Expends Ten Billion Dollars Annually.

The Post Begins Series on Activities in Washington.

This is the first of a series on revival of home construction, with particular reference to Washington.

By Willis J. Ballinger.

Activities connected with the construction industry constitute fundamental and vital factors in all of the Nation's business.

Dependent on the construction industry is a large and increasingly important percentage of other basic industries, such as iron and steel, coal and coke, copper and lead, lumber, brick, sand, stone and cement.

The construction industry in periods of maximum activity involves the annual expenditure of approximately $10,000,000,000. About half of this goes to labor as wages; much of the remainder is expended for materials. Including labor employed by industries supplying materials, the ultimate distribution in wages and salaries is probably as high as 90 per cent of the total dollar volume of construction.

When an extended program of new construction, replacement and improvement is under way, copper and iron mines, fabricating plants and steel mills, and cement mills and brick yards operate at capacity and are in turn enlarged. The various public utility services commence programs of expansion which also require increasing amounts of labor and materials.

Calls for Other Work.

There is a collateral demand for all of the incidentals involved in the construction of new homes or the improvement of old ones. These incidental activities include such items as the construction of streets, highways and bridges and an infinite number of lesses activities resulting from the demand for paint, heating and plumbing supplies and various modern household conveniences.

The construction industry proceeds through continuing cycles of expansion and depression. In periods of depression it suffers even more than the average of general business, since it deals with accumulated or anticipated future needs rather than current consumption.

Increasing population, loss by fire and obsolescence together produce housing shortages.

When the trough of a depression is passed, these housing shortages, assisted by increasing power and reviving confidence, soon bring a housing demand evidenced by increasing rents and shifts of population, such as the development of new suburban or business areas, the result of higher standards of living or changing habits of existence.

All Business Stimulated.

Building activity is stimulated by this growing demand and in itself stimulates general business. It is carried beyond immediate needs; surplus facilities result. These in turn result in a decline in the demand for new housing facilities; a period of declining construction follows. This accompanies and is among the causes of the next general business depression. Then the cycle is repeated.

The indices of construction activity have long been accepted as barometers of the long-term swings of general business activity. A revival in building permits and records of contract lettings is an indication of returning prosperity.

The progress of the last cycle of construction was as follows:

During participation of the United States in the World War building construction was at a low ebb because of the shortage of labor and material. This produced housing shortages.

Immediately after the war revival of construction was delayed by lack of credit and confidence. As these were restored, a period of building activity followed. Building contracts for 27 States, as recorded by the F. W. Dodge Corporation, totaled $100,000,000 in February, 1921. These figures rose to $242,000,000 in May, $245,000,000 in September and $293,000,000 in March, 1922. The upturn in construction coincided with the end-

Fowl Words

Two Colored Men in Jail Because of Clucks.

"Cluck, cluck," said the chickens, and two colored men were on their way to jail.

Floyd Courtney, 36, colored, of 1426 Tenth street northwest, and Ralph Smith, 35, colored, of 1641 Thirteenth street northwest, were stopped Tuesday night by Policeman Benjamin Bean. He asked them about a chicken theft in the neighborhood a few hours before.

The men said they were surprised that the officers should suspect them of such a theft. Just as the officer was about to pass on, the chickens took a hand.

"Cluck, cluck," came from beneath their captors' overcoats.

The colored men were sentenced to 60 days in the District Jail when they appeared in Police Court yesterday.

Senator Gets Watch Stolen In Hotel Room

Youth Says He Waited Five Hours to Rob Erickson; Six Others Held.

Police made seven arrests and recovered a Senator's watch, $100 worth of narcotics and a case of surgical instruments yesterday while investigating recent robberies.

The watch was stolen Sunday night from the Willard Hotel room of Senator John E. Erickson, of Montana. It was found in the possession of John W. Kinkaide, 20, of Minneapolis, who was caught early yesterday breaking into the home of Frank W. Herron, 1730 Park road northwest.

Kinkaide told police he remained in the Senator's room for more than five hours, then rifled his pockets as he slept. Entering the room about 5 o'clock, he said, he was forced to hide in a closet when a chambermaid appeared to tidy up the room. He remained until Senator Erickson came in and went to bed about 11 o'clock. Beside the watch, Kinkaide obtained about $40 in money.

The drugs and surgical instruments had been stolen from the automobile of Dr. George Nelson, 1916 M street northwest, at Union Station. The trio arrested in connection with the theft are Roy G. Johnson, of Bennetsville, S. C.; James Bledsoe, of 229 F street northwest, and Herbert Wrightson, colored, of 541 Browns court northwest.

Another trio arrested are believed by police to have stolen $300 worth of choice liquors Monday night from the Federal Drug Co., 1419 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, and to have taken 200 quarts of liquor and a large quantity of cigarettes from a Peoples Drug Store at 3103 M street northwest October 8.

They gave the names of Benjamin T. Fletcher, Lyon Park; Charles M. Kennedy, 459 E street northwest, and Robert Murphy, 319 Linwood place northeast.

Test Classes Endeavor to Help Students in "Finding" Selves.

School Officials Worried Because System Is so Handicapped.

"What am I going to when I leave school?"

Boys and girls in Washington schools are asking themselves this question daily, with misgivings. They know the story of the past four years. They have seen the employed of yesterday tramping the streets today, forming in bread lines. And, wide-eyed, they turn to their teachers with the query, "What is the best thing for me to do?"

The answer is found in test classes, for boys and girls, in which the students may study their own abilities and inclinations, as well as occupations in which they may feel an interest.

These are so-called exploratory courses in vocational education—metal work, printing and woodwork for boys, and dressmaking and cooking for girls.

All Students Eligible.

Every boy and girl in junior high schools has an opportunity to take some of these courses.

When a youngster displays a stronger aptitude for using his hands than his pen he is given careful observation. This frequently results in the student taking a technical course at McKinley High School, rather than spending four years in language and mathematics.

School authorities are distressed over their inability to do more in helping students map their life.

Economy Spoiled Plan.

The foundation for a system of vocational guidance was laid for the District schools last year, but it was wiped away by the necessity for economy.

The plan provided for a counselor for each semester in the junior high schools and two for each semester in the senior high, making a total of 120 counselors. The cost of operating this system was estimated at $200,000.

Under the plan it was hoped that by the time a student was completing junior high school, he would have an understanding of what course of study he wishes to pursue in the future—academic, business or mechanical.

Eastern Has System.

Miss Helen Samuel, Gordon Junior High School teacher and for five years president of the District Vocational Guidance Association, points to the present work as the nearest approach to vocational guidance in Washington schools at present.

Eastern High School is an exception. This school has succeeded in retaining a vocational guidance course under which counselors are assigned to the students in each semester to advise them as to their future and to keep them under careful observation.

"But what of the other schools?" Miss Samuel asks. "What of the job hunters of tomorrow?"

Donovan Avers Congress Set Local Tax Rate

Auditor Denies Mistake in Adding Figures Was Responsible.

Private admonition from members of Congress determined the tax rate of $1.50 fixed by the District Commissioners for the current fiscal year, Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, said yesterday.

The statement was made in an answer to charges by the Washington Taxpayers Protective Association that a mistake of $1,000,000 in arithmetic had prevented reduction in the tax rate below $1.50.

"Because some one slipped up in adding a half-dozen figures, which caused a million dollars to disappear for four months, the tax rate was set at $1.50—the figure frequently mentioned on the floor of the House as what the new tax rate should be—when it could have been lowered to about $1.44," the association charged in a statement made public by Rufus Lusk, executive secretary.

Large Difference Cited.

"In other words, the Commissioners could have cut taxes close to $5,000,000 instead of $3,804,000."

The mistake referred to was in a fiscal statement prepared by Mr. Donovan last June. The auditor admitted the mistake was made and, in a statement approved by the Commissioners, said:

"This in no way affected the tax rate for the fiscal year 1934. The committees in Congress in charge of the District appropriation bill had notified the Commissioners to reduce the rate in 1934 to $1.50. The memorandum of June 10, 1933, was prepared long after the Congressional committees had completed their work on the 1934 bill."

Calls Report Correct.

The formal financial report submitted the Commissioners in October was correct, he added.

Authority to reduce tax rates was given to the Cimmissioners this fiscal year for the first time in five years. No minimum was specified in the law but the admonitions given by members of the House and Senate were adequate to prevent reduction below $1.50, the Commissioners agreed.

Woman Sues Another For Automobile Hurts

Damages of $25,000 are asked in a suit filed yesterday by Beatrice Farrell, 6319 Western avenue northwest. Marjorie W. Johnson, 3356 Tennyson street northwest, was named as defendant.

The suit, filed by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and Martin F. O'Donoghue, charged that an automobile driven by the defendant struck and seriously injured Miss Ferrell at Chevy Chase Circle, March 14, 1931.

Board Keeps Teaching Ban In Force Here

Instructors Who Quit to Protect Mates Still Barred.

Rule Against Engaging in Outside Professions Also Adopted.

Teachers who resigned to protect the positions of their husbands in the Government service will not be reinstated as long as the economy program is in force, the Board of Education decided yesterday.

An exception was made in the case of Mrs. Page Kirk, teacher of mechanical drawing at Western High School, because the board was assured her husband's position in the Geological Survey will not be affected, and also because Mrs. Kirk is the only qualified teacher available for her subject, it was announced.

Under another ruling, the board prohibited teachers from engaging in outside professions. Outside teaching and similar work will be permitted. However, Superintendent Frank W. Ballou was advised to issue permits only when the employe is particularly fitted for his outside work and when the additional occupation would not deprive an unemployed person of a job.

Suggestion Based on Survey.

The reports were submitted by a special committee on multiple employment, composed of Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, Henry I. Quinn, Dr. Hayden Johnson, president of the board, and Dr. J. Hayden Johnson, Negro member.

The recommendation in regard to teachers married to Government employes was based on a survey by Superintendent Ballou. He said the positions of husbands would be endangered if the wives were reemployed. The committee observed that if such teachers were reemployed pupils may suffer from interruptions through resignations and reappointments.

Married teachers heading the rated list from which new appointments are made will be passed over if their husbands or wives are Government employes, it was decided.

The Board of Education in no instance has asked a married teacher to resign, it was stated.

Rerouting of Buses Asked.

Superintendent Ballou absolved school employes from any blame in connection with the fall from a swing last week of Mildred Dunn at the Bancroft playground. The fall caused her to lose an arm. Dr. Ballou said principals and teachers are diligent in inspecting playground equipment. There is no way of protecting playgrounds after school hours, he added. The Dunn child was injured after school hours.

The fatal injury of a Negro child in front of the Mott School by a bus caused the board to ask the Public Utilities Commission to request the bus company to reroute its buses.

Mr. Quinn expressed surprise over word from the District Commissioners that they had employed three architectural consultants on the new Woodrow Wilson High School for eight days at $50 per day. He was told by Dr. Ballou that the board has no responsibility for decisions of the District Commissioners. Plans for the Woodrow Wilson school are practically the same as those for the Roosevelt, and Jere J. Crane, business manager of schools, did most of the work on plans for the new school, Mr. Quinn said.

Man, Clothing Aflame, Saved by Dive in River

A dive into the waters of the Potomac early yesterday probably saved the life of Private Frank Johnson, 23, Walter Reed Hospital, when his clothing became ignited from a gasoline explosion aboard his motor cruiser. Johnson boarded his boat at the dock of J. W. Crampton, 4036 K street northwest, carrying a lighted lamp. The lamp flame set off gasoline fumes which had filled the cabin, he said.

Diving into the river, Johnson swam to the pier where he was pulled out and taken to Walter Reed. He suffered burns on the face and hands. Firemen extinguished the flames in the boat, which was damaged.

Oh, Watson!

Police Restore Loot to Unaware Victim.

Police reversed the usual procedure in robbery cases yesterday when they returned $100 worth of clothing to Blain Taylor, son of Alfred Taylor, former Governor of Tennessee, before Taylor knew he had been robbed.

The clothing, stolen from Taylor's room in the Raleigh Hotel Tuesday night, was recovered by Detective Sergts. Truscott and Brass yesterday while searching the room of one of two men arrested at Union Station for questioning in a confidence scheme.

The men gave their names as Hubert J. Gibson, 33, of 314 Massachusetts avenue northeast, and Frank Honeycutt, 25, of 311 Massachusetts avenue northeast. A woman arrested with them said she was Ruth Rogers, 25.

Detectives arrested Honeycutt's wife at their apartment, where they found Tayler's clothing.

Reigns Over Dogs' Destinies

MRS. HATTIE SMALL, 120 C street northeast, as chief dog licensing clerk of the District for seven years, has set some sort of record, besides meeting all sorts of dog fanciers, through the issuance of more than 200,000 dog tags, 20,000 of them this year.

Presidents and Laborers Buy Tags From Mrs. Small.

It's a dog's life for Mrs. Hattie Small, 120 S street northeast, in fact 200,000 dogs' lives.

Mrs. Small, dog licensing clerk for the District, has stood behind her cage for seven years and issued licenses for almost a quarter of a million Washington canines.

Presidents, diplomats, senators, dish washers and ditch diggers have come to assure their pets freedom from the dog catchers' nets.

So far this year she has insured the safety of 20,000 dogs—a record for her office. A dog fancier herself, she knows the trends of dog-conscious America.

Little Dogs Favored.

For instance, Mrs. Small asserts, little dogs are now more popular than big ones, and scrappy masculine dogs that strut proudly at the end of leashes in Washington's autum circles are in demand.

Soldiers and sailors are more fond of dogs than any other class of people except children, she says.

"The depression brought more dog lovers in to see me to protect their pets than the days of prosperity," said Mrs. Small.

Mixture of Names.

"I suppose that was because when people got disgusted with the world they felt they had friends in their dogs."

The most unusual dog names, Mrs. Small points out, are Jupiter, Horse, Pig, Bad Eye and Monkey. Somewhere, back in the midsts of time, there was a French poodle named Marie Antoinette.

"When I am retired," smiled Mrs. Small yesterday, "I should like to settle down and surround myself with dogs."

Fraternity Honors D. C. Newcomers

Delta Sigma Phi Banquet Is Given at Club.

Members of the Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity who were swept into Washington by the New Deal were greeted last night at a banquet at the University Club, given by the Washington chapter of the organization.

Senator James Davis, of Pennsylvania, the guest of honor, told the group that his college was the Amalgamated Iron, Steel and Tin Workers Union and that he had never been able to graduate from the school of hard knocks. Among those brought to Washington by the Democratic victory are Carl A. Crowley, solicitor general for the Postoffice Department; Dr. Clyde L. King, National Milk Admisistrator; Arthur T. Thompson, special Assistant Secretary of Agriculture; Hamilton Stephens, attorney for the Home Owners Loan Corporation, and J. A. Pendleton, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Policeman Arrests Man Who Failed to Kill Him

Policeman G. N. Nicholson, whose police badge stopped a bullet aimed at his heart Tuesday night, will take the man who shot at him to court today on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Nicholson was fired at point blank by Thomas Rooks, 45, colored, in an alley in rear of First and H streets northwest when the officer tried to enter a yard at 54 H street.

The policeman overpowered the Negro and took him to the First Precinct Station.

Store Burglars Take $1,000 in Cigarettes

Eighteen cases of cigarettes, worth $1,000, were stolen yesterday from the Mazo Brothers' store at Tenth and Water streets southwest. Thieves broke a back window, and trucked their loot away, police believe.

Claude A. Will, manager of a gas station at 4812 Conduit road said his station was entered last night, a pay telephone ripped from the wall and the money taken from it.

U. S. Geology Experts Fight Salary Cuts

The scientific staff of the Geological Survey yesterday sought to block a 40 per cent pay cut.

Officials said about 100 men would be forced to take three-month furloughs without pay unless a solution could be found. All of these workers already have suffered a flat 15 per cent decrease in salary.

The situation resulted from a 25 per cent reduction in the Survey appropriation, effective June 15. This necessitated salary changes because 80 per cent of the funds normally are used on pay rolls.

Personnel experts suggested the furlough plan after abandoning proposals to dismiss 140 clerks and minor employes. Some of these absences have begun.

Efforts have been made to keep the scientific staff near its full strength because of unusual demands for data expected from the Public Works Administration.

D.C. Planners Facing Major Building Jobs

Rehabilitation of Slums, Test Basin Among Projects.

Mall Park Drives Also Due for Action by Commission.

Facing an ambitious schedule, which includes proposals ranging from slum elimination to a ship-testing basin, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission tomorrow will open a two-day meeting at the Navy Building.

Included in the agenda are a proposal to abolish "unsightly" buildings on the north side of Pennsylvania avenue between the Capitol and Thirteenth street, general improvements in the central area after the Mall program is completed, cooperation with the Federal Government in the slum elimination and low-cost housing campaign, a proposed stadium-armory and physical aspect of the unified street-car system.

Final presentation will be made of Mall plans, providing for four park drives between Third and Fourteenth streets. These roadways would be flanked on either side by rows of elm trees, affording a 200-foot central open vista between the Capitol and Monument Grounds. The Public Works Administration has allotted $600,000 for this project.

The planning body is expected to recommend to the District Commissioners the closing of Missouri and Maine avenues between Third and Four-and-a-half streets, as a preliminary step in the parkway program. The United States already has title to frontage in this section.

Tree Disease Studied.

Alarmed by the spread of a mysterious elm tree disease, which, if unchecked, may frustrate the proposed parkway planting, the commission and Department of Agriculture experts are studying the menace and a report on progress will be presented.

Ways and means of cooperating with the Public Works Administration, architects and other agencies on slum clearance and model housing here will be set forth in another report. The commission will emphasize the necessity of abolishing certain alley dwellings. Drawn up by John Nolen, jr., city planner,

Tech, Presenting Another Powerful Eleven, Routs Roosevelt, 45-0

2d, 3d Teams As Strong As First

Foes' Passing Attack in Fourth Period Only Serious Threat.

Numerous Short Runs Mark Game on Rain-Soaked Field.

ANOTHER McKinley Tech High School football team trotted onto a rain-soaked Central Stadium field yesterday afternoon and proved to a thousand fans that Tech has the makings of another championship club by thoroughly thumping Roosevelt, 45-0.

Coach Hap Hardell has another powerful club, one that at this stage ranks along side the best he has sent forth to battle for Tech in his several years at that institution. The chief difference in his club this year is that his second and third elevens appear to be as strong as his regular starters.

Completely outclassed yesterday, Roosevelt had only one real chance to score, and that came late in the fourth quarter. Roosevelt advanced the water-soaked ball within the Tech 20-yard line—a pass, with Cavanaugh on the tossing end, doing the work. But the threat of a rally was short-lived, for soon afterward Cooper, elusive and alert Tech half back, intercepted a pass that eventually placed the ball back where it had been the first 55 minutes of the game—in Roosevelt territory.

Makes 25-Yard Run.

With about six minutes to go in the first period, McKinley worked the ball on powerhouse plays to the Roosevelt 25-yard line, and then Heatwole, on a wide spurt around the right side of the line, carried the ball over for the first points of the game. Hess kicked the extra point.

On an exchange of punts, in the middle of the second stanza, Lynch, sub for Heatwole, knifed off tackle on the Ruf Rider 35, and carried the ball to the 10. Then on three successive plays he carried the ball to the 2½ marker, whence Bogley, substitute for Her-, plunged it over the goal. Massey kicked the try for point.

Leads 20-to-0 at Half.

With a mixture of first, second and third string players in the Tech lineup, Heatwole and Bogley later advanced from midfield, and, with the ball on the 20-yard marker, Bogley smashed off tackle standing up, bringing the score to 20 as the half-time whistle sounded.

It was in the third stanza that the Manual Trainers turned on the power spigot. Roosevelt kicked off and the ball was advanced to Tech's 47. A stab at the center of the line failed and then Bogan, another substitute, skirted left end for a beautiful 53-yard gallop. But Referee Magoffin detected a Tech man clipping from behind and called the ball back to the Roosevelt 15. The incident helped the Roosevelt team little, and Bogan later scored.

Pisano Gets Score.

Pisano, Hardell's reserve quarter back, zipped around right end from his own 40 to the Roosevelt 23 and then darted around right and again for a score.

The third touchdown in the quarter came when Lynch took the ball from scrimmage on his own 30 and raced to the Roosevelt 13. A 5-yard offside penalty on the Riders placed the ball on the 6 and Lynch dived over for the next set of points. Hess booted the extra point.

Alley Goes Over.

The final score in the fourth period, with third and fourth stringers in the Tech line-up resulted when Alley, sub full, fought his way through the center of the line from the 35 for the score.

McKinley, with a wealth of reserve strength, played sterling ball throughout. Perfectly timed plays and great blocking showed up in yesterday's play.

For the losers Cavanaugh stood out with Garner, a half, and Beamer, a really good end, doing some excellent playing.

Md. U. Netmen Finish Fall Training Season

University of Maryland's varsity tennis team has concluded its fall training season on the College Park courts, but expects to continue drills throughout the winter in Ritchie Gymnasium and on the Washington cement courts.

In the final workout of the outdoor season, Coach Les Bopst sent his squad through a practice match with a team composed of George Washington University and Washington public parks players. The visitors won the engagement, three matches to one, with Sam Meloy, last season's No. 1 freshmen team player, gaining the Old Liners' only victory.

30,000 to See Minnesota Play Pitt

Ohio State and Michigan Also Grooming for Big Game Saturday.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 18 (AP).—Pittsburgh's reputation exerted an influence in Minnesota's football box office as well as the practice field today.

Officials said a crowd of 30,000 or more with favorable weather, largest of the season at Memorial Stadium, was in prospect.

Buckeys Scrimmage.

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 18 (AP).—Ohio State's gridders held their final scrimmage today in preparation for Saturday's encounter with the University of Michigan. Coach Sam Willaman previously had promised only a light workout but when he became dissatisfied with a dummy scrimmage, he ordered the frosh to trot out and do battle with the varsity. The team will depart for Michigan territory Thursday night.

Michigan in Secret Drill.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 18 (AP).—The Michigan scoring machine was oiled today for the special benefit of the Ohio State football team—but the lubricating was done behind closed gates and walls patroled by guards.

Coach Kipke said he probably will start the same eleven that opened against Cornell. This would place Capt. Fay, Heston, Regeczi and Everhardus in the back field.

Temporary seats will be erected in the stadium for Saturday's game, increasing its capacity to 87,000.

Smith May Top Hitchcock in Polo

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—One of the warmest family debates polo has known in years centers about the prospective national ranking for 1933 of the country's three foremost players, Thomas Hitchcock, jr., of New York; Elmer J. Boeseke, jr., of California, and Cecil Smith, of Texas.

The official list will not be passed on until the annual meeting of the United States Polo Association in January, but the official canvass of opinion has already begun, it was learned today. At the same time, indications point definitely to the end of Tommy Hitchcock's regime, not only as the world's only 10-goal star but as the top-ranking American player.

A consensus of metropolitan polo writers and authorities, polled by the Associated Press, revealed a belief that all three aces of American polo should be rated the same, at nine goals, with a shade of opinion in favor of Smith, if any one of the trio is to be given the peak 10-goal rating. Smith is now rated at 9 goals, Boeseke at 7.

Hitchcock has been rated at the maximum of 10 goals since he first rose to international fame in 1921.

Home Town to Give Parade for Hubbell

Meeker, Okla., Oct. 18 (AP).—Carl Hubbell is coming home to his Meeker pecan farm tomorrow—and the acclaim of the home folk.

A telegram from the New York Giant pitcher and hero of the 1933 world series saying he would "drive in" tomorrow was the signal today for bustling preparations in Meeker.

To welcome home its celebrated son, Meeker will have a full day's program—band concerts, a parade, a baseball game and a banquet.

Auburn Team Is Confident Of Victory

To Leave Alabama Today for G. W. Encounter in Capital.

AUBURN'S BENGALS are sharpening their claws and licking their chops in anticipation of a fine football feast at the expense of George Washington when the teams clash Saturday at Griffith Stadium. With Coach Chet Wynne at the helm, the team will leave this morning for Washington, arriving early tomorrow morning.

Auburn's starting back field will comprise Capt. "Ripper" Williams, quarter back; "Firpo" Phipps and Al Rogers at half back, with either Sterling Dupree or "Truck" Talley at full back. Dupree is the Southwestern Conference sprint champion, but Talley has a 20-pound advantage in weight and may handle the line plunging a trifle better because of this.

Plannng Changes.

Wynne contemplates some changes in the forward wall because of a tendency among some players to take their work too lightly. "Gump" Ariall, right end, and "Tiny" Holmes, right tackle, are in danger of losing their positions. Ariall was all-Southern end last season, and Holmes a second choice for his position. Their work this season, however, has not been up to par.

Auburn will be well prepared for its sixth intersectional game in the school's history, but G. W. will be ready to meet the challenge. The colonials will fight fire with fire, a strong running attack against one equally as strong. Anybody who can tote a football will be given the opportunity to do so. "Nig" McCarver's elusive broken-fiel running, Don Bomba's line plunging and Johnny Baker's forward passing will be utilized to the fullest extent.

Is In Excellent Spirits.

Night skull sessions have been held for the last three days and will be in order the remainder of the week. Coach Pixlee feels that the Colonials have an even chance of winning and is leaving no stone unturned to have his men at their best.

G. W. is in excellent spirits for the game. Last year against Alabama, when the downtown school made its first slash in big-time football, the players seemed to be awed by the reputation of their opponents. Against Auburn they will feel that they are meeting an ordinary team, no better than themselves.

James Crofton Divorced.

San Diego, Calif., Oct. 18 (AP). A divorce was granted Mona Rico, film star, from James N. Crofton, wealthy Agua Caliente sportsman, in Superior Court today. She alleged cruelty.

The two were married in Washington, D. C., October 12, 1932, and separated September 25, 1933.

Crisler Shifts Princeton Players

Holds Defensive Practice; Army Scrimmages; Stressing Passes.

(Associated Press.)

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 18.—Coach "Fritz" Crisler, of Princeton, made a number of experimental changes in the Tiger line-up today as the varsity staged a successful defensive drill against Columbia plays. The third team, with the Lions' offense, could not gain either through the line or through the air against the varsity or second team. Bill Marks replaced Ken Fairman at left end, Gil Lea was back on the right wing instead of Den Delaney and Homer Spoffard and Hugh MacMillan alternated at right half.

Fundamentals Workout.

New York-Columbia's grid warriors went through a detailed rehearsal of what they have learned so far this season, including a long workout on fundamentals. A makeshift "Princeton" team, including several coaches, was moderately successful against the varsity defense. It made its best gains on passes. Frank Chippendale again was at half back in place of Al Barabas and probably will start against the Tigers.

Army in Scrimmage.

West Point, N. Y.—Army held its last scrimmage before the Illinois game and devoted practically all of it to passing. The varsity took to the air both on the offense and defense and showed marked improvement in knocking down aerials. Jack Buckler tossed most of the passes, with Kopcsak, Burlingame, Lawyer and Jensen receiving.

Cornell Drills in Secret.

Ithaca, N. Y.—Cornell held a long dummy scrimmage against the scrubs, testing both its attack and its defense against Syracuse plays. Stress was laid upon interference for running plays. The drill was secret, but Coach Gil Dobie indicated that he does not expect to change the line-up before Saturday.

Colgate Kicks, Passes.

Hamilton, N. Y.—Colgate's Red Raiders opened up for the first time in their preparations for the New York University game and made a flock of long gains on running and on forward and lateral passing plays. Coach Andy Kerr tested out his twelve-threat back field and Charlie Soleau, Chin Lyon, Jack Fritts and Ike Kern all demon-

Sniscak May Be Full Back For C. U.

Bergman Is Considering Shift for Game Here Tomorrow Night.

Chattanooga to Invade With New Plays for Cardinal Clash.

A BATTLE for the regular full back assignment, involving Tom Oliver, present incumbent, and Johnny Sniscak, his sophomore understudy, has arisen to enliven Catholic University's practice sessions. The war is at its zenith with the starting role against Chattanooga tomorrow night the winner's prize.

One of the most promising rookies in camp, Sniscak showed enough ability to warrant serious consideration as a regular. Coach Bergman was visibly impressed with his talent. But Sniscak went into reverse gear when the curtain went up and only recently has given evidence of regaining his stride. Against St. John's Saturday, he tore through the line for consistently large gains and got off a coup'e of good punts. He can also pass accurately.

Oliver's Kicking Improves.

Oliver's kicking, which was an important factor in winning his berth, but which has been decidedly off-color since the La Salle game, is improving rapidly. Yesterday his boots sailed between 50 and 60 yards. His greater experience gives him an edge over Sniscak, but the latter may clinch the position with a better brand of all-around play.

Catholic will be prepared to give Chattanooga warm welcome. Freshmen teams, employing the Southerners' style of handling the ball, were torn asunder by the varsity yesterday and thrown for huge losses. On the other hand, the varsity banged its way through the yearlings as it pleased.

Visitors Have New Plays.

Word has come from the enemy camp that Coach Scrappy Moore has equipped his men with a new set of plays designed to penetrate C. U.'s territory. The offense will revolve around Bill Venable, the half-pint speed merchant, whom the Brooklanders well remember from last season. Venable waged a stirring duel with Tom Whelan for individual honors in that game. This year there will be no Whelan to combat him and the stocky half back is ready to make the most of his opportunity.

A gigantic pep rally was staged at Chattanooga last night as a farewell gesture. Today the squad entrains for Washington, arriving early tomorrow morning.

Street Is Signed To Pilot Missions

Salary of Former Card Manager Not Bared.

San Francisco, Oct. 19 (AP).—Joseph Bearwald, president of the San Francisco Mission Baseball Club of the Pacific Coast League, announced today he had signed Charles (Gabby) Street, who managed the St. Louis Cardinals when they won the world championship in 1931, to manage the Mission Club.

Bearwald said Street accepted terms offered him recently and will leave his home in Joplin, Mo., soon to start organizing the Pacific Coast Club for the 1934 season. The Missions' president did not disclose the salary involved.

Fred Hofmann, manager of the club during the 1933 season, was offered a position as a player, Bearwald said, but was given his uncondition release when he refused the demotion.

Ruth Will Not Manage Yankees, Says Ruppert

New York, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, tonight squelched rumors that he planned making Babe Ruth manager of the club, with this statement:

"I tell you positively that Joe McCarthy will manage the Yanks for the next two years. His contract has two years to run. And I've never even thought of replacing McCarthy at the end of his contract.

"I don't know where people got the idea I was planning to use Ruth as manager. I've never even considered it."

Cochrane Is Linked With Detroit Club

Visits City But Navin Says He Has Made No Choice.

Detroit, Oct. 18 (AP).—A recent visit here of Gordon S. "Mickey" Cochrane, catcher for the Philadelphia Athletics, gave rise to local rumors that he would be the choice of Frank Navin, owner of the Detroit Tigers of the American League, as playing manager, but Navin today said he had not made any offer to Cochrane.

"I haven't negotiated with Cochrane," said Navin today. "I don't know whether Connie Mack would release him. I have several other prospects in mind, and don't plan to make any decision for several weeks."

Navin must choose a manager to replace Stanley R. "Bucky" Harris, who resigned shortly before the end of the 1933 season.

WinookaDebut Now Set for Wednesday

Slight Injury and Mud at Laurel Are Reasons for Delay.

EASTERN turf fans who were to pass judgment tomorrow on the prowess of Winooka, Australain champion, yesterday were appraised of a five-day delay in the debut of the highly-touted Anzac sprinter at Laurel.

Originally scheduled to meet a half dozen of America's best sprinters tomorrow at 6 furlongs at the Laurel track, Winooka will not accept the issue until next Wednesday, it was announced at the track following a conference between Rufe Naylor, manager of the Australian star's tour; Spencer Jervis, of the Maryland Racing Commission, and Frank Brady, Laurel track official.

Star Slightly Injured.

A slight leg injury to Winooka in a public workout last Saturday caused the postponement, according to Naylor, who said the horse had failed to respond rapidly to treatment. Naylor also pointed out that the track in all likelihood would be slow tomorrow and that he "wanted Winooka tested under conditions that would give him no excuses in case of defeat."

The same field that was to oppose Winooka tomorrow—Gold Step, Fairbypair, Okapi, Character, Kerry Patch and Curacao—is scheduled to start against the Australian on Wednesday.

Clockers at Laurel yesterday were impressed with the morning workout of Winooka, who traveled 5 furlongs over a muddy track in the good time of 1:02, showing no indications of an injury.

Word from New York was to the effect that Winooka's much-discussed race with the Whitney champion, Equipoise, may not yet be definitely off.

May Accept Race.

It was reported that Naylor was showing some disposition to accept an Equipoise race at a mile, instead of at 6 or 7 furlongs, as the Australian turfmen had originally planned as more suitable to their thoroughbred.

The Whitney interests have been holding out for a mile. That is the distance at which Equipoise set a world record of 1:35 2-5 a year ago under high weight. In Australia last April, Winooka ran the mile in 1:35 4-5 under 139 pounds.

Texas Race Track Will Open Today

Betting Barred Since '09 Until Recently.

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 18 (AP). Horse racing will return to Texas to the accompaniment of parimutuel wagering tomorrow when W. T. Waggoner, millionaire sportsman, throws open his $2,000,000 Arlington Downs plant for a three-weeks meeting in the presence of high Government officials.

Constructed several years ago against the time when betting would be legalized, the Downs, midway between Dallas and Fort Worth, will start off with seven races, for which more than 70 horses have been entered.

Vice President Garner and Postmaster General Farley will be among the Washington officials attending the opening.

Until a few months ago, betting on horse races had been forbidden by State statute since 1909.

Baer Offered $20,000 For McCorkindale Bout

Newark, N. J., Oct. 18 (AP).—Victor J. (Buddy) Brown, a boxing promoter, said today he had wired Ancil Hoffman, manager of Max Baer, an offer of $20,000 for a match with Don McCorkindale, recently imported South African heavyweight, here in December.

Brown said he already had closed the deal for McCorkindale's services with Babe Culnan, his American manager, but terms were not disclosed. McCorkindale outpointed Patsy Perroni in his first appearance in this country recently.

The proposed Baer-McCorkindale bout would take place the second week in December, Brown said.

U. S. Hockey Team Wins.

St. Andrews, Scotland, Oct. 18 (AP). The touring American Women's Field Hockey Team today defeated the Scottish eleven, which toured the United States in 1931. The score was 6 to 1.

Passers Rout Bridgeport, 19 to 6

Bankhead Hero, Scores All Points; Fenlon Runs 55 Yards.

Capital Pro Grid Team Improves; Passing Attack Produces.

FIFTEEN hundred and fifteen frost-bitten, football fans filed out to see the Washington Passers defeat the Bridgeport Trojans, 19-6, at Griff Stadium last night.

It was the fleet-footed Jimmy Bankhead, the Texas whirlwind, who stupefied the New Englanders as well as the 1,515 cash customers with his dazzling passes, long kicks and terrific line smashes.

The locals were slow to get underway and before the clock had hit the three minute mark, the Trojans were knocking at the Passers' goal line. But the defense rallied and a long pass from Quarter Back Thompson, captain and playing coach of the visitors, aimed at Sanink over the goal line, was grounded by Bankhead to change the complexion of the game. From then on it was all Passers.

Fenlon Catches Pass.

With about 5 minutes left to play in the first stanza, Fenlon took a pass on his own 43 and galloped to the Bridgeport 8. Bankhead bucked the line to the 5 and then scored on a wide, left-end run. The Texan kicked the extra point from placement.

The Bridgeport Team came back with a rush in the second period and a long forward from Thompson to Sanink, good for 35 markers, advanced the ball to the Washington 28. Another pass, Thompson to F. Benedict, traveled 18 yards through the air and Benedict dented the local goal line from that point. Hallock's try for point was blocked.

In the third period, a series of Washington passes brought the white sphere down to the 25. Alenti sneaked through tackle to the 9 and Bankhead skirted right end for the score.

The fourth Passer score came in the last quarter when Bordeau knifed off tackle from the 11 to the 4, and Bankhead went over the center of the line for the score. The ball was brought within scoring distance by some fancy ball toting on the part of Johnny Fenlon and Lawrence.

The Passers showed much of improvement in their play over last week's showing against the Bears. In fact, several of the Windy City running plays were found in the Passers' repertoire of tricks. Blackstone was one of the outstanding players on the field, slashing down Trojan runners in veteran pro style. Fenlon and Alenti also showed up well especially on the offense. The former Colonial ball carrier raced 55 yards to put his team in scoring position for the first score.

The Passers accumulated a total of 17 first downs to 12 for the Connecticuts.

Matthews, Dr. Drewry Tied in Maryland Golf

Batimore, Md., Oct. 18 (Spl.).—J. Marsh Matthews, of the Baltimore Country Club, and Dr. Cooper Drewry, of the Rolling Road Golf Club, tied for the senior championship of the Maryland State Golf Association today at the Green Spring Valley Hunt Club. Each carded 87. Matthews, defending champion, and Dr. Drewry, who held the honor the year before, will play off the tie tomorrow.

Two Washingtonians were among the 23 contestants. G. F. McCarron went around in 93 and Dr. Bruce L. Taylor, of Congressional, had a count of 108.

Lexington Veterinarian To Attend Pillow Fight

Lexington, Va., Oct. 18 (AP).—Dr. Fraser A. Smith, Lexington veterinarian, said today he would leave for California Friday to attend Pillow Fight, noted Australian horse, now in this country.

D. M. Davis, owner of the horse, requested the Lexington veterinarian to diagnose the case, which has baffled veterinarians on the Pacific Coast. Pillow Fight has developed a habit of "running out," pulling away from the inside rail of the track, not uncommon among thoroughbreds and usually caused by pain in the feet or legs.

Eric Lawson Floored 12 Times, Bout Stopped

Charleston, S. C., Oct. 18 (AP).—Jack Kilbourne, of Enid, Okla., knocked out Eric Lawson, Brooklyn, N. Y., in the second round of a 10-round fight here tonight. Lawson was knocked down 11 times before Referee Charlie Forbes stopped the fight, with Lawson down the twelfth time. He had been floored eight times in the first round. Kilbourne weighed 159, Lawson 170.

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

SPEAKING of professional football (or weren't we?), the depression years didn't actually give birth to the game, but they nurtured it to full-blown maturity.

Ready cash, that old persuader, is making pro football a highly respectable occupation in the eyes of the campus heroes who used to think twice before betraying the ideals of Alma Mater and prostituting, no less, the sport that paid off the bonds on the big stadia.

Time was when a professional football player was about as welcome in the best amateur circles as Hitler at a Zionist conference, but 's funny how Ready Cash changes some people's opinions. The bright young college graduate is finding it increasingly difficult to exchange his diploma for a job, and there aren't enough boss' daughters to go 'round.

Wholesale Quantities.

So, the line has been forming on the left at the pro football enlistment stations and the campus heroes have been grafted on to the professional gridirons in wholesale quantities.

Professional football's rise dates from Red Grange. Before Grange the pro era was a dismal one. The few leagues that operated were comprised, in the main, of sandlot and semipro performers. The college team of that time could mop up the field with the best of the pros. The football fan who wanted the best show for his money went to the college games.

Hard on the heels of Grange's entry into paid ranks followed a general exodus from the amateurism of the colleges. Pro football line-ups began to bear the names of familiar college heroes. During the last few years the transition has become complete. Rare now is the college star who doesn't find his way into the pro ranks. Rare now is the college team that is worthy to be mentioned in the same inhalation with the best professional teams.

Pixlee a Dissenter.

Rare, too, is the college coach who doesn't idmit freely that the best professional team could spot the best college team several touchdowns. One dissenter is Jim Pixlee, of George Washington, who is not ready to concur.

"I'd have to see them play before I would believe it," says Pixlee. "The pros figure to win, but whether they would or not, I can't say. It is hard for me to believe that the pros would be in the same fine condition as the college team. And they certainly wouldn't have the same fine spirit.

"No football player is at 100 per cent efficiency without team spirit. You never can tell about these college boys. One of 'em is liable to go wild in any ball game when he's fired by the old college spirit. That's why it's hard to tell what might happen if a pro team and a good college team hooked-up."

Come Into Their Own.

One of the paradoxes of pro football has been the manner in which small college stars have come into their own. Denied the publicity and the nortoriety given the big college heroes in college competition, the chaps from the hinterlands and the bush-league schools are making their mark in pro ranks.

A staggering percentage of pro football's stars hail from the colleges in the provinces who drew only a line of type or two in the Sunday editions of the metropolitan dailies. But such as Gyp Battles, of West Virginia Wesleyan, and Dutch Clark, of Colorado, have eclipsed the more famed heroes of the larger schools in college ranks.

The success of the small-college player in pro ranks is attributed in some quarters to the fact that these hinterland campus heroes operated without benefit of the uniform interference and highly organized team play of the prominent institutions and thus learned long ago to perform under adversities and develop native ability to play the game.

Don McCorkindale Ordered to Court

Fireworks Are Expected in Impellettiere Row.

New York, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Fireworks are expected at Saturday's meeting of the New York State Boxing Commission when Gen. John J. Phelan, chairman, asks Don McCorkindale, South African heavyweight, to show cause why he should not be matched with Ray Impellettiere as his next opponent.

Impellettiere is the 260-pound American giant whom all other heavies have been avoiding like smallpox for the last year.

James J. Johnston, of Madison Square Garden, has McCorkindale tentatively matched to meet Jack Sharkey at the Garden on November 17, but it's understood the commission is determined that the British boxer shall tangle with Impellettiere before meeting the former heavyweight champion.

Babe Culnan, McCorkindale's manager, could not be reached tonight, but friends of his said he would oppose the Impellettiere match, considering it unfair to make a foreign boxer meet a man whom all the American heavies were avoiding.

Western Maryland Is in Quandary Over Type of Defense to Use Against G. U.

Coach Feels Foe Maps Surprise

Green Terrors Boast of Veteran Team, Have Won One Game.

NINE veterans would seem to present a good foundation for a successful football team, but in the case of Western Maryland this does not appear to be true. Dick Harlow has the same team intact, with two exceptions, that carried the club over a rocky 1932 season in decent style. But this year it's a different story.

Three times the Green Terrors have gone into battle, and only once have they emerged victorious. A 7-0 triumph over a weak Mount St. Mary's team is all they have to show for their efforts thus far. Games were lost to St. Thomas and Duquesne—no slouches, of course—but lost, just the same.

Offer No Alibis.

So Harlow's men arrived at the Georgetown game facing their leanest season in recent years with a veteran team. There is no explaining to do, no alibis to be offered—St. Thomas and Dusquesne were better and Mount St. Mary's just one touchdown weaker.

But a man with Harlow's talents and energy will not stand idly by and see the trouble reach more serious proportions. The evil must be checked now, and if it is within the coach's power, will be. Beating Georgetown is the first step in Western Maryland's struggle to regain its place in the sun.

Harlow and his assistants admittedly are perplexed by Georgetown's style and in a quandary about the type of defense to use. Against Ursinus, which was played in a driving rain storm, Georgetown relied wholly on power plays through guard and tackle. In the Manhattan fray it saved itself from defeat with a brilliant forward passing attack. What kind of an attack is it concocting for Western Maryland? That's what Harlow would like to know.

Neil Stanley, assistant coach, is drilling the ends vigorously, a sign that W. M. expects much activity in this direction. The secondary defense is getting a thorough grooming in the art of spoiling forward passes, and the lineman, of course, have been told to expect a dazzling assortment of spinners and line bucks. Western Maryland will be well prepared for anything the Hoyas may spring in the game at Baltimore Saturday.

Chevy Chase's Golf Title to Mrs. Wrong

Louise Claytor Loses by Stroke After 2 Play-Off Contests.

MRS. HUME WRONG won the Chevy Chase women's golf championship yesterday morning by defeating Miss Louise Claytor by a one-stroke margin in their second 18-hole play off.

Tied at the end of the 36-hole championship with a 182 total, and tied again in the first play off with 97, Mrs. Wrong finished yesterday's round with a 97 to Miss Claytor's 98.

After trailing by five shots going to the tenth, Miss Claytor waged an uphill battle, balancing the score on the fourteenth, losing the fifteenth by one stroke, and halving the remaining three holes.

Miss Claytor made a dramatic bid to tie her opponent on the eighteenth hole. A 220-yard drive, and a beautiful approach third left her scarcely five feet from the cup and putting for a par four. Mrs. Wrong, trapped on her second, was down in two putts for her five, and Miss Claytor's putt rimmed the cup and came out.

Mrs. Wrong succeeds Miss Susan Hacker, twice former champion. Prizes were presented yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Frank R. Keefer. Mrs. Harrison Brand, jr., who finished one shot back of the leaders last week, won third prize.

The newly organized board of governors of the Anacostia Golf Club, headed by Winfree Johnson, will meet tonight at the clubhouse at 8 o'clock. Plans for next season's golf activities will be discussed.

Some 20 golfers from the Marine barracks will participate in a golf tournament today at the Indian Spring Country Club. Play will consist of 27 holes medal play.

Members of second teams that participated in the District matches this season will be the guests of the Kenwood Golf and Country Club today at a gala "field day." A field of 102 women is entered.

Howard Nordlinger, six times champion, will meet Byron Ackerman and Bill Illch will oppose Mel Kraft in the semifinals of the Woodmont Country Club championship this Sunday.

Rain Postpones Soccer And Field Ball Games

Rain forced postponement of all soccer and field ball contests in the northern section of the Prince Georges County high school championship series yesterday afternoon.

Soccer games between Maryland Park, defending champion and leader in the series to date, and Mount Rainier, scheduled at Mount Rainier, and between Hyattsville and Laurel, listed for the Laurel field, were called off, as were field ball engagements between teams of the same schools. Most of the games will be played early next week.

Alexandria vs. St. John's.

Alexandria, Va., Oct. 18 (Spl.).—Alexandria High School will open its 1933 home season here Saturday at 3 p. m. at Baggett's Stadium. St. John's Prep will furnish the opposition.

Harold (Reds) Chilcotte and Paul Shu, Jack Varney and John Nugent compose one of the best back fields ever developed at the local institution.

W. and M. Plays Navy, G. U. Elevens in 1934

Georgetown will meet William and Mary again in football, according to the Virginians' 1934 schedule released last night.

The game will be played in Washington on October 20, eight days earlier than the 1933 contest here this Saturday.

Navy also is included on the William and Mary card. The Middies will be tackled in the opening game at Annapolis on September 29.

Yaeger to Punt For Old Line Gridmen

MARYLAND will not want for good kicking when it stacks up against Virginia Military Institute Saturday in Lexington, Va. A helpmate for Dick Nelson, who heretofore has done all of the punting, appeared on the horizon this week in the person of Charley Yaeger, sophomore half back. Against V. M. I., he will have the opportunity of proving his mettle under fire.

With Yaeger to do the kicking, Nelson will be partially relieved of multitudinous chores. For one thing it should help his forward passing. The former Tech High School star is the only reliable passer on the squad. This phase of attack will be frequently used with Lou Ennis and Carl Stalfort, ends, and Earl Widmyer, half back, on the receiving end.

Maryland is pinning its hopes for victory on Nelson and Widmyer. The coaching staff has labored all week perfecting an attack built around the pair. Widmayer will be pressed into duty as a pass receiver and on end runs. Nelson, of course, will do the passing and help with the ball-carrying.

All of this week's drills have been devoted to perfecting an offense. A predominance of green material forced the coaches to spend the best part of their time erecting a defense earlier in the season.

Maryland will leave tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. for Lexington, traveling by bus.

Colassano Is Signed By Alexandria Team

Alexandria, Oct. 18 (Spl.).—The Alexandria Fraters have signed "Nick" Colassano, former Holy Cross guard.

Coaches Dreifus and Bryant request the presence of the entire team at tomorrow night's drill, at Baggett's Stadium, at 7 p. m.

The Fraters will play the Mercury A. C., of Washington, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p. m. at Baggett's Stadium.

Episcopal and Staunton Teams Play Saturday

Alexandria, Va., Oct. 18 (Spl.).—Episcopal High School will journey to Staunton Saturday for a game with Staunton Military Academy. Head Coach Cardwell will take his squad of 45 players.

Episcopal and Staunton have been rivals for 15 years. The result will throw a light on the Virginia prep championship.

Washington-Lee High Plays Fredericksburg

Washington-Lee High School will play Fredericksburg High School at Ballston tomorrow afternoon, at 3 p. m. Coach Driver has developed a good quartet of ball carriers from a green squad. The game will have a decided bearing on the State championship.

District Grid Loop Books 8 Games

Gunners vs. Ft. Humphrey, Marion vs. Maryland Among Clashes.

HOT battles are scheduled in the three divisions of the National Football League Sunday.

In the unlimited loop, Seaman Gunners will meet Fort Humphreys at the latter's field; Marion A. C. tackles Maryland A. C. at Seat Pleasant, and Mercury draws a bye. The games will start at 3 p. m.

Adams Birch and Palace A. C. clash at Silver Spring at 2:30, and Meridians will oppose St. Stephens at Gonzaga at the same time in the 150-pound class.

No fields have been assigned the teams in the 135-pound class, but the schedule is as follows: Apache Preps vs. Georgetown Boys Club, Brookland Coal vs. Palace Preps, Northeast Boys Club vs. Mercury Juniors, and Cleveland A. C. vs. Centennials.

A meeting of the unlimited division is scheduled for 8 p. m. at the Atlas Sport Shop.

Hitting the Headpin . . .

THE National Duck Pin Bowling Congress will bring its fourth United States Sweepstakes to the Arcadia alleys on January 6. Each individual entry is scheduled to roll 15 games, all the same day. Cash prizes for the event total $1,000 to be divided by the first five men scoring the highest total. Nick Tronsky, of Williamantic, Conn., who captured the first prize last year with a total pinfall of 2,101, will be the favorite to repeat.

Joe Freschi, reputed by experts to have the best first ball in the city, upheld his reputation as one of the most feared bowlers by cracking out a 438 set in the Recreation League at the Recreation alleys. He had games of 140, 142 and 156. The last, being high individual game of the night, was instrumetnal in the Sol Herzog's team taking the odd game from the Bearcats. Herzogs also led the league with a high set of 1,814. In the other matches Sims Music Studio took two from Quacks, Brad Manley starring for the losers with a 389. Printers won two out of three from Kriss Delicatessen and Patent Attorneys captured all three from Smyser's Pharmacy.

Evelyn Ream, rolling for Columbia in the Washington Ladies District League, exceeded all competitors, taking both high set and game honors with a 134 and 337, aiding her team greatly in rolling a 580 game, high for the season, and taking the odd game from the Bill Woods. Other results were: Rendezvous, two from Arcadia, the latter's first loss of the season out of 12 games; Recreation swept all three from Georgetown; Meyer Davis downed Convention Hall three games and Lucky Strike took the odd one from Petworth.

THE Battle Axe team, Ladies Bureau of Customs League, rolling at Columbia, surpassed all other league entries with a high team game of 377 and a 1,074 set. Dowling's 92 game and Cowan's 256 set led the field.

Weisbach (Wrecking Crew) in the Dynamite League at Arcadia, aided his team with a high game of 133 as they took high team game with a 545 set. Spiess (Sleuths) took individual set honors, rolling 354. The Tornados team amassed a total pinfall of 1,543.

Billie Williams, who has starred in the Washington Ladies League, has been missing from the line-up for the first time in many seasons because of her health.

Mike Vitall, of E. B. Warren, with 164 and 388, both new season's records, set the pace in the Electrical League, Double-Day Hill Electric, with 588, captured high team game and Pepco Maintenance, with 1,580, high team set.

In the K. of C. League Reds Schofield, of Santa Maria, toppled the pins for 147 for high game, and Arthur Lansdale, of Trinidad, 384, for high set. The Trinidad took team honors with 593 and 1,722.

Domeling's 142 proved high individual game in the Commercial loop, while Zackman's 385 won him set honors. Shoemart's 597 and 1,689 easily won team honors.

Sam Raymond, after winning individual game honors with 118, tied for the set leadership at 327 with H. S. Balsai, in the Navy Yards and Docks League.

McPherson, of Washington Loan & Trust Co. No. 1, shot 151 for high game in the Bankers League, while Light, of the same team, shot 381 for high set. Their team garnered 622 and 1,754 for high game and set.

outsiders were admitted, but it was announced that Baker played at end, Flinn and Wallace in the back field, and Merritt Bush as one tackle. The regulars scrimmaged against the reserves and freshmen.

Iowa Stops Wisconsin Plays.

Iowa City, Iowa, Oct. 18 (AP).—Coach Ossie Solem today sent the Iowa football team through a long defensive drill against Wisconsin football formations executed by freshmen.

Although the yearlings completed several passes, the varsity stopped Badger power plays successfully.

Badgers Practice Passes.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 18 (AP).—Wisconsin concentrated on passes in today's workout for Saturday's encounter with Iowa. Lynn Jordan, sophomore, showed surprising accuracy at flipping forward passes. He and Karl Schuelke, another sophomore back, were the sparkplugs of the varsity's offense.

Stiff Drill for Wildcats.

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 18 (AP).—Coach Dick Hanley discovered some faults in Northwestern's defense today when the regulars went through a stiff scrimmage.

A freshman eleven, using Indiana running plays, made some good gains against the varsity. But the varsity looked well on offense. Ollie Olson didn't take part in the workout because of a slight leg injury from the Stanford game. He will play Saturday.

Illini Halt Army Plays.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 18 (AP).—Army running plays failed to gain much ground around and through the Illinois varsity today as they scrimmaged with the freshmen in preparations for the Cadet game Saturday at Cleveland.

Mrs. Morrow Defeated at Richmond

Falls Before Lily Harper; Mrs. Haynes Advances in Mid-Atlantic.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 18 (AP).—Miss Lily Harper, 17-year-old Portsmouth school girl, overwhelmed Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow, of Baltimore, three times a champion, in the quarter-finals of the Middle Atlantic Golf Tournament here today.

Playing her shots brilliantly, the Portsmouth girl had a medal score of 42 at the turn and continued her fine play to win, 6 and 5.

Advancing with her to the semi-finals were Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, of Washington, the defending champion; Mrs. Jean Jones, of Richmond, and Mrs. Buford Scott, of Richmond.

Mrs. Haynes needed all of her good shots to win a thrilling battle from Mrs. J. G. Spitz, of Lakeside, 2 up, with a medal score of 84.

Even closer was the victory of Mrs. Jones, who defeated Mrs. H. C. Kersten, of Richmond, 1 up. Mrs. Scott eliminated Mrs. C. C. Vaughan, of Richmond, 3 and 2.

Featuring the card tomorrow will be the meeting of Miss Harper and Mrs. Haynes, while Mrs. Jones will play Mrs. Scott.

Probably the most spectacular of the day was the 30-foot putt holed by Mrs. Jones, the medalist on the eighteenth hole in whipping Mrs. Kersten. Mrs. Kersten, after being 3 down at the turn, had made a magnificent rally over the homeward course.

Wrestling Attracts 30 at Maryland U.

Intra-Team Matches Are Expected to Be Held.

Wrestling is proving a popular sport at the University of Maryland, with about 30 candidates having completed two weeks of conditioning work. No intercollegiate schedule is contemplated this season, but it is expected that intra-team matches will be held in conjunction with the varsity basket ball games this winter.

Several athletes have shown marked ability at the mat game, including Kenneth Casky, Jerome Wasserman and W. Tillotson.

Others on the squad are George Sesso, D. Stoner, Ed Berman, E. Wood, Bertrand Berman, Sigmund Smith, Ed Taggert, Al Pettit, E. Porter, V. Clopper, Charles Kissinger, Sid Wasserman, J. Moskowitz, T. Hutchins, Stuart Seaton, J. Price, J. Abrams, E. Thurston, J. Small, W. Jacobson, Edward Smith, L. Bowers, W. Layman, Hubert Arnold and Robert Vincent.

Silver Spring Wants Game.

Silver Spring Boys' Club will have the use of the Georgia avenue and District Line football field Sunday at 1 p. m., and would like to arrange a game with some 130-pound team. Call Tim Dodson at Shepherd 2140-W between 6 and 8 p. m.

Golf Club Open For Tourney Practice

Women Entered in Post's Play Allowed to Try Course Tomorrow.

WOMEN golfers who already have entered the match play with handicap tournament for The Washington Post Trophy scheduled October 23-28, inclusive, at the Columbia Country Club, will be permitted to practice over the course tomorrow morning, the tournament committee last night announced.

The course will be open for practice rounds up until 11:30, but none of the entrants will be permitted to tee off after that time.

List Is Increasing.

The field is increasing daily. Eleven additional entries yesterday skyrocketed the list to 72, with indications that the century mark would be reached today on the strength of entrants Mrs. W. F. Holtzman, of the tournament committee, expects to receive at the "field day" at Kenwood.

Among the latest to enter is Miss Elizabeth Houghton, of Chevy Chase, daughter of Alanson B. Houghton, former Ambassador to Great Britain. Miss Houghton returned to the city recently from New Bedford, Mass., where she has been playing considerable golf. An 11 handicap player, she shot a 90 at Chevy Chase yesterday. Miss Houghton will practice at Columbia with Mrs. Harrison Brand, jr., and Mrs. Y. E. Booker.

Others Entered.

Others who entered yesterday are Mrs. Mack Myers, Miss Florence Scott, Mrs. J. W. Cramer, Mrs. H. K. Beck, Mrs. F. F. Conway and Mrs. C. D. Snow, all of Manor; Mrs. Don Scott, of Indian Spring, and Mrs. Davis Nimmer and Mrs. B. V. McCandlish, both of Army and Navy.

Entries may be filed with Mrs. Holtzman at the Broadmoor Apartments, or by phoning Cleveland 6871. The entrance fee is $1. Following the 18-hole medal play with handicap Monday, the first 32 low net scorers will begin match play with stroke allowance the next day. The finals are slated for Saturday. Those failing in the opening round of match play will be placed in a consolation division.

strated they could kick and pass as well as run with the ball.

Newcomers Outstanding.

New York—The New York University regulars stopped the freshman version of the Colgate attack, but it usually got past the line of scrimmage before it was checked. Three newcomers, Klein, at end; Walz, at tackle, and Machlowitz, at full back, were outstanding.

Yale Defense Ragged.

New Haven, Conn.—The Yale Varsity generated enough offensive power to score two touchdowns against the scrubs in an hour of partly supervised scrimmage, but its defense was ragged against the complicated style of attack used by Brown, and the scrubs also tallied twice. The regulars were on the defense two-thirds of the time. Clare Curtin, varsity tackle, was slightly injured in the contact work.

Longest Drill of Year.

Hanover, N. H.—Dartmouth had its longest drill of the season in the semifinal session of preparing for the Penn game. The first two elevens worked at polishing up their attacks, specializing in forward passes, while the third and fourth scrimmaged.

Back Field Revamped.

Philadelphia—A revamped back field stirred things up in the Penn practice, and the varsity drove back the yearling attack for the first time this week. The feature was a 60-yard scoring run by John Lima, who replaced Mel Chamberlain. The other backs were Charley Rieksecker, a sophomore; Don Kellett and Ed Lewis.

Harvard Frosh Stopped.

Cambridge, Mass.—Harvard's freshman team tried Holy Cross offensive formations for 70 minutes without making much of an impression on the varsity and the scrubs didn't do much better with 20 minutes of forward passing. The Crimson's new wingback attack still was kept under cover.

Holy Cross in Shape.

Worcester, Mass.—Holy Cross prepared for Harvard by staging a long dummy scrimmage and signal drill. The Crusaders appeared in fine shape for the major test.

C. U. Freshmen Play Game Here Tomorrow

Beaten in their first game by Navy's "B" team, Catholic University freshmen will try again to break into the win column tomorrow afternoon at the Brookland Stadium where they encounter William and Mary, Norfolk Branch.

Against the Tars the Cardinal yearlings exhibited a stout defense, but Navy had a more potent scoring punch and eked out a 12-6 victory. "Turk" Daly and Joe Perron, in the line, played exceptionally well.

Tomorrow's game will start at 3 p. m.

Pegler Says

Navy Should Drop Rules About Eligibility and Start Winning.

By Westbrook Pegler.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Inasmuch as the Government is preparing to spend large sums of money building the United States Navy up to strength this would seem to be a good time to abandon some of the more fastidious notions of athletic eligibility which are now in effect at the Naval Academy and promote the Navy's prestige and popularity with some winning football teams.

Nobody has any idea, of course, that the next war, if any, will be fought under the revised intercollegiate football rules. But along with the development of the Navy's tonnage there should be a corresponding revival of the Naval Academy's old glory in athletics and especially in football, which is the most spectacular form of college sport and the best source of propaganda through sport.

Recognized Push-Over.

As matters have stood for several years now, the Navy, in football, is one of the recognized push-overs. The superintendent of the Naval Academy himself, Rear Admiral Louis M. Nulton, by name, said at the time of the Navy's quarrel with the Military Academy that the morale of the regiment of midshipmen had suffered from frequent defeats which were chargeable in part to the handicap imposed by his own school's rules of eligibility.

The Naval Academy then, as now, denied midshipmen the right to play football with the varsity who had had a total of three seasons' varsity experience. By this rule a midshipman who has played, say, two seasons of college football before entering Annapolis, is permitted to play only one season on the Academy team.

He is not allowed to play varsity football as a freshman or plebe so, assuming that he is a great star, he makes the varsity in his second year and winds up his football career. Thereafter, for two years he is barred from competition for a place on the team and must sit on the sidelines or up in his section with the regiment watching his school lose.

Justified in Belief.

Being a legitimate midshipman and well up in his work and conduct, he is justified in feeling that it must be a pretty dumb set of superior officers who deliberately handicap their own side for no better reason than to keep up with the Harvards and Yales a lot of other fine old county families. He himself is barred out of a legitimate student sport by a mere rule.

At both of the service schools a considerable proportion of the students are young men who have made beginnings or completed courses at civilian colleges. But at West Point the rules permit a cadet to play three years on the varsity team even though he may have had three years of varsity football on the outside. Consequently, varsity athletes are attracted to West Point, but are less eager to go to the Naval Academy.

Always Too Young.

Football coaches now regard the Navy as second-grade in football. The coaching is all right and the eligible midshipmen are as good as they can be expected to be, but the coaches' answer to any suggestion that this year, or next year, or any year should be the Navy's year is that the Navy's team is always too young for successful major league competition. The minimum age at Annapolis is 16 years and, although few children of that age do manage to enter the school, the average is considerably younger than that of West Point cadets.

It may be debatable that football prestige is sound prestige but the Military Academy was glad to have it and became during the years of the football boom one of the most popular American institutions while Naval Academy was suffering a corresponding decline.

And, judging by the quality of the ballyhoo to which the Government resorts in fighting wars and the character of the official Government press-agent matter which is emanating from Washington now in connection with the NRA, football ballyhoo could not do the Naval Academy half as much harm as the feeling of pity which has been engendered in the public minds.

Would Win Games.

Ballyhoo is largely nonsense, but people are not very good at thinking and are easily influenced by sound.

A real Navy team, proselyted and recruited and to hell with civilian conference rules and Harvard's opinion, including the very best football players in the regiment of midshipmen and barring only plebes and flunks, would win football games for the Navy. The propaganda would follow and public attention would turn quickly from the Army which is becoming the inferior service now.

There never has been any good reason why either the Navy or the Army should refrain from proselyting and recruiting the best athletes and students from civilian schools. They need the best they can find, and the Navy could use some popular enthusiasm just now.

Canandaigua Easy Victor in Steeplechase; Vote Takes Seventh.

BRIGHT HAVEN, appropriately named for his daddy Bright Knight, and mama Rock Haven, led from flag fall to finish to win The Magothy, a 6-furlong sprint for 2-year-olds, the feature of yesterday's Laurel program. Among the defeated was Observant, of the Schwartz entry, and Dreel, owned by G. L. Stryker. These juveniles were second and third.

A small crowd witnessed the races, some of which were slowed up by rain.

Charley Kurtsinger had the mount on Bright Haven and he rode as if his very life depended on the outcome. There was much shuffling of the deck behind the game colt, but none that seriously threatened his leading position.

Outsider in Field.

The winner, the property of the Sage Stable, was an outsider in the field of seven and rewarded his backers at the rate of $16.60 for the usual deuce.

Silvio Coucci, a late addition to the local jockey fraternity, outrode Lou Humphries in the first race to get Dixie Bee home a nose in front of Miss Glace. Bright Tess was third. Miss Glace ran much farther than the winner, but the difference in riders was noticeable.

Happy Anne chased Bally Bay from the start of the second race and finally caught the flying pacemaker, to draw away at the finish. Cantoria gained the show money from a slow beginning. Happy Anne was overlooked by the big money and paid a $14.60 mutuel.

Thomas Hitchcock's Canandaigua, away from active competition for some time, came back with a victory in the steeplechase. It was a two-horse race, decided by the superior riding of Regan McKinney, the gentleman jockey, over one A. Bauman, who had the mount on Daniel Soot. Last Tag was third, 100 lengths behind the second horse.

Stroll Along Victor.

The fourth race brought another thrilling finish, with Stroll Along taking the decision from Helios, Joey Renick rode another of his good races to get the winner, the favorite, home. Ilchester slopped into the show picture.

Parity, owned by Johnny Gilbert's agent and piloted by the good jockey, made every post a winning one in the sixth race to get home by a staggering nose over Salisbury, the favorite. War Tide was third in the field of six.

The seventh went to the favorite, Vote, while the good thing, Bright Beauty, under a masterful ride by Madeley, won the final from Olamay.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

The poem about nothing, given above, was written by a mathematician, strange as it seems. Translated, the cryptic verse should read:

"Oh, Sigh for No Cipher."

"You sigh for a cipher, O, I sigh for you,
Sigh for no cipher, O, sigh for me too.
You sigh for a cipher, I decipher so,
I sigh for no cipher, I sigh for you too."

The blowless battle between Jem Mace, English champion, and Joe Coburn, once champion of America, was one of the strangest ever recorded. The two men sparred for 12 rounds—it took them three hours—then both suddenly jumped out of the ring and left. There was little for the referee to do but call the bout a draw, which he did. During the fight neither Mace nor Coburn landed a blow on his opponent.

The first actors in England were clergymen. There, as elsewhere, early dramatic attractions were connected with the church. The clergymen wrote their plays, and acted them out. The plays were given as a form of religious instruction which would be interesting as well as understandable to the layman.

Tomorrow: The greatest mile.

Colors give added realism to strange things and happenings illustrated by John Hix on a full page in The Sunday Post.

Mat Ruffians Meet Again Tonight

Zaharias and Garibaldi Are Given Authority to Wage Wrestle Warfare.

ANYTHING short of mayhem will be in order tonight when Gino Garibaldi and George Zaharais, old pals of the wrestling profession, renew acquaintances at the Washington Auditorium. The pair headline an attractive card of five bouts.

If a rivalry stronger than the Zaharias-Garibaldi fued exists in wrestling it has not been discovered thus far. All of the frequent bouts in which they have been the principals have ended in near-riots necessitating police interference.

Score Is Tied.

The score in victories is even. Garibaldi won on a disqualification of the big Greek the first time, and himself lost by disqualification the second bout. In each instance the referee suffered the severest punishment. Promoter Joe Turner has announced that neither will be thrown out of the ring for rough tactics tonight, unless they apply their talents to the perspiring anatomy of the referee, who in all probability will be rotund Benny Bortnick.

With this assurance in mind the gladiators are expected to indulge in everything but wrestling.

Hickman vs. Boesch.

Herman Hickman, another of the numerous former All-American football players now employed by the wrestling agencies, will tackle Paul Boesch, figuratively speaking, in the 45-minute semiwindup. Boesch is rapidly ascending in popular favor here so no reason is apparent why he should lose the match.

Three 30-minute semifinals round out the program. Vanka Zelesniak meets George Hill in the curtain raiser. Dick Shikat and Cliff Olsen are billed in the second and Jacques Hunberto will try conclusions with Casey Berger in the third.

Rosen Rides 1st Victor, 15-1 Shot, at Empire

Empire City Race Track, Oct. 18 (AP).—The double apprentice rider, Joe Rosen, rode the first winner of his career here this afternoon. The little fellow had the leg up on Godfrey Preece's Energetic Boy in the fourth race and after the colt had been backed from 30 to 1 down to 15 to 1, little Rosen lifted him over the finish line a winner by a nose in the last lunge.

Judges Visit Private Tunnel To Reichstag

Fire, Trial Turns to Exit Incendiarists Are Said to Have Used.

Berlin, Oct. 18 (AP).—An underground passage from the Reichstag Building to Minister Hermann Wilhelm Goering's official residence figured prominently in the Reichstag fire trial today as the court sought to disprove "Brown Book" charges against Hitlerites.

One hundred newspapermen, including representatives of the foreign press, filed through the stuffy, narrow corridor, which entered the news on February 28, the day after the blaze, when an official report said the incendiaries might have escaped through it.

The "Brown Book"—published by a commission headed by the British Lord Marley and containing lists of alleged Nazi wrongdoings—declared the passage was used by storm troopers during the fire, for which five men are on trial.

After a night watchman testified today that nobody used the subterranean way just before the blaze, the six red-robed judges and then the journalists inspected it.

The passage ended in the Reichstag engine plant, with a single doorway leading off to the house of Capt. Goering, the Premier of Prussia and national minister without portfolio. An aperture, through which the watchman said he could hear every sound made in the passage in his room, was pointed out carefully.

A witness, Paul Bogun, testified a man he saw running from the Reichstag door the night of the fire was one of the three Bulgarian defendants, Blagoi Popoff, but admitted he had not seen the defendant's face.

Popoff thereupon exclaimed: "I am sure everybody present is convinced that this man is lying."

The Bulgarian denied he had anything to do with the incendiarism.

Medical Students Hear Dr. Cort This Morning

Dr. W. W. Cort, professor of helminthology in the School of Hygiene and Public Health at Johns Hopkins University, will address George Washington University medical students at 11 o'clock this morning. He will discuss "Recent Developments in the Knowledge of Hookworm Disease."

His lecture is the second in a series sponsored for medical students by the Smith-Reed-Russell Society.

Construction First Feels Trade Trend

ing of the postwar depression and the return of prosperity.

1925-1926 Peak Years.

Building continued at an increasing rate, culminating in 1925-1926 as to residential construction. Then reaction set in, with building of all kinds at low ebb.

Now obsolescence, fires and increasing population are again laying the base for reviving demand.

Allied to the construction industry is the whole real estate business in its broadest sense. This has social aspects of the greatest importance, of which the financial phase is by no means the least.

Home ownership always has been an integral part of the general scheme of life in the United States. Land, whether unimproved or with buildings, and mortgages secured by real estate provide the most widespread form of investment for the people of this country, both directly and through the massed savings represented by insurance, building and loan or savings deposits. The importance of this investment is shown by the fact that the total indebtedness standing against urban real estate in the United States in the form of mortgages, bonds or other forms of loans or securities, is estimated at approximately $30,000,000,000.

Slum Clearance Involved.

Among the other social aspects of the real estate and construction industries are the great problems of home ownership, improved housing facilities, slum clearance, transportation, city planning, roads, parks and many lesser but important esthetic or utilitarian features.

Revival of building activity is dependent upon a combination of needs, desires, purchasing power and credit. Because of its widespread ramifications and its volume in times of extended construction activity, it is of the greatest importance in the industrial, commercial and financial life of the Nation.

In Washington there are features of particular interest in addition to those of Nation-wide import.

Washington a City of Homes.

Washington is characteristically a city of homes. It has a stable and growing population, which is dependant mainly on a stable and increasing activity—the Federal Government. On account of this permanent source of employment, the population and its earning power do not suffer in depressions to the same extent as in cities dependant on the activities of great industries or the volume of commercial and financial transactions.

In view of the national importance of real estate and construction and the particular interest of residents of the District of Columbia resulting from the special conditions prevailing in this city, The Washington Post will carry in succeeding issues a series of interviews with prominent local representatives of real estate, construction, architecture, governmental activities and finance. These will deal with many important phases of needs, costs, credit and other important features of the building situation, past, present and future.

Tomorrow—George O. Vass comments on the soundness of first mortgages on Washington real estate.

"Cap" Stubbs — Rehearsals — By Edwina

Walt Mason Himself

One Small Lesson.

If I survive this present slump, and live to see another come, it will not find me such a chump, as I have been, so stupid, dumb. I may be busted on that day, as I have been so oft before, but I'll have no old bills to pay, no creditors around my door. When this depression came along it found us to our ears in debt, for life had been a grand sweet song, without a worry or a fret. We bought all doodads we desired, as did our daughters and our wives, and what we couldn't buy was hired, to brighten up our tangled lives. The merchant princes urged us on, they gave us credit and repeat, and if our little roll was gone, our standoff worked all down the street. And so we bought our silk attire, and bonnets good enough for kings, and chromos hung with costly wire, and hundreds of expensive things. Our homes were cluttered up with rugs that came from Persia or Cathay, we supped our soup from silver mugs, and shooed all fears and doubts away. We had our gorgeous limousines, our grand pianos and our pearls, we fed ourselves imported beans—oh, we were giddy boys and girls. Then came the slump that made us sweat, remorseful for the way we'd splurged, and we were all so deep in debt our hats and whiskers were submerged. And so I say, with other men, who mourn around their empty tents, "I won't be such a chump again, if ever I have 50 cents."

Seal Charges 'Star Chamber' In Milk Probe

AAA Showed Bias Toward National Dairy at Hearing, He Says.

Proceedings before the Agricultural Adjustment Administration on the Baltimore milk marketing agreement were "star-chambered" in favor of the National Dairy Products Corporation, it was charged last night by Elwood H. Seal, special counsel to the Senate Milk Investigating Committee.

His accusation of preferential treatment given to the big corporation followed his disclosure of evidence that milk is being "bootlegged" into the District from dairy farms not supervised by the Health Department.

"In the hearing on the Baltimore pact," Seal charged, the presiding officer, Francis Goertner, "refused to permit independent producers or their counsel to cross-examine witnesses who favored the pact."

"In this connection," Seal said, "I intend to subpena Allen Sauerwein, who represents the National Dairies and who also acted as attorney for the Maryland producers at the hearing on the agreement.

Others to Testify.

Other witnesses to be called when hearings are resumed next week are Dr. Clyde L. King, milk adviser to the AAA, who was accused of having tried to fix milk prices here in 1929, and I. W. Heeps, marketing agent for producers in the Washington and Baltimore milksheds.

Other witnesses are George S. Jackson, vice president of the Fairfield-Western Maryland Dairies, which controls 90 per cent of Baltimore's milk; Irving B. Kemp, president of the Clover Lane Dairy, of Baltimore, and John M. Dennis and his attorney, Charles G. Page, who will testify as to the alleged "star chamber" session of the AAA.

Auditors have uncovered evidence in several milk distributing plants that the "bootlegged" milk is being sold in bottle form to consumers.

The milk is being shipped mostly from Virginia, Seal said, with a considerable quantity also coming from Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Cost Is Less.

It is produced, he said, on farms not equipped to meet the requirements of the District Health Office.

The milk is shipped under invoices marked "butter," Seal said, and costs the distributor less than milk produced under the Health Department supervision.

Seal declined to make public the name of the distributors who have been using this milk for sale in bottle form.

The evidence, he said, will be made public as soon as the accountants have finished their check.

Of Good Quality.

The milk, Seal said, is of good quality; but it is not the equal of the milk produced on farms under health department supervision.

Before a milk producer may ship to this market, he is required to meet rigid requirements, which, in many cases, necessitates improvements costing hundreds of dollars, Seal pointed out.

Clan Gregor Gathers Here

Twenty-Fourth Meeting of Society Tomorrow at Willard Hotel.

The twenty-fourth annual gathering of the American Clan Gregor Society will open tomorrow at the Willard Hotel. A meeting of the council will precede the regular session at 3 p. m. Officers will report and memorial sketches will be read. A buffet supper will be served at 6:30.

At the evening session, the chieftain, Egbert Watson Magruder, of Norfolk, will deliver his annual address; heirlooms of clansmen will be exhibited; a flute solo will be played by Miss Nancy Harrison, of Akron, Ohio, and "MacGregor's Gathering" will be sung by John Francis MacGregor Bowie.

Mrs. William Wolff Smith will lecture on Sir Walter Scott.

A pilgrimage to Stonyhurst, the home of Mrs. Frank Pelham Stone in Montgomery County, will be made Saturday afternoon, where homage will be paid to First Lieut. Samuel Brewer Magruder, who is memorialized in the courthouse at Rockville.

Prisoner Admits "Year To Live" Story False

From his cell in the Marlboro Jail, Louis Steale, 2033 A street northeast, yesterday declared he was "just fibbing" about his one-year-to-live story.

Before going to jail, Steale told police who arrested him for drunken driving that Mount Alto Hospital physicians had said he would live only 12 months. Arrested last Thursday, he was fined $101 in Hyattsville Police Court Monday. He appealed. Unable to furnish bond, he was jailed for April court. Later he accepted a 31-day jail sentence.

Police Asked to Search For 2 Missing Persons

Police were asked yesterday to watch for Eugene Blancke, 16, missing since Tuesday from his home, 26 Bryant street northeast. Reported missing by his brother, the boy was said to be wearing a dark suit and a sweat shirt.

Siegried Kapits, 28, 1462 Belmont street northwest, was reported missing yesterday by his wife, Mrs. Ella Kapits, who told police her husband wore a gray suit, tan polo coat, gray soft hat and low tan shoes when he left his home Tuesday afternoon.

No Fair Rushing These Girls Now

Scottish Rite Masons Elect F. C. Schramm

Frank C. Patton, Omaha, Selected as Grand Almoner.

Fred C. Schramm, of Salt Lake City, formerly grand master of ceremonies, was elected grand minister of state of the Southern Scottish Rite Supreme Council, at its biennial session here yesterday.

The Masons chose Frank C. Patton, Omaha, formerly grand chamberlain, as grand almoner. Both were installed in office a few hours after their election by the 400 delegates from many sections of the world who are attending the convention at Scottish Rite Temple.

Three hundred and seventy-three Masons who were awarded titles as Knights Commanders of the Court of Honor were invested officially with their rank last night in ceremonies held under the auspices of the Albert Pike Consistory of Washington.

Tomorrow night the Masons who received the honorary Thirty-third Degree will receive their official designations under the auspices of the same consistory.

Yesterday was devoted to routine business by the Supreme Council.

The Earl of Cassillis, one of Scotland's leading thirty-third degree Masons, last night entertained active thirty-third degree delegates attending at Biennial with a banquet at the Willard Hotel.

Eminent thirty-third degree Masons who attended Lord Cassillis' dinner were Col. John H. Cowles, Washington; Melvin Johnson, Boston; Dr. Charles Brice, New York; W. H. Davis, Hamilton, Ont.; Louis Block, Davenport, Iowa; Ellwood Morey, Washington; Dr. John C. Palmer, Washington; Judge Arthur B. Hayes, Washington; Edward King, Pittsburgh; Oliver Frank Hart, Columbia, S. C., and Charles A. Conover, Coldwater, Mich.

120 Days Behind Bars Penalty for Assault

John Martin, 19, colored, of the 300 block O street northwest, was sentenced to 120 days in the District Jail by Police Court Judge Given yesterday for assault, petty larceny and disorderly conduct.

Arthur Turgeon, manager of the restaurant in McCrory's department store, testified Martin kicked and beat him about the head when the youth is alleged to have stolen store property.

Man Shot at Landlady Who Asked Rent, Charge

Angered when his landlady asked him for rent money, William D. Stultz, formerly of 107 E street southeast, fired three shots at her, the District grand jury was told. The jury yesterday returned an indictment charging him with assault with a dangerous weapon.

National Banks Get U. S. Bonds On Mortgages

Conservators Authorized to Take Home Owners' Securities.

Comptroller of the Currency O'Connor yesterday authorized all national bank conservators to accept bonds of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation in exchange for frozen mortgages held in their investment portfolios. All such exchanges must be submitted in advance to the comptroller's office for approval.

Home loan officials said yesterday they expected to authorize a public market in the new bonds early in November. Meanwhile, the securities are being bid in by New York brokers at about $86.50 "when issued."

"We have been getting a rather positive reaction from conservators in various sections of the country, indicating that in their opinion it would be for the best interest of their conservators...ips in many instances to exchange their mortgage assets for the Home Owners' Loan Corporation bonds," Comptroller O'Connor informed Chairman Stevenson of the Home Loan Bank Board.

"The law requires that such exchanges be approved by court order and that prior to the filing of the court proceedings the approval of the comptroller be likewise given to the exchange," he added.

All conservators are being notified of the new policy.

Buccolo's Widow Named as Slayer

Grand Jury Charges Her With Murder.

The widow of Rudolph B. Buccolo yesterday was named as his slayer when the District grand jury indicted her on a first degree murder charge.

The widow, Mary Irene Buccolo, 38, of 4104 Fifth street northwest, is asserted to have purchased a pistol just prior to the fatal shooting of her husband September 8. Domestic troubles that had led Buccolo to move to a hotel precipitated the shooting, police said. On the day of the slaying the husband returned to his wife's home to discuss their troubles, it was testified.

Woman Asks $50,000 For Auto Injuries

Anna Rosenberg, 2155 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, yesterday filed suit here against Leonard P. Walsh, 1707 I street northwest, and his brother, Joseph, asking $25,000 from each.

She says the Walsh automobile struck and injured her May 21 at a corner near her home.

Create Power, Marvin Urges 149 Graduates

Make Honest Decisions Daily for Strength, He Appeals.

Life is always decided at the fork in the road, hence honest judgments should be made, Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, told the 149 graduates at the annual fall convocation yesterday.

President Marvin warned the graduates not to say to themselves, "I shall await a great decision to test my strength," adding that no great decision will be put to such persons.

"The meeting of each daily judgment honestly," he continued, "and with the freedom gained by a background of true decisions, will make you great individuals who are to be trusted with large responsibility. The educated person has little or no pride in size, but every interest in quality, of his achievement."

Dr. William Allen Wilbur, provost, introduced the deans and directors of the colleges, schools and divisions, who presented candidates for graduation. The Rev. J. Harvey Dunham, pastor of Western Presbyterian Church, offered the invocation and pronounced the benediction.

Degrees were conferred as follows:

Worker Killed; Employer Held

Fred Amberger Arrested After Cave-in Kills Colored Man.

Fred Amberger, excavation subcontractor, of 4701 Wisconsin avenue, was arrested last night and held for action of the coroner's jury in connection with the fatal injury of Daniel Hamilton, 30, colored, Gaithersburg, Md.

A few hours earlier firemen spent 30 minutes uncovering the body of Hamilton, who was imprisoned in a cave-in in front of 4617 Brandywine street.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said he had been informed that the ditch in which Hamilton was working lacked the required framework.

Hamilton, a laborer employed by Amberger, was alone in the excavation when companions, hearing a muffled cry, glanced down and saw the avalanche of dirt bury him.

Dismissal of Two Policemen Advised

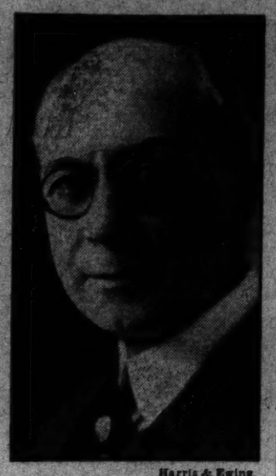
Trial Board Acts on Pair in Jail for 3d Degree.

Dismissal from the force was recommended yesterday by the Police Trial Board in the case of James A. Mostyn and William R. Lamin, Washington policemen, who are serving jail sentences of one year for beating a prisoner in the First Precinct Station in August, 1931.

The Trial Board based its recommendation on charges of "conviction in a court of competent jurisdiction of a criminal offense."

Mostyn and Lamin were accused of beating a bakery employe, James Harker, whom they were questioning in connection with several housebreakings. The case attracted city-wide attention, resulted in a Department of Justice investigation of "third degree brutality" in Washington.

Architect Dies



Harris & Ewing.

CARLTON VAN VALKENBURG, well-known architect, who died yesterday.

Lewis H. Ball, 71, Succumbs; Twice Senator

Delaware G. O. P. Leader Had Been Active in District Affairs.

Former Senator Lewis Heisler Ball, 71, of Delaware, died from Pneumonia yesterday at his home in Falkland, Del.

A graduate of Delaware College and the medical school of the University of Pennsylvania, Dr. Ball served in the Senate from 1903 to 1905, filling a vacancy, and again from 1919 to 1925. He was chairman of the Senate District committee during his second term, and sponsored the Ball rent act, designed to protect tenants from profiteering landlords.

A strong advocate of plans to make Washington a model city, he urged adequate public schools and playgrounds. He supported the early movements for merger of the street car companies, and proposed drastic laws for the protection of lives and property.

After his defeat for renomination in 1924 by Coleman du Pont, the late President Coolidge appointed him to the District Rent Commission, which post he held until its expiration in May, 1925.

He was Republican leader of Delaware for years. He was elected State treasurer in 1898, and to the House of Representatives in 1901.

After retiring from political life, Dr. Ball resumed the practice of medicine.

He is survived by his wife, the former Catherine Justis.

Five Marylanders Fined in Tag Drive

Use of District Licenses Causes Arrests.

As a result of the drive against Marylanders driving with District tags, five persons were fined in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday. Approximately 20 cases were continued.

Those fined were Wade Bolt, Riverdale; Leon A. Young, Edmonston; Loring Wood, Berwyn; Roy P. Turkin, Hyattsville, and David T. Webster, Hyattsville. All paid $10.

The continued cases involve District taxi drivers living in Maryland. Many are using only District tags, it is charged. State Policemen C. S. Jones and E. R. Quandt are conducting the drive.

Woman Freed on Bond In Bad Check Charge

Anna Snyder, 30, of 1418 Twentieth street northwest, charged with passing two bad checks totaling $45, was released on $700 bond by Judge Ralph Given in Police Court yesterday.

She pleaded not guilty and demanded a jury trial.

D. C. Architect To Be Buried In Arlington

Body of Van Valkenburg Arrives for Funeral Services Here.

The body of Carlton Van Valkenburg, 60, prominent Washington architect, who died Tuesday night in Atlantic City, arrived here last night.

Although definite funeral arrangements had not been completed yesterday, burial will take place in Arlington Cemetery.

Van Valkenburg, socially prominent, was a native of Minneapolis. He served as a lieutenant in the Air Corps overseas during the World War.

A member of the Arts Club, Van Valkenburg launched the first Bal Boheme here in 1924.

Van Valkenburg had been ill about a month. He lived at 1765 Church street. His widow, Mrs. Thusnelda Meyn Van Valkenburg, survives.

Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, also is head of the recently appointed housing committee.

Municipal Center Is Out.

Final plans for the testing basin at Cabin John, which already has the Fine Arts Commission's approval, will be submitted. The planning group approved preliminary specifications for the project, whose buildings will face on the proposed George Washington Memorial parkway. Actual work awaits action on a public works application for $3,200,000.

Another proposal, the construction of a stadium and armory at the end of East Capitol street, for which the District has requested $50,000, will be considered. The Municipal Center is not on the schedule. Action by the Public Works Administration on an application for $4,900,000 has been shelved.

Removal of car tracks from Constitution avenue between Seventh and Ninth streets and Maine and Missouri avenues will be urged. The commission made a study of surface rail traffic conditions five years ago, and now, with existing lines soon to be unified, will aim to develop a general plan for the single system.

Nolen to Give Report.

Protection of motorists using the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway will be stressed in considering plans to combine Washington and Hoover Airports by abolishing Military road. The two fields at present are separated by this narrow road.

Recognizing that such an improvement would lessen takeoff and landing dangers, the commission is concerned with preventing transfer of peril to automobilists. Combining of the two airports may bring low-flying planes over the boulevard.

Mr. Nolen will give a report on a recent meeting in Baltimore on measures to clear up pollution of Chesapeake Bay and tributaries. Experts at the meeting, called by George L. Radcliffe, public works regional adviser, testified the pollution was damaging fish spawining in rivers.

Improvement of the north side of Pennsylvania avenue to harmonize with new buildings in the Triangle will be taken up at the suggestion of Senator William H. King. Soterios Nicholson, local attorney and publisher, is leading the campaign.

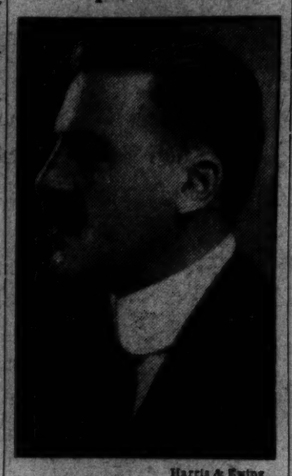
Diplomat Dies



Harris & Ewing.

PETER AUGUSTUS JAY, former American Ambassador, who died at his Q street home yesterday.

P. A. Jay Dies; Was Diplomat For 25 Years

Former U. S. Ambassador to Argentine Succumbs to Asthma Attack.

Peter Augustus Jay, Ambassador to the Argentine from 1925 to 1927, and a direct descendant of John Jay, first Chief Justice of the United States, died late yesterday at his home, 1815 Q street northwest.

Mr. Jay had been in ill health for about five years. He suffered an attack of asthma at Bar Harbor, and was brought to Washington Monday night. He was 56.

Twenty-five years in the Diplomatic Service, Mr. Jay held posts in Paris, Constantinople, Tokyo, Egypt, Rome, Salvador and Roumania before he was sent to Buenos Aires. He began his career in 1902 in France. He was appointed a member of the Permanent International Commission, established by the treaty with Spain in 1928.

In the course of Mr. Jay's service as Ambassador to Argentina his youngest daughter, Emily Kane Jay, died of sleeping sickness. It was reported unofficially that his resignation was the result.

Mr. Jay was prominent in clubs in the Capital and in New York. He was educated at Eton, England, and Harvard University, where he graduated in 1900.

Surviving Mr. Jay are his widow, Mrs. Susan McCook Jay; a daughter, Susan Mary Jay, and a brother, De Lancy Jay, of New York.

The body will be taken to Rye, N. Y., for private burial.

Reserve Inspection Tonight.

Lieut. Comdr. F. W. Benson, newly assigned to take charge of Naval Reserve affairs in this district, will inspect the Washington Reserve tonight in the Armory, at Eleventh and M streets southwest. The inspection will be followed by a dance.

Queen Sought For Halloween Celebration

Parade Will Feature 3rd Annual Event Here; Funds Needed.

The Halloween celebration is finding difficulties, but a bigger and better celebration is promised.

One item, which threatens to produce many gray hairs, is the selection of a Halloween Queen to lead the parade.

"I'll have 150 mothers on my neck," said Charles J. Brenner, charged to pick the Congress Heights Citizens Association's candidate. Mrs. Harvey Wiley undertook the same responsibility for the Kalorama citizens.

With the celebration 12 days off, considerable red tape remains to be hurdled in order to stop street cars along the parade route. The procession will start at John Marshall place and Pennsylvania avenue, proceed west to Fifteenth, south to Constitution avenue and thence west to the reviewing stand between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets.

Last year, two blocks on Constitution avenue were roped off. This year the wind-up will be confined to one block.

Ominous statements, voiced by one member of the group planning the event, that interest was at a low ebb and the question of financing was proving troublesome, were scouted yesterday by Curtis B. Hodges, of the Greater National Capital Committee, sponsoring the Capital's third Halloween celebration.

Scouts Will Plant Trees at Mt. Vernon

Thomas P. Littlepage, president of the Chamber of Commerce, will speak Saturday at the annual Boy Scout pilgrimage to Mount Vernon to gather walnuts.

Scouts from Washington, Maryland and Virginia will plant 24 trees along the roadway from the Mansion to the Tomb during the hike.

The party will be received by Col. Harrison H. Dodge, superintendent of Mount Vernon; G. H. Collingwood, forester of the American Forestry Association; Robert Myers, Boy Scout headquarters, and C. A. Reed, of the Department of Agriculture.

Tourist Houses Hit On Rhode Island Ave.

The Dahlgren Terrace Citizens Association last night took steps to seek abolition of tourist houses on Rhode Island avenue. A special committee was named to confer with People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech to determine what legal action may be taken.

The association adopted resolutions asking the District Commissioners to provide sidewalks and new paving on Franklin street northeast, between Tenth and Twelfth streets, and to move a stop sign from Twelfth street and Rhode Island avenue to Twelfth and Saratoga streets.
